POLITICAL.

The Greeley Candidate for Lieutenant-Governor.

Senator Brownlow on the Aspect of the Canvass.

More Prominent Democrats Declaring for Grant.

The Management of the National Finances.

Movements Among Local Political Organizations Yesterday.

The Meeting To-Night.

All voters interested in maintaining an honest national Government should attend the Republican mass-meeting to be held this evening at the Cooper Institute. It will be the first of the regular weekly meetings proposed for the remainder of the canvass, and cannot fail to be interesting. Hon. Marshall Jewell, Governor of Connecticut, will be the principal speaker, and his address will be devoted to a consideration of the leading issues of the day, beside alluding to the recent calumnies against President Grant. Gen. Thomas B. Van Buren, of New-Jersey, will also speak to-night, so that the meeting will be an interesting and important one.

Emil Sauer's Letter of Acceptance.

The following letter has been sent by Mr. Emil Sauer, Elector at large on the Republican ticket, to the note informing him of his nomination at Utica:

Hon. W. A. Wheeler, President of the Republican State Convention:

DEAR SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge your kind note of the 24th ult., informing me of my nomination as Elector at large by the Republican State Convention. It affords me great pleasure to accept the nomination, and to tender my sincerest thanks to the members of the Convention—not only for the confidence manifested toward myself, but more so for their just recognition of the German-American element of our State population. Allow me to add that, under no consideration, would I have accepted a nomination imposing upon me in case of my election more than a temporary duty—nor would I have deemed it consistent with my honor as a man, and my convictions as a citizen, to take this departure from my Democratic friends, if that party had not sealed its fate by an alliance which seems to me unnatural, corrupt and, in its logical developments, disastrous to the best interests of the Republic. I prefer Grant and Wilson because I believe that through the election of the Philadelphia nominees the policy of the Administration will not be embarrassed by the dead weight of an incongruous element; that it will be more liberal by the experience gained from the past and present; that it will fully restore peace and harmony between the North and South, and preserve that security and stability in regard to the financial affairs of this country which have been a blessing to our people and an honor to our Government.

Believe me yours, truly, EMIL SAUER.

The Greeley Candidate for Lieutenant-Governor.

Of Chauncey M. Depew, the Greeley candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, who is now associated with Mr. Kernan on the mongrel State ticket, the Syracuse Journal says: "He once held an honored position in the Republican Party, by which he was elected to the office of Secretary of State in 1863. Few young men in this State then had fairer prospects of being promoted to still higher positions of trust. But subsequently failing to secure a renomination, (Gen. Barlow having been nominated in his stead,) he became an habitué of the lobby at Albany, and frittered away the brilliant reputation which he had before had. Every Winter since then he has been found at his post in the infamous 'third house.' Disappointment at not receiving recognition from the President, in the way of an appointment to office, carried him over to the bolters. Now the Democrats and Republican renegades take up this habitué of the Albany lobby, and propose to make him President of the Senate of the Empire State! This, indeed, looks like reform! Let the people contrast this man with the gallant Robinson, and judge discriminately of their respective merits."

Letter from Senator Brownlow.

In a recent letter, Senator Brownlow, of Tennessee, says: "At no time, hitherto, in Tennessee or throughout the country, have the prospects of the National Republican Party been brighter and more glorious than now. 'Victory is in the air,' as the New-York Tribune said before the North Carolina election, and the glorious Republican victory which was in the North Carolina air pervades the atmosphere in all parts of the country. I have no idea that Greeley and Brown will carry more than five or seven States, and the corrupt coalition which brought about their candidacy will be more disgracefully beaten than has ever been any party in the history of this country. Our grand old party could beat the Kuklux Democracy if it were reinforced by forty times the Greeley apostates who rally to its piratical flag."

Another Prominent Illinois Democrat for Grant.

Mr. S. Ashton, a lifelong Democrat, of Chicago, has published a letter in which, alluding to the Louisville Convention, and explaining his own position, he says:

"While I believe the many distinguished gentlemen who participated in the proceedings of that Convention were desirous of preserving intact the organization of the old Democratic Party, still I believe that united action against the so-called Liberal Party, in the support of the regular Republican ticket, will best preserve the principles of true Democracy; therefore, in my judgment, it is the duty of every patriotic Democrat and good citizen to so vote and act as to prevent so great a calamity to our country and its prosperity as would be the election of Horace Greeley to the Presidency. Therefore, I shall give my vote to Gen. Grant, and what little influence I may have shall be used for the success of the Republican Party."

The Missouri Nominations.

The Republican ticket for State officers, &c., in Missouri is hailed with enthusiasm. The St. Louis Globe says: "It means the redemption of the State. Like the election of Grant, the success of the ticket is a conclusion foregone." The St. Louis Democrat says: "With such a ticket as we have selected, and upon the issues presented by our platform, we enter the contest in Missouri with a purpose to redeem the State from the misrule we now suffer at the hands of those who have betrayed the public interests." And Hon. Henry T. Blow, Chairman of the State Republican Executive Committee, has sent the following telegram to the National Committee:

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 5.

Hon. E. D. Morgan, Chairman National Committee, Fifth-avenue Hotel, New-York:

Our State Convention nominated, viz.: Senator John B. Henderson for Governor, and the strongest ticket for State officers ever presented to the voters of Missouri. Convention very enthusiastic. We are bound to elect our National and State tickets. HENRY T. BLOW.

Judge McCalmont for Grant.

Judge John S. McCalmont, of Franklin, Penn., a graduate of West Point Academy, and a life-long Democrat, has declared for Grant. Upon the breaking out of the war he resigned from the Bench, and went into the army, serving during the war with distinction. At the close of hostilities he quietly resumed the practice of his profession, and was soon after again chosen to preside upon the Bench. Up to the time of the present campaign he has clung to Democracy with unwavering tenacity. The Pittsburg Commercial says, that probably no man in his section of the State has ever been considered more consistent politically, and that he carries with him now into his new party relations hundreds of voters in the northern counties. In a brief address at a Soldiers' and Sailors' Convention, in Franklin, last week, he said: "I have been a Democrat so long as they acted in harmony with my ideas. I am no sudden convert, but made up my mind to support Gen. Grant more than six months ago. I have not so made up my mind from personal reasons, but because I have looked upon him as the best man to fill the position—not exactly in comparison with Mr. Greeley, but I have looked all over our country in its present condition of peace and prosperity, and while having great respect for many good men in both parties, I have arrived at this conclusion, that Gen. Grant is the safest and best man in the whole country to elect as President for the next four years."

The Management of the National Finances.

In reply to a friend who insisted that his opposition to Greeley is a support of Grant, Alexander H. Stephens says: "Mr. Stephens knows the defensible and indefensible points in Gen. Grant's Administration much better than those who cry so loudly against the 'rottenness' and 'extravagance' in its financial management; and that the monstrous 'frauds' and 'usurpations' of the Fifteenth Amendment, and the Enforcement acts are the 'dead issues' of the war. When Mr. Stephens is attacked for not assailing the Administration upon points on which he knows no successful assault can be made, is he not to speak the truth in assigning his reasons for not joining in such an assault? When Mr. Stephens joins in an assault it will be upon points where there can be no disastrous repulse upon the exhibition of the facts, merits and truth of the case. Is it not true that Gen. Grant's Administration has paid over three hundred millions of the public debt and lessened the taxes over three hundred millions of dollars besides? What then can be made before an intelligent public of the cry ever so vociferously made of 'rottenness' and 'extravagance' in the face of these facts?"

Miscellaneous Notes.

The Republicans of the First District of Georgia have nominated Andrew Sloan for Congress. The Democrats of the Second District of the same State have nominated Gen. A. J. Wright for Congress.... The call for the Iowa Straight-out Democratic State Convention says it will be held on Wednesday, Sept. 25, for the purpose of nominating a Presidential electoral ticket and a State ticket of undefiled Democrats, and of perfecting their State organization.... Grats Brown has promised to speak at one or two places in Mississippi and Arkansas as soon as able. ....The Republicans of the Tenth District of Missouri have nominated Ira B. Hyde for Congress....Ex-Gov. R. M. Patton, of Alabama, says he would not accept a nomination for Governor or for any other political office from any party whatever....Col. H. H. Sneed is an Anti-Greeley Democratic candidate for Congress in the Second District of Texas. He has many supporters....Wyoming is reported to have elected the Democratic candidate for delegate to Congress by 400 or 500 majority....Matthew Griffin is again the Republican nominee for the Assembly in the Second District of Delaware County....The Republicans of the First District of Onondaga County have nominated Mr. William H. H. Gere for Assembly. In the Second District Mr. George W. Raynor is the nominee.

Kernan's Bad Record.

Of the Confederates' candidate for Governor the Ogdensburg Journal says: "He is a lire-long Democrat of the strictest sect. He is a prominent lawyer, and has filled several public positions, among them member of the State Legislature and member of Congress. He has always been a warm friend of Horatio Seymour and a politician of his school. He was a bitter opponent of the war from beginning to end, even to the Copperhead standard, and is therefore the proper man to hold up the banner of the opponents of Gen. John A. DIX."

The Candidate from the Lobby.

Of Chauncey M. Depew, the Confederate candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, the Buffalo Express says: "He it was who manipulated the Assembly last Winter, when a bill which was rejected in the morning, during one of the last days of the session, was taken up and passed by a large majority, without amendment, in the afternoon of the same day. This bill in effect released the New-York Central Railroad Company from the payment of heavy judgments pending in the Courts, and authorized it to raise its passenger fare from two to three cents per mile, although the title of the bill gave no such indication, neither was it so expressed—at least not clearly—in the body of the bill. The bill, and the manner of its passage, together formed such a monstrous piece of legislative iniquity that Gov. Hoffman has refused to approve it. Soon after the adjournment of the Legislature he gave the friends and opponents of the bill a chance to be heard upon its merits. Depew appeared in behalf of the Company, and urged the executive to give the bill his official approval. The Governor's reply must still be ringing in the ears of the pertinacious lobbyist. 'You ask me,' said Gov. Hoffman, 'to sanction a fraud.' He was asked, he said, to approve a bill which concealed important matter not indicated in its title. If this bill becomes a law, he added, then the Railroad Company will not only be released from heavy obligations imposed by the Courts, but a large number of litigants will be made responsible to the Company for expenses incurred in defending the claims against it. Under these circumstances the Governor assured Mr. Depew that he could not and would not approve the bill."

A New Grant and Wilson Campaign Club in the Seventeenth Assembly District.

A large number of the members of the old Monitor Club met last evening at No. 305 West Forty-second-street for the purpose of organizing a Grant and Wilson Campaign Club. Mr. Michael Hatton presided. James O'Rourke was elected President; Edward Kenney, Secretary, and P. J. Fleury, Treasurer. The Philadelphia nominations were indorsed by acclamation, and a committee of three was appointed to draft resolutions commendatory of the course of Alderman S. B. H. Vance. A resolution was also passed tendering a vote of thanks to Senator James O'Brien for his unflinching fidelity to the interests of the working men and his perseverance in bringing the corruptions of the Tammany Ring to an end. About forty new names were enrolled, many of them having been staunch Democrats, but now determined to use every honorable effort to secure the election of Grant and Wilson. Horace Greeley was repudiated in the most emphatic manner, and three cheers given for Grant and Wilson.

The Germans of the Second Assembly District.

The Second Assembly District German Grant and Wilson Campaign Club met last night at No. 14 North William-street. The President, Adam Machem, occupied the Chair. Resolutions were adopted ratifying the State nominations made at the Utica Convention. Favorable reports were received from the Committee on Mass-meeting and Banner-raising, which will take place on Friday, 20th inst., when eminent speakers will deliver addresses.

Eleventh District Republicans—Grand Rally in Republican Hall.

The Eleventh District Grant and Wilson Club held the first of a projected series of public meetings last evening, at their headquarters at Republican Hall, in which at the opening hour there was a numerous audience. As the meeting progressed the number of auditors increased, and half an hour after the commencement standing-room only was attainable. Judge Lathrop called the meeting to order, and introduced Mr. Anthony Allaire, who spoke with a generous reception.

Mr. E. Delafield Smith followed, with a vigorous comparison between the public records of the candidates, and a forcible allusion to the plurality of leaders in the Anti-Grant party, his concluding allusion to the verdict of the States already heard from arousing great enthusiasm.

Col. T. B. Thorp came next, and after reviewing the history of the political parties of the country, pointed to Gen. Grant as the means through which the loftiest designs of the Republican Party had been achieved; how, as a civil ruler, he had recognized the universal freedom written in the Constitution; and how, under his Administration the colored people had become good and useful citizens. In discussing the opposition elements, the speaker lost his seriousness, and his humorous comparisons provoked great merriment, but toward the close he returned to the original ground, and exhorted that no change be made in an Administration which had brought only peace and prosperity to the land. The meeting lasted over two hours, and was in every respect a most encouraging success to the Club, under whose auspices it was held.

The Appomattox Grant Club.

The Appomattox Grant Club of the Nineteenth Ward assembled last evening at Brevoort Hall, Fifty-fourth-street and Third-avenue, Geo. N. Williams, Esq., in the chair. From 300 to 400 members were in attendance, and the enthusiasm demonstrated for Grant and Wilson was unbounded. A large number of citizens joined the Club, which now numbers upward of 500 members. B. Van Riper, of Jersey City, made a stirring address, advocating the election of Grant and Wilson, as the only chance to keep the country in a safe condition. He said that Grant always remembered his comrades, and there are many one-legged soldiers employed at Washington. In conclusion he hoped that each member would use every means in his power to secure votes for the true Republican candidates.

Mr. Henry P. Mott and Col. Charles S. Spencer then delivered brief addresses, after which the President stated that he had received an invitation from the Republican Association of the district for the Club to attend a grand ratification meeting, to take place on Friday next at No. 1,000 Third-avenue. The meeting adjourned, giving three rousing cheers for Grant and Wilson.

Payment for Their Slaves.

The Saratogian says that a gentleman in Saratoga has received a letter from his brother in Louisiana urging him to go for Greeley on the ground that if he is elected he (the Southerner) will get paid for the slaves he lost by the war. One or two other instances of the same kind have come to its knowledge.

Grand Republican Mass-Meeting at Nyack.

An excursion train will run from Turner's to Nyack to-morrow (Thursday) afternoon, to accommodate those persons who desire to attend the grand mass-meeting at Nyack, which will be addressed by Hon. Roscoe Conkling upon the political issues of the day.

The train leaves Turner's at 12 o'clock noon, and stops at all intermediate stations. The train returning leaves Nyack at 6 P. M., stopping at all stations. The regular train leaving Jersey City at 1½ P. M. will arrive in time for the meeting, and passengers by that train can return by the 6½ o'clock P. M. train, making connection at Upper Piermont. It is expected that large delegations from New-York will attend the mass-meeting. The speaking begins at 3 o'clock P. M.

Enthusiastic Republican Rally in the Twenty-First District.

Under the auspices of the Twenty-first Assembly District Republican Association, of which Mr. William Haw, Jr., is President, one of the most successful and enthusiastic meetings of the campaign took place last evening in Harlem, in One Hundred and Sixteenth-street. A series of resolutions, indorsing Grant and Wilson and pledging the Club's support, were passed amid great enthusiasm.

Col. A. P. Ketcham briefly reviewed the issues in the campaign, pictured the direful result should Greeley be elected, and earnestly appealed to his hearers to vote for the Republican standard-bearers.

Gen. William A. Darling said that the election of Mr. Greeley, if it would not cause another war, would bring about disasters equally calamitous.

Col. A. W. Tenney, in a short speech, made many telling points against the Greeley party, and asked his hearers whether they would vote for the men who stood by the nation and vindicated its honor, or those who are trafficing for place, and will sell their honor to get it.

Mr. Robert Crow and Mr. Henry C. Robinson also addressed the meeting, and a glee club sang patriotic music between the speeches.

The Colored Voters of the Fifteenth Ward Organized.

The basement of Bethel Church, Sullivan-street, was thronged last night with an enthusiastic assemblage of the colored voters of the Fifteenth Ward, who organized a Grant and Wilson Campaign Association. Dr. McDonough presided. A large number of prominent white citizens were also present. Eloquent addresses were made by Col. Chas. S. Spencer, Prof. G. W. Clark, Hon. John Lawson, Rev. Henry Highland Garnett, and others. The Fifteenth Ward Colored Grant and Wilson Campaign Club then organized with the following officers: Asa Francis, President; John J. Zuille, Vice-President; John Jeffrey, Secretary; John Butler, Assistant Secretary; D. K. McDonough, Treasurer. Resolutions repudiating the assertion that the colored race favored Greeley, and pledging their unwavering support to Grant and Wilson, Dix and Robinson, were then adopted, after which the meeting adjourned.

The German Republican Central Campaign Committee.

The German Republican Grant and Wilson Central Campaign Committee, Mr. Wm. Gellmann presiding, held a meeting at the Teutonia Assembly Rooms, last evening. It was resolved to hold a German Grant and Wilson demonstration in the course of the present month. A resolution was also passed calling upon all German Grant and Wilson campaign organizations of this City for co-operation in this matter.

Local Notes.

A vote was taken on a morning train on the Rome and Watertown Railroad yesterday, which resulted as follows: Grant, 44; Greeley, 25; neutral, 3.

The German Republican Central Committee has opened, at No. 25 Chambers-street, an office of naturalization, under the direction of Mr. Morris Friedman.

The First Assembly District Republican Association met, last evening, at No. 131 Franklin-street, and passed a resolution congratulating the Republicans of Maine on their victory.

At a meeting of the Charles E. Abbott Association, last evening, at No. 41 Monroe-street, Timothy O'Shea presiding, a resolution was passed hailing with pleasure the glorious triumph of the Republican cause in Maine.

The Twentieth Assembly District Republican Association met last evening at No. 1,000 Third-avenue. Vice-President M. H. Babcock, presiding, and initiated a number of new members.

The Second Assembly District Republican Association met at No. 189 Chatham-street last evening, and tendered their thanks to their brothers in Maine for repudiating the great political mendicant, Horace Greeley.

Much merriment was indulged in at the Produce Exchange yesterday, on account of the inquiries of various parties as to the latest quotations from Maine. The fun was exclusively on the Republican side of the house, although some Democrats accepted the situation and "smiled."

A meeting will be held this evening at Eleventh-street Welsh Congregational Church, under the auspices of the Welsh Grant and Wilson Campaign Club. Addresses will be delivered in both Welsh and English. Rev. Howell Powell, Rev. J. Edmond Jones, James Duncan, Esq., and Jacob M. Patterson will speak.

At a meeting of the M. T. Brennan Central Association, held last evening at Apollo-Hall, the President, Wm. H. Burns, in the chair, resolutions indorsing the action of the Baltimore and Syracuse Conventions were passed, and speeches made by S. S. Cox, the Democratic candidate for Congressman at Large, Assistant District-Attorney Sullivan and others.

Some malicious person proceeded to the roof of the building, No. 426 Grand-street, yesterday afternoon about 6 o'clock, and cut with a file the wire rope which suspended the beautiful Grant and Wilson banner just flung to the breeze by the Sixth Assembly District Campaign Club. When the banner fell to the ground it was caught by a passing car and torn into shreds.

The Robert O'Brien Social Club of the Fifteenth Ward, met at No. 73 Fourth-street on Monday evening. A motion was made that the association support the Greeley and Brown nomination, but it was met with a very decided opposition by a large number of the members. The final consideration of the motion was postponed until the next meeting of the Association.

The Greeley and Brown Campaign Club of the Twelfth Assembly District held a meeting last evening at No. 220 Second-street. Alderman Woltman in the chair, for the purpose of ratifying the Baltimore and Syracuse nominations. The large room was very crowded, but very little enthusiasm was manifested. Speeches were made in support of the candidates by Henry Woltman, J. K. Furlong, Ex-Senator Creamer and others.

A strong Grant and Wilson Club has been organized at Walden, Orange County, N. Y., under very flattering prospects. The officers are: C. H. Joslin, President; Dr. T. Millspaugh, Vice-President; C. A. Reed and J. R. McCullough, Secretaries; and J. C. Scofield, Treasurer. The organization now numbers some two hundred active members. A large meeting was held at Scofield Hall, in the village, on Friday, and was addressed by James G. Graham, of Newburg.

MAINE.

The Returns More Favorable as They are More Full.

Majority on the Congressional Tickets Over 17,000.

Brilliant Result of the Election in Mr. Hale's District.

Democrats Pronouncing Maledictions on their Wretched Allies.

Their Faith in the Existence of a "Liberal" Party Gone.

THE GENERAL RESULT.

Perham's Majority 16,000—Congressional Majority 17,000—The Local Issues Introduced and Their Effect.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 10.—The supplemental returns received today fully bear out all the promise of yesterday. The official majority of Gov. Perham, when the vote is counted next week, will not be short of 16,000, and it will show that the Republicans have carried every county in the State by majorities ranging from 150 to 1,800.

But the splendid result in the Fifth District excites admiration throughout the State. It so far surpasses expectation as to be surprising even to those who were working for it, and the excellent news has overwhelmed the sorehead Press. Closely upon Mr. Hale's heels are his associates in the Second, Third and Fourth Districts, in the race for the chief laurels of victory. His majority will crowd hard on 3,000. Such an overwhelming rebuke of treachery is unknown to the political history of Maine. But Burleigh, also, in the First District, has achieved a brilliant triumph, and his majority will exceed 2,000.

Less than half a dozen prominent towns and cities show any falling off, or Democratic gains from any causes. Portland clothed its prejudice on the liquor question in the disguise of Greeleyism, and here the prejudice was strong enough to affect the vote materially. In some other towns the same influence was felt, but they were strong enough to shake it off. Notably Bangor, which gallantly held its own in a hard fight, and even went a little better, and Oldtown, were affected by local causes, and are always very uncertain towns, in consequence of the transient nature of their population. Norridgwock, and a few towns in Somerset County, did a very foolish thing to reduce their majority slightly by taking revenge on Gov. Perham because he last Winter didn't veto the bill removing the county-seat to Skowhegan. But this is all, and the victory is so complete these questions do not mar it in the least. Moreover, it must be borne in mind that the vote for Congress is the true test of the Republican strength, and the majority on Congressmen promises to reach fully 17,000.

The Maine Republicans have been jubilant today, and yet have not rejoiced unseemly. They pity rather than despise their deluded friends. They know they have electrified the country, and Speaker Blaine has been showered with congratulations. From all quarters have come dispatches laden with joyous greeting. All his brother State Committee Chairmen respond heartily and take new courage for their own work. Everett in Pennsylvania, Cornell in New-York, Blow in Missouri, Dennison in Maryland, Representatives Roberts, Merriam, and others, have sent warm words of appreciation. As was well said in the canvass, every hundred votes added to the majority in Maine is worth a thousand in the doubtful States for October.

THE GOVERNORSHIP.

Latest Returns Increasing Previous Reports of Perham's Majority—Democratic Maledictions on Their Allies.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 10.—Additional returns, covering 220 towns and cities, out of a total of 412 in the State, give Perham 13,200 majority, or 1,800 more than he had in the entire State last year. The remaining towns will increase this majority to 16,000.

Writhing under their terrible defeat, the Soreheads are already shouting fraud and corruption, at which everybody laughs; for when it is known how elections are conducted in Maine, such a charge becomes silly. There are but one or two places where fraud can be successfully prosecuted, and one of these is Portland, where the Democratic vote was increased beyond all legitimate expectations. The regular Democrats take their defeat good-naturedly, with a quiet malediction upon their Sorehead allies, in whom they have utterly lost faith.

The very latest returns show that the total vote will probably not come up to the estimates before election, but is likely to fall short of 125,000. The Republican gains are well sustained, and Perham's majority will be 16,000 without doubt, while the aggregate majority on Congress is likely to reach 17,000.

The following table shows the vote thus far received by counties:

| | Perham. | Kimball. |
|---|---|---|
| Androscoggin, complete | 4544 | 2917 |
| Aroostook, five towns | 630 | 348 |
| Cumberland, twenty-four towns | 8174 | 7521 |
| Franklin, four towns | 1080 | 629 |
| Hancock, ten towns | 1949 | 1361 |
| Knox, seven towns | 2297 | 2234 |
| Lincoln, thirteen towns | 2146 | 2041 |
| Kennebec, twenty-six towns | 7201 | 4008 |
| Penobscot, twenty-eight towns | 6697 | 4526 |
| Piscataqua, one town | 187 | 81 |
| Oxford, eighteen towns | 2798 | 2874 |
| Sagadahoc, eight towns | 2174 | 1231 |
| Somerset, twenty-two towns | 3800 | 2849 |
| Waldo, seventeen towns | 3714 | 2081 |
| Washington, twenty-six towns | 3385 | 2450 |
| York, twenty-two towns | 6063 | 5050 |
| Total | 55763 | 41691 |

This aggregate of the 245 towns cast a total of 97,454 votes, against 81,184 in the same towns last year. Perham's majority in these towns is 14,072, against 9,886 in the same towns last year, a net gain of 4,216.

There remain to be heard from 167 towns and plantations, which last year cast a vote of 24,718 and gave Gov. Perham a majority of 817; but if these towns show the same relative increase in the vote that the remainder of the State has shown, the total will reach 125,000, and Gov. Perham's majority will slightly exceed 16,000. It can hardly fall below this in any event.

Dispatches to the Associated Press.

LEWISTON, ME., Sept. 10.—The Republican county candidates for Senators and Representatives, in Androscoggin, are elected by large majorities.

The Evening Journal has returns from 258 towns, which give a Republican majority of 14,918. At this ratio it is estimated that the State will give a Republican gain of from 5,000 to 6,000 over last year. It places the majority at 16,000.

CONGRESS.

The Vote Ahead of the State Ticket in Some Districts.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 10.—Hale's district shows better and better, and his majority now promises to approach 3,900 closely. He has 900 majority in Knox, 650 in Washington, and 600 in Hancock Counties. He ran ahead of his ticket in the towns in Knox County, which are in his district.

In the Bangor District the Republican majority will be upward of 4,000. Gen. Hersey beats Emery in Bangor, 873, running 220 ahead of Perham.

Blaine's majority will reach 3,700, a gain of 1,500 on two years ago.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Sagadahoc County Gains Three Members.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 10.—Sagadahoc County elects the Republican county ticket, and gains three members of the Legislature.

Effect of the Election on the Democrats—They Propose that Greeley Withdraw in Favor of O'Conor.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Sept. 10.—The chilling north-easter is blowing from Maine, and the Greeleyites are looking blue. The Democrats suggest that inasmuch as Greeley develops no strength, he should withdraw forthwith in favor of O'Conor.

REJOICING.

The News from Maine in the Country—Salutes Fired.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Sept. 10.—One hundred guns were fired here today in honor of the victory in Maine.

HUDSON, N. Y., Sept. 10.—The Republicans of Hudson are firing a salute in honor of the victory in Maine.

Demonstration in Augusta—Serenade of Speaker Blaine, and His Speech.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 10.—The Republicans of Augusta celebrated their victory to-night by a torch-light procession of lanterns and a serenade to Speaker Blaine. A very large crowd assembled in front of the Speaker's residence, and after a number of airs by the band and a round of cheers for the leader of the victorious Republican host, he was called out, and thanked his friends briefly, as follows:

FELLOW-CITIZENS OF THE TANNER CLUB OF AUGUSTA: I thank you sincerly for the compliment of this call. We no longer meet to stimulate each other to the active duties of the campaign. We are here rather to rejoice over a great victory gained, and to congratulate each other on the parts we severally took in the contest. Your organization has been energetic, efficient and influential, and I tender you the acknowledgments of the Kennebec Republicans for the good work you have done and done so well. The victory you have so materially aided in securing is not a victory for the city merely, nor for this county, district or State only. It is far more than this, gentlemen; it is the opening battle of the great contest that is to decide the Presidency of the nation, and the victory won here is the precursor of victories to come. I do not believe, gentlemen, that a single man in the United States with cool head and sound judgment doubts to-night the re-election of Gen. Grant. If he had doubts yesterday, the vote of Maine settles his mind today. We may, therefore, congratulate ourselves with no small degree of satisfaction on having done our part for the maintenance of good government, for the vindication of the good name of the President of the United States, and for the continuation to the whole people of that era of peace, prosperity and plenty with which our land is so signally blessed. Again thanking you, gentlemen, for the high personal compliment intended and conveyed by this call, I bid you a respectful and cordial good-night.

NEW-YORK.

Walter L. Sessions Nominated for Congress in the Chautauqua District.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 10.—At a Republican Congressional Convention held at this place today, composed of 100 delegates, representing every town in Chautauqua and Cattaraugus Counties, Hon. Walter L. Sessions was nominated by acclamation as a candidate for member of Congress from this district.

Republican Nominations in Ontario County—Guns for Maine.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

CANANDAIGUA, N. Y., Sept. 10.—The Ontario County Republican Convention was held here this afternoon, and intense enthusiasm prevailed. Francis O. Mason, of Geneva, was nominated for County Judge, and Edwin Hicks, of this place, for District-Attorney. Guns are now firing in honor of the nomination and the news from Maine. The voice of Ontario will be outspoken for Grant and Wilson when election day comes.

The Reunion of the One Hundred and Twenty-Seventh New-York Volunteers.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

GREENPORT, Long Island, Sept. 10.—A reunion of the One Hundred and Twenty-seventh Regiment New-York Volunteers, (the Monitors,) took place at Peconic today. A large number of the members arrived at Greenport this morning by the steamer Escort, and left by the Long Island Railroad. The programme consisted of a clam-bake, dinner and address by Stewart L. Woodford in the grove of R. T. Goldsmith. The morning was threatening, but the day proved pleasant. Eight hundred people were present. Gen. Woodford's address was brief, appropriate and happy, and was warmly applauded. The affair proved a great success, and the news from Maine gave zest to the occasion. The regiment is nearly unanimous for Grant.

Large German Republican Meeting in Allentown—Greeleyism "Played Out."

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

ALLENTOWN, Penn., Sept. 10.—Gen. W. G. Monk, of New-York, is speaking to a large German Republican mass-meeting now. The Germans are firm for the re-election of Gen. Grant, and Greeley is "played out" with them in this State.

JAPANESE SHIPPING.

Discriminating Duties on Japanese Vessels Entering Our Ports Removed.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The following is published:

By the President of the United States of America:

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas, Satisfactory information has been received by me from His Majesty, the Emperor of Japan, through an official communication of Mr. Ariuari Mori, His Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires under date of the 2d inst., that no other or higher duties of tonnage or impost are imposed or levied in the ports of the Empire of Japan upon vessels wholly belonging to citizens of the United States, or upon the produce, manufactures or merchandise imported in the same, from the United States or from any foreign country, than are levied on Japanese ships and their cargoes in the same ports under like circumstances.

Now, therefore, I, Ulysses S. Grant, President of the United States of America, by virtue of the authority vested in me by an act of Congress of the twenty-fourth day of May, one thousand eight hundred and twenty-eight, do hereby declare and proclaim that, from and after the said 2d instant, so long as vessels of the United States and their cargoes shall be exempt from discriminating duties as aforesaid, any such duties on Japanese vessels entering the ports of the United States, or on the produce, manufactures or merchandise imported in such vessels shall be discontinued and abolished.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed. Done at the City of Washington the fourth day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two, and of the Independence of the United States the ninety-seventh.

U. S. GRANT.

By the President:
CHARLES HALE, Acting Secretary of State.

Grand Republican Demonstration in Indianapolis—Gen. Browne Addressed Over 10,000 People.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 10.—The greatest demonstration of the campaign in this State occurred in this city to-night, being a grand torch-light procession and mass-meeting, addressed by Gen. Tom Browne, Gov. Fairchild, of Wisconsin, Gen. Coburn and other noted Indianians. At dusk, signs of the pageant were seen in the illumination of nearly all the houses on Washington and Illinois streets, and in the crowded condition of those and other thoroughfares through which the procession was to move. All the trains during the afternoon had brought heavy delegations from neighboring towns, and all came wrought into highest enthusiasm by the glorious tidings from Maine, to meet their rejoicing comrades of the city.

The Democrats, on the other hand, were very glum, their central organ, the Sentinel, not having had a word to say about Maine in the morning, and in the afternoon edition, following the cue of the Greeley journals elsewhere, attempting to cipher a Republican loss out of the magnificent victory. The Democrats were downcast and the Republicans jubilant, and it was early evident that the grand rally of to-night, coming on the heels of the Maine election, was to be a veritable jubilee and a great success.

About 8 o'clock the procession began moving from the east, and soon the streets were blazing with the light of 2,500 torches and innumerable roman candles and sky-rockets. At the Bates House the procession took up Gen. Browne, Gov. Fairchild, Gen. Osborne, Gen. Spooner and other distinguished guests, after which it moved by a circuitous route to the Wigwam.

In meantime an immense crowd had assembled there, and when speakers arrived on the platform they found themselves fronting an audience of 10,000, the multitudes having expanded through open sides of the Wigwam into the adjoining streets. All the time the procession had been moving vast crowds lined the streets, and cheer after cheer for Grant and Wilson and Tom Browne rent the air, scores of bands aroused the marchers and spectators with stirring strains, and apt phrases on the transparencies evoked bursts of applause. The pageant, from starting until arriving at Wigwam, was simply a grand carnival, demonstrating the supreme joy of the Republican hosts of Indiana in the triumph of their brethren in Maine and their confidence in their ability to emulate the glory of the Pine Tree State.

At the Wigwam, Gen. Browne was introduced by Hon. A. G. Porter, who made allusions to the great Maine victory, which were vociferously cheered. Gen. Browne made one of his best arguments, beginning with an eulogy of the Republican Party and its records, its promises redeemed, its magnificent achievements, and went on to detail its need to the country, present and future. The news from Maine was referred to as showing that a majority of the people yet demand the continuance of the Republican Party in power as necessary to the prosperity of the country, and the promise was made that Indiana should not lag behind her sister of the East in the good cause. Gen. Browne spoke nearly two hours, making a most masterly oration, that called forth frequent bursts of applause.

He was followed by Gov. Fairchild, of Wisconsin, who made a brief address of great power, and at a late hour the meeting broke up, with rousing cheers for Grant and Wilson.

The Democrats are making strenuous exertions to surpass the demonstration of to-night by that of to-morrow night, when B. Gratz Brown and Gustavus Koerner speak here. They have scraped the entire country for the faithful, special trains having been engaged to bring crowds from points as distant as Terre Haute, and they will doubtless have a large, but, in view of the Maine returns, spiritless crowd.

Large Republican meetings have been held today at other points in the State, and preparations are complete to make the campaign from now till the election one of the most exciting ever known in this State. E. C.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

The Greeleyites Preparing for a Funeral—Straight-Out Movements in Pennsylvania and Virginia.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Liberal Republicans here, in talking with their friends, do not hesitate to concede that the Maine election has virtually decided the Presidential contest, while among Greeley Democrats there are abundant signs of repentance for accepting Greeley as their candidate. Evidence of the ebb in the Greeley tide, which Republican newspapers have been for some time declaring to be apparent, is perfectly evident here now in the declining energy exhibited at the National or Fenton's Committee Rooms. No Liberal of the least prominence is giving any further personal attention to work, and the air about the rooms is that of an establishment selling out to close the concern. Its chief energies for the last ten days have been directed by the clerk in charge to forging franks used by the Republican Committee, and smuggling bags of Democratic documents in the rooms of the Grant Committee. One of the Capitol employes on the Senate side, and a clerk in one of the Departments were bribed and fully employed in this business for more than a week before discovery.

PENNSYLVANIA.

One of the most active and best known of the old anti-slavery workers in Pennsylvania informs his friends here that, from full information from his former associates in all parts of the State, he is confident that the entire colored vote will be cast for Grant. Some of the Pennsylvanian straightouters have written here that the course they intend to pursue is to ascertain, either by letter or committee, whether Mr. Buckalew will announce publicly that he sympathizes with them in a degree, and if he fails to give them a reply which can justify them in voting for him, they will then support the Labor Reform candidate.

VIRGINIA.

The straightout Democrats of Harris' district, in Virginia, have made a nomination for Congress against him, with a fair chance of carrying the district.

THE PROPOSED RAWLINS' STATUE.

At a meeting of the Commission authorized by Congress, at its last session, to approve the designs for a life-sized bronze statue of Gen. John A. Rawlins, late Secretary of War, it was determined that the Commission would receive designs or models in plaster from any sculptors who chose to compete, the limit of competition will be until Dec. 1. Gen. Babcock, Commissioner of Public Buildings, Edward Clark, Architect of the Capitol Extension, and A. R. Spofford, Librarian of Congress, constitute the Commission.

THE TWO PARTIES.

Eloquent Address of Attorney-General Williams, in Philadelphia.

The Unholy Alliance and Its Supporters—What the Coalition Means—The Tammany Candidate Dissected—The Country's Prosperity Under Grant.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 10.—Attorney-General Williams delivered an address before a large and enthusiastic meeting at the Wigwam, in this city, this evening. The following is the speech in full:

FELLOW-CITIZENS: I am here by the invitation of the Republican State Committee of this State to speak for the Republican Party, and I meet this great audience with confidence and pride in the cause of that party, but with diffidence as to my ability to answer your expectations and its high demands.

Individuals, from various considerations, may change their party relations, but great political organizations, like the Republican and Democratic Parties, do not for light and transient causes change their principles, policies and tendencies.

Horace Greeley is said by his personal friends to be an honest man. Democratic politicians and newspapers, not content with this declaration, apply to him the endearing appellation of "Old Honesty."

Honest men, as a general rule, are supposed to speak and write the truth.

Horace Greeley, within a recent period, has said of the Democratic Party, that it is the rebellion seeking to achieve its essential results, within and through the Union; that the essence of its faith is to "love rum and hate niggers;" that pugilists, blacklegs, thieves, burglars and the devotees of vice and debauchery are its master spirits, and active partisans, and a thousand other things of like nature and effect. Now these descriptions of the Democratic Party are either true or false. Can those who affirm their falsity in the same breath affirm the honesty of their author? Did not the Democratic politicians, by his nomination at Baltimore, ignore the intelligence and integrity of Horace Greeley, and can they now impute to him ignorance or falsehood? Or has he said of their party? Democratic politicians may take either horn of the dilemma they prefer. The choice they make in that respect is their business, not mine. One thing is evident, that if the Democratic Party is what its candidate for the Presidency describes it to be, then it is the duty of all good and patriotic citizens to defeat that candidate, and prevent the ascendency in the country of such a party.

What are we to understand by the nomination of Horace Greeley at Baltimore? Are we to suppose that the Democratic Party has abandoned those principles, theories, and opinons for which it has so long contended, or are we to believe that Horace Greeley, by accepting that nomination, has given the lie to all the professions of a long political life? I know not what we are to understand, but I will venture to say that the coalition of Cincinnati and Baltimore is the most unprincipled fusion that was ever made in this country.

Political organizations have sprung up from time to time during our history, but they have all had, or professed to have, some new and distinct ground upon which to stand. Such were the Anti-Masonic, Anti-Slavery, and Know Nothing parties. But this new-fangled combination, which Greeley and his friends now intend to anything not common to other parties, but is formed, as it is said, to correct some evil practices in the Administration of the Government. Take from the Cincinnati and Baltimore platforms what has been adopted and advocated by the Republican Party and nothing remains but some impliedly censures upon the Administration of President Grant and commonplace claims to superior virtue, with an expression in favor of one term for the Presidency. Stripped of all its high sounding pretensions, this coalition is made by a faction of sore-headed Republicans, with the "Anything-to-beat-Grant" Democrats, to "divide among themselves the sway of power and the spoils of office. Take New-York State as an illustration. Who believes that there would have been any considerable disaffection in the Republican ranks in that State if the distribution of offices had been made by the President to suit Senator Fenton and Greeley, and their friends? I am not aware that Fenton puts his hostility to the President upon any other ground, and Horace Greeley stated expressly in a letter, dated in 1871, that if a little more forbearance and conciliation had been evinced by the appointing power at Washington, things would have been different in that State.

Look at the Senatorial leaders in this bolt. Charles Sumner has made a great speech against Grant. Does he accuse the President of any infidelity to the Republican Party? Does he claim that any new departure is necessary for the sake of the safety of the Republic? No. He gathers up, with grovelling care, the filth that vepal newspapers and pot-house politicians of the Democratic Party have voided upon the President, and decking it with the flowers of his rhetoric, pours it from his high place in the Senate into the ears of a surprised and sorrowful people. Personal malice prompts and pervades it all.

Senator Trumbull frets and scolds about civil service reform, centralization, and the way in which Secretary Boutwell manages the affairs of the Treasury.

Carl Schurz wraps himself in the mantle of self-righteousness, and loftily disdains to associate with the vile and ignoble creatures who support the regular nominations of the Republican Party. I have been wondering for a year or two how the people of the United States managed to get on as well as they did before Providence raised up this immaculate personage to govern and direct our affairs.

Tipton is a preacher turned into a politician, and seems to fight Grant, to use a Western expression, from "pure cussedness."

Whatever pretenses may be made dissatisfaction with the use of the public patronage has been more or less the deception of all these men to the enemies of the Republican Party. When I consider their course I am reminded of an eloquent speech made by Henry Winter Davis, in the House of Representatives, in 1864, in which he described liberty sitting upon the ruins of the Republic and mournfully examining as the States seceded: "I have nursed and brought up children and they have rebelled against me." So the Republican Party, as it sees these men going over to its enemies, may fitly say: "I have nursed and brought up children, and they have rebelled against me." Nursed, fondled, elevated and honored by the Republican Party, these men now turn with the power and influence so acquired to tear and rend the generous bosom that warmed them into life.

Who are the followers of these men? Exceptions there may be, but they are generally those who have some personal grievance. Some of them have wanted nominations or elections by the Republican Party which they have not obtained. Some have been turned out of office by the President or have asked him for appointments which they did not get, and others have had their claims for one thing or another rejected, but to this sorehead crowd are to be added the worn out, played out, spewed out politicians that Greeley's nomination has resurrected from their political graves.

Considerable effort is made to make it appear that the coalition with Greeley as its head, has been produced by some sudden outbreak or popular feeling in defiance of party lines and party considerations, when the fact is, there never was a nomination for the Presidency in the United States about which there was so much wire-pulling and trading as about the nomination of Horace Greeley.

Among the delegates at Baltimore a pamphlet was circulated which stated:

"There is a moral obligation resting upon us to support the Cincinnati nominations. There was a definite understandin between our party and the Liberal Republicans, entered into by representative men of both parties, and with general consent, before the assembling of the Cincinnati Convention, that the nominations there made should receive the combined support of both parties. Good faith requires that the obligation so imposed shall be complied with, unless we have been released by some unfairness practiced toward us by that party, and that cannot be justly affirmed, although it has been captiously asserted."

When the Cincinnati Convention assembled, the thoughts of the people were turned to Adams, Davis and Trumbull, one of whom, it was generally believed, would be the candidate. But the friends of Greeley and Brown traded the supporters of Adams and Davis out of their boots, and Horace Greeley appeared, like Jack-in-the-box, to the disappointment, mortification and disgust of the chief projectors of the Cincinnati movement; and it was said that Carl Schurz, the President of the Convention, was so bitterly disappointed that the lachrymal fluid, from his ever watchful eyes, flowed down his cheeks, narrowed with the great care of saving the Republic from the destructive clutches of Ulysses S. Grant.

Go, then, to Baltimore. When that Convention assembled the question was whether Greeley should be indorsed or regularly nominated. Some argued that it was little more or the silly and weak flies of the Republican Party could be drawn into the Democratic spider-web. But a majority were of the opinion that if he was regularly nominated, the Democratic masses were so held by the shackles of party that they would be bound to give to him their support. Ground, I say, was taken by those who said the rile of the Democratic Party were so enslaved that, though they might loathe and hate the nominee of the Convention, they would be compelled to give to him their votes. Republicans, it was supposed, might bolt the nominee of the regular Convention of the party, though a tried and true man, who represented their principles, was taken; but the Democrats, it was claimed, would not bolt the nomination at Baltimore, though the candidate taken was an inveterate enemy of their party and principles.

Look at their State, District and County Conventions. Notice is given by a committee that the Democratic Convention will be held at a certain time and place. Notice is then given by the Liberals, as they call themselves, of a meeting at the same time and place. When the conventions assemble, the Liberals say to the Democrats: "Give us one-half of the offices, and we will give you the other half and join you in supporting the ticket." But the Democrats who are very hungry, say: "No; we will give you two or three offices and we will take the balance, as we constitute the bulk of the party." And so, after trading and trafficking with each other, they make a mixed ticket, and then go before the people and say: "This has been produced by the irrepressible public virtue and purity of the people." All this truck and dicker business shows a shameless abandonment of principle, a brazen disregard of consistency, and a false-hearted and hypocritical alliance, without parallel in our history; and I say if Horace Greeley is elected under such circumstances, it will do more than anything that has happened to demoralize and debauch the public conscience of the country, and make people think that trickery, and chicanery, and trade, are all there is of politics, and that the talk about political principles is a deception and a fraud.

One of the numerous accusations brought against the Republican Party at this time is that it favors the centralization of power in the General Government, and—Senator Trumbull leads off in this charge. To look at a leaf of history upon this subject may be refreshing. Senator Trumbull was the author and advocate of the first Civil Rights bill, a bill that not only declared as to who should be citizens of the United States, but as to who should buy or hold property or make contracts in the States, and as to who should sue or be witnesses in the Courts of the States, and other similar provisions.

In January, 1866, he introduced a Freedmen's Bureau bill—not the bill that became a law, but one ten times more aggressive upon the rights of the States—that was defeated by President Johnson's veto. By this bill State authorities and laws were substantially suspended as to the millions of colored people in the Southern States, and, for the time being, they were taken under the immediate care and supervision of the General Government.

I call the attention of the country, in answer to Trumbull's hue and cry about centralization and military rule, to the fact that both of these bills contained this section:

"That it shall be lawful for the President of the United States, or such person as he may empower for that purpose, to employ such part of the land or naval forces of the United States, or of the militia, as shall be necessary to prevent the violation and enforce the due execution of this act."

Let it be remembered that both of these bills passed Congress before the adoption of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments, and expressed Senator Trumbull's construction of the old Constitution with the Thirteenth Amendment, and they were not only the first bills of the kind, but they were more sweeping in the rights of the States than any others that have ever passed Congress. I do not complain of these acts, but I do complain that the man who inaugurated this system of legislation, and by his arguments and influence induced the Republican Party to support it, should now denounce that party and demand its destruction because it accepted his views and followed his counsels upon the subject.

Let us, for one moment, analyze this clamor about centralization, and see what ideas it involves. Do the enemies of the Republican Party mean to say that the constitutional amendments extend the jurisdiction of the General Government, and correspondingly reduce the jurisdiction of the States? This is undoubtedly so. That was the object for which the constitutional amendments were passed. To establish the supremacy of the Union and to provide liberty and suffrage and other rights, and to protect citizens everywhere in their enjoyment, was the end to be accomplished by these constitutional amendments. Can the supporters of Horace Greeley now object to the centralizing tendencies of these new constitutional provisions, when both of the platforms upon which they stand commit them fully to their advocacy and support? Do the enemies of the Republican Party mean to say that they will, if they have the power, repeal the laws that have been passed to enforce these amendments? Congress is expressly empowered in each one of them to enforce it by appropriate legislation, and every man of sense knows that constitutional provisions which are intended to protect personal rights cannot enforce themselves, and without legislation would be dead and useless letters upon the statute-book. Take, for example, that amendment which guarantees suffrage to the colored people of the country. Suppose they are deprived of that suffrage, what remedy have they if there is no act providing punishment for such a violation of the Constitution?

Considerable is said about the Kuklux act. When the colored people of the South were enfranchised, disenfranchised, lawless men were formed to deprive them of the right of suffrage by terror and violence, and to that end, numberless whippings, burnings and murders were committed in different localities. To abolish this secret, oath-bound and insurrectionary association of persons, and to prevent the commission of crimes upon them upon persons whose only offense was devotion to the Union or adherence to the Republican Party, this Kuklux act was passed. Does anybody doubt, in the light of the evidence elicited by the late Committee on Southern Outrages, and the evidence produced upon 100 trials in the Courts of the Southern States, including the confessions of great numbers of persons who acknowledged the existence of the Klan any their connection with it, that such an organization does exist, and that its object is to deprive other people of rights guaranteed to them by the Constitution of the United States? All those acts of Congress, which are supposed to indicate the centralization of power, were passed to enforce certain provisions of the Constitution, and protect the constitutional rights of the citizen, and were, therefore, not only within the power, but it was the duty of Congress to enact them. Does Mr. Greeley wish to be understood as saying that if he is elected President he will favor the repeal of these acts of Congress, and so allow crimes to be perpetrated upon citizens of the United States contrary to the provisions of the Constitution, with no interposition on the part of the General Government to prevent or punish them?

Does anybody pretend to attach to this clamor about centralization the idea that Gen. Grant has usurped or attempted to usurp powers conferred upon him by the Constitution and laws of the country? Congress, in its judgment, enacts certain laws, and it is made the duty of the President, and he takes an oath to execute those laws, whatever he may think of their wisdom or expediency. I say with perfect confidence that Gen. Grant has not only not exceeded his power under those laws, but that he has executed them with firmness, but moderation and a proper sense of justice. Horace Greeley, if he is elected President, must either enforce these acts or not, if they are not repealed. If he does not enforce them he will be guilty of the double crime of treachery and perjury, and if he does enforce them he must necessarily do all that Gen. Grant does, and for which he is now bitterly denounced by Greeley's supporters.

Kindred to the charge of military despotism made against the present Administration. Nothing can be more unfounded than this charge, and the only possible countenance it has is derived from the fact that the President during the late civil war was, at one time, in command of the Army. Go to the Executive Mansion in Washington and you find no military display. There is not a sword, or gun, or shoulder-strap, or epaulette to be seen. All is severe plainness and simplicity in the surroundings of the President. Two or three persons who were with Gen. Grant during the war remain with him now as clerks, and they are in no way distinguishable from other citizens; and these, I suppose, constitute the Military Ring, of which so much is said. Gen. Grant has not tried to increase the military power of his Administration in foreign wars, for he has certainly carefully and successfully cultivated peace with all nations. He has endeavored, to the best of his abilities, to preserve peace with all the Indian tribes upon our frontier and avoid those expensive Indian wars in which other Administrations have been involved. No one can deny that the mighty army of men who conquered the rebellion under the command of Grant, under his auspices has melted away, until now the entire army of the United States consists only of thirty thousand men.

To show the falsity of the charge that military power is employed to oppress the people of the Southern States, I will state that I hold in my hand a record, certified by the Secretary of War, which shows that, with the exception of Texas, where there are large bodies of hostile Indians and an extended Mexican frontier to protect, there are only 4,136 men divided among the other ten States that were in rebellion. Virginia has no soldiers within its borders except the ordinary garrison at Fortress Monroe. There are only 266 soldiers in Alabama; there are sixty-three in Arkansas, and 349 in Tennessee. After dividing the whole number of troops by the ten States, you only give to each about 400 troops, including the garrisons, so that less than one-seventh of the army is stationed in those States. Nowhere is military power exercised, except in subordination to the civil authorities. Applications are frequently made by Marshals for troops to assist in the arrest of criminals, or in the other execution of their duties, where they are resisted by forces which they cannot overcome, and these applications are sometimes granted and sometimes denied by the War Department. But to uphold the civil authority is the only way in which soldiers are employed by this Administration.

Reconciliation is one of the watchwords of the Greeley party. Horace Greeley and Charles Sumner appeal for reconciliation. This is one of the wonders of the day. Are there any expressions of hostility or insult which these men have not for years heaped upon the people of the South? I believe, before God, that not one-hundredth part of the ill-feeling between the people of the North and the South which now displayed itself would have existed had it not been for the writings of Horace Greeley and the speeches of Charles Sumner. Can anybody show me any appeal made from the South for amnesty, indemnity or other favors, which he has not strenuously opposed? While I and others in the North and the South who voted for the rights of the States than any others, in the Senate, because he was not pleased with the actions and opinions of the men chosen for that purpose. Now, without any conscious change of views, I find myself classed among the persecutors of the Southern people, while Charles Sumner suddenly appears as the great evangel of peace and reconciliation.

Who are the parties to be reconciled, and what are the existing differences? Considering the thousands who were slain in fighting for the Union, the thousands who were starved in the prison pens of the South, the conspiracies that were formed to destroy Northern people, without discrimination of age or sex, by Greek fire and pestilence, and all the multitudinous crimes committed during and after the war, and then considering that no one has been punished for all these, and I am sure those who have had control of the Government cannot be charged with a harsh and revengeful policy. Such leniency and forbearance, I undertake to say, is without parallel in history. What are, then, the obstacles to reconciliation? Are not the men, women and children of the South, with the exception of a few leaders in the rebellion, who were guilty of the double crime of perjury and treason, and are, therefore, excluded from office, in the enjoyment of all the rights and privileges of American citizens in other parts of the Union. Can anything be done more than has been done to effect reconciliation except to repeal those laws of Congress which give vitality to the constitutional amendments, and repress lawlessness and crime by the turbulent spirits of the South? Is this what the Greeley party propose to do for reconciliation if they obtain power? Can it be truthfully said that the President has said or done anything to prevent perfect reconciliation? While he was in command of the Union Army is it pretended that he ever treated rebel soldiers who fell into his hands with harshness or cruelty? Is it not admitted on all hands that the terms of surrender granted to Lee and his forces were as generous as they could possibly be under the circumstances? Can anybody point to an expression or act of Gen. Grant since he has become President, indicating any ill-will or bitterness of feeling on his part toward the people of the Southern States? On the contrary, has he not expressed an earnest desire to have the passions, animosities and prejudices of war give place to those offices of kindness and fraternal feeling which are requisite to make us a united and happy people?

We are invited to shake hands across the bloody chasm. Doolittle is the man, I believe, who invented this bloody chasm. Elected to the Senate by Republicans, he deserted to the Democratic Party, since which time he has been largely engaged in the bloody chasm business. Andrew Johnson's convention here in 1866 was a part of the bloody chasm programme. With Doolittle to fight for the occasion. He tried to come the bloody-chasm dodge upon the people of Wisconsin a year or two ago as a Democratic candidate for Governor, but they didn't see it. He took his bloody-chasm show into North Carolina, but it didn't pay there, and since he has had to exhibition in Maine. Artemus Ward's "wax figgers" were nothing to the show business as compared to Doolittle's bloody chasm. This is all nonsense. To carry on this humbug campaign it is necessary to have an awful bloody chasm. Grant and the bloody-minded Republicans are to keep it open, but when Horace Greeley is elected, and his innocent lambs and spotless doves who follow him are appointed to office, it will be closed, and we are to have something like those good old Democratic times—when every man could wallop his own nigger, and whisky was only three cents a drink.

There is no bloody or any other sort of chasm between the people of the Northern and Southern States. Are not the Republicans of the North and the South as united and as harmonious in the support of Grant and Wilson as are the Republicans of the East and West? Are not the Democrats of the North and the South as united in supporting Greeley and Brown as are the Democrats of the Eastern and Western States? I know of no chasm except that which separates the Democratic Party from the custom-houses and post-offices of the country. The New-York World of the 22d of August, referring to Greeley, says:

"His Cabinet will necessarily contain large proportion of Democratic advisers. Democrats will be opposed to foreign missions and consulships and to subordinate Administrative offices at home, none of which advantages could be expected from the re-election of Grant."

"That's what's the matter." Grant's refusal to appoint Democrats to office makes the bloody chasm. Greeley, Sumner & Co. have taken the contract to fill up this chasm, but where they are at work there will be plenty of wind, but not much blood. All this Democratic talk about reconciliation ignores the real issues and questions—I think a majority of the people of the South—are perfectly friendly and cordial in their feelings toward the North, but assumes the old pro-slavery ground that the nabobs and aristocrats of that section are the people.

What are Greeley and his supporters doing in the way of reconciliation? Last Saturday, with carpet-bag in hand, went from Wisconsin to Missouri, and before he had been there two years, managed, by professions of extreme radicalism, to be elected to the Senate with other of his Liberal compeers, was in North Carolina during the canvass there, denouncing carpet-baggers, a designation applied to all the northern men who have gone south to live since the war. To inflame the prejudices of the people of the Southern States against Northern men, who go there to live, is a strange way to create harmony and good feeling among all classes of people. I know many bad men from the North have found their way into office in the Southern States since the war. I will go as far as anybody to denounce them. But all the bad men in office there were not born in the North, nor are they all Republicans, nor do they all support President Grant. Five of the Governors of the reconstructed States were born in the South, and five of them are Democrats. Virginia has a Democratic Governor, and the largest public debt of any of the Southern States, and Warmoth, who is the reputed Tweed of the South, is loud for Greeley and reform. Attacks are made upon President Grant as though he was, in some way, responsible for the action of the Southern State Governments. He has control of but few of them more than any other man. People there choose whomsoever they will to fill the State offices, as they do in other places. They have elected Democrats in some of the States, and in others they have elected Republicans. Complaint is made of the President because he allows, as it is said, the carpet-bag State officers of the South to plunder the people, and at the same time he is denounced for interfering too much with Southern affairs. When I took charge of the Department of Justice, the President stated that he preferred all other circumstances being equal, to have men born in the South appointed to office there, and I have acted upon that suggestion. Eight of the sixteen Marshals in the eleven reconstructed States were born in the South, and the same may be said of about an equal number of District-Attorneys. I know that the President is anxious, so far as he can with safety to all classes, to accommodate the wishes of the people of the Southern States in respect to the appointments which he makes there.

When the enemies of the Administration have nothing else to say about it, they charge it with corruption, meaning, I suppose, the misuse of the public money. Let us look this flippant accusation squarely in the face for a moment. More than a dozen investigating committees have been organized to find some ground upon which to sustain this charge, but all of them have miserably failed so far as they were intended to affect the integrity of those who compose the Administration.

Take, for example, the alleged sale of arms to the French. With much affected virtuous indignation this attack was made because the proceeds of those sales were not accounted for. But the charge finally dwindled into an allegation that the Secretary of War did not exercise proper vigilance to keep those arms out of the hands of the French after they were sold to private individuals.

No intelligent person can fail to see that this charge was concocted by Sumner and Schurz with the view of influencing the German vote in the Presidential election. This, like similar attempts, seems to have failed. What can be said of the good taste of an American Senator who goes about the country endeavoring to arouse the Germans here against the Government of the United States, on the ground of some supposed affront to the Government of Germany? I know a little something of our German fellow-citizens. Most of them in my State are among our most reliable Republicans, I know that they are a self-reliant, steady-going people. They are not blown around by every wind of doctrine. No man can lead them by the nose from one party to another at his pleasure. They know that the Republican Party of this country is the party of those free principles and liberal ideas which they cherish, and they know, too, that the French, if anybody, have a right to complain of the course of this country during the Franco-Prussian war, for the sympathies of the Republican Party in that war were undisguisedly on the side of the Germans. Bismarck does not appreciate the efforts of the superserviceable Schurz to vindicate the honor of Germany by impeaching the good faith of the United States, and I presume the German voters in this country will depend quite as much upon the judgment of Bismarck as upon that of Schurz in his spiteful warfare upon the President.

I deny, emphatically, that the Administration of President Grant is a corrupt Administration. I deny that any evidence has been, or can be, produced to prove any such charge. To say that defalcations occur now and then among the thousands who are employed to collect and disburse the revenues of the country, loss in number now than heretofore, is nothing to the point. Defalcations have occurred under all Administrations since the formation of the Government, and always will occur, because it is impossible for any President, in the term of thousands of men whom he appoints to office, to avoid the occasional appointment of a dishonest man. Cashiers and clerks of banks and business houses are constantly committing defalcations in spite of the vigilance of their employers, but that does not prove that those who manage such banks and business houses are chargeable with corruption. When Tammany controlled New-York City its government was corrupt, because all, from the highest to the lowest, shared in the peculations and frauds upon the people; but there is no evidence of ground for saying that as to the administration of the General Government. When it can be made to appear that any official under this Administration has been guilty of embezzlement or fraud, and has not been promptly exposed and prosecuted, and, if possible, punished, some beginning will be made to sustain the charge of corruption. I defy anybody, however, to show any such case.

Some time since the New-York Tribune contained a list of alleged defaulters under this Administration, many of whom were appointed by Andrew Johnson and removed by President Grant. Two of these defalcations were assigned to the Department of Justice, both of which were libelous and false. Neither of the ex-Marshals named was ever charged with any defalcation or indebted to the Government, but the accounts of both were fully and satisfactorily settled, and in one case, squared by the payment of some thousands of dollars to the retiring officer. This is the way in which charges of corruption are manufactured against this Administration.

Suppose Greeley is elected, what reasons have you for believing that the condition of things in respect to this matter will be improved? Greeley has given his adherents to understand, notwithstanding all that is said about civil service reform, that when he is President he will remember those to whom he is indebted for his election, whether they be Democrats or Republicans; and no man doubts that he will, if elected, remove from office every man he can who opposes his election, on that ground, if no other exists, and fill the places so made vacant with his supporters.

Look at the long and hungry procession that will follow him to the White House in view of this result. Foremost among these are the renegade Republicans, the modest men; then follow the Tammeyites, who responded to Greeley's nomination with a hundred guns, the pure men; and lass, but not least, the Democratic politicians, the patriotic men. All these will press their respective claims for office upon the consideration of the new Executive with a Babel-like confusion of tongues. I have heard that the Democratic candidate for the Presidency does not believe in the existence of a hell; but, if all these men go after him for office, in case he is elected, as they assuredly will, he will not only change his mind in respect to the existence of such a place, but he will conclude that its location is not far from the White House in Washington.

I do not wish to speak harshly or offensively of the Democratic candidate for the Presidency. Taking a farmer's view of one who claims to know so much about farming, I think of him as I would of a cow that had given a pailful of milk and then kicked it all over. He has rendered valuable services in advocating the ideas and opinions of other men, but in advancing his own theories of government he has displayed an utter want of judgment, and in some instances, a want of common sense. Year after year he has insisted in the Tribune that the surplus gold in the Treasury should be taken to pay off the interest-bearing indebtedness of the nation, and has strenuously insisted, at the same time, that the Government should resume specie payments. He seems to have discovered a way of eating a cake and keeping it at the same time.

Are we to have, in that event, the vagaries of Mr. Greeley, or the theories of the Democratic Party? Does not every man of intelligence know that any attack upon our public credit would force back upon the markets of this country with wide-spreading disaster hundreds of millions of dollars of our securities held in the Old World? Does anybody doubt that if an attempt was made to destroy our national bank system, which is bitterly assailed by the enemies of the Republican Party, or and other radical change attempted in our financial affairs, that disorder, confusion and ruin would fall upon the monetary affairs of the country? Thousands of men feel themselves competent to speak and write upon the finances. Disputes upon that subject seem to have no end. Practical use, however, is the only way in which the value of any of these theories can be determined. Whatever criticisms may be made upon the financial policy of the present Administration, it is an undeniable fact that its practical effect has been to appreciate our public securities in the money centres of the world, to enhance the value of our currency, and to produce a tendency in all the business affairs of the nation to a safe, permanent and solid basis.

All classes of people are more interested in financial considerations. What difference does it make whether the President spends the dog-days at Long Branch or in Washington if money flows freely through the channels of trade and commerce? What difference does it make whether the President appoints some to, or excludes all his relatives from, office, if capital gains its rightful position and labor receives its just reward? What difference to you does the personnel or family matters of the President make, if peace is in all your borders and pleasantness in all your habitations?

I am speaking to the citizens of a great Commonwealth. Millions of people depend upon her diversified industries. Millions of dollars of capital are invested in those establishments whose fires lighten the darkness of the night, and whose smoke darkens the light of day, and other of her millions are employed in agricultural, commercial and mercantile pursuits. Can anybody see any advantage to these by a change in the National Administration? Isaac Hendrix, who, with carpet-bag in hand, went from Wisconsin to Missouri, and before he had been there two years, managed, by professions of extreme radicalism, to be elected to the Senate with other of his Liberal compeers, was in North Carolina during the canvass there, denouncing carpet-baggers, a designation applied to all the northern men who have gone south to live since the war. To inflame the prejudices of the people of the Southern States against Northern men, who go there to live, is a strange way to create harmony and good feeling among all classes of people. I know many bad men from the North have found their way into office in the Southern States since the war. I will go as far as anybody to denounce them. But all the bad men in office there were not born in the North, nor are they all Republicans, nor do they all support President Grant. Five of the Governors of the reconstructed States were born in the South, and five of them are Democrats. Virginia has a Democratic Governor, and the largest public debt of any of the Southern States, and Warmoth, who is the reputed Tweed of the South, is loud for Greeley and reform. Can anybody see any advantage to these by a change in the National Administration? Isaac Hendrix, business men of Pennsylvania if the present financial policy of the Government, which has already produced such happy results, is not safer and better for all their interests than the impracticable theories and untried experiments of a Greeley administration?

It is quite common for the Coalition Party to say that Grant knows nothing of civil affairs, but Greeley is a great statesman. This is so in respect to Greeley, if a great statesman is necessarily made of a professional politician and an inveterate office-seeker. Year after year he has been associated with vacant offices in New-York, and I believe, has never been elected. Once he was a Representative in Congress, and for some reason left very much ridiculed by his associates. He was also a member of a Constitutional Convention, and because things didn't go to suit him, abandoned his seat like a petulant school-boy and returned home.

You are familiar with his advocacy of secession at the beginning of the war; then with his "On to Richmond" mode of its prosecution; with his ridiculous negotiations for peace, and with other shifting and vacillating views which he urged during the period of the struggle. Are these to be taken as the evidence of his statesmanship? I think I only affirm what is well known to the country when I say that Mr. Greeley is an irrascible, whimsical, erratic and credulous man, sadly devoid of that strength of will, inflexibility of purpose and firmness of character which are necessary to make a good and successful Chief Magistrate.

I am not here to praise President Grant. Some sensitive reformer might say that it would not be in good taste. History, however, has placed his fame beyond the reach of party venom or personal malice. You know what services he has rendered to the country. Considerable effort is now made to depreciate his services upon the ground that his success is not due to his ability, but to his good luck. Let those who are pleased with this assertion make it. Call his victories at Donelson and Shiloh, and Vicksburg and his final triumph at Appomattox, luck if you please, but that is the sort of luck which the nation now desires and needs. More safety will be found to the country in that sort of luck than in all the clogies or isms that Prof. Greeley can bring to the administration of public affairs. What Grant's enemies call good luck I call good sense. Sumner is a great rhetorician, Schurz is a brilliant word-monger, and Greeley writes well for newspapers; but Grant has more good hard sense than all three of them put together. Clear, strong, practical common sense, without show, or parade or noise, is what carried him successfully through the war, and has made him a safe and good President. Let the cry of the opposition be what it may, Grant and good luck will do for the Republicans in this campaign.

I know nothing of your local difficulties here, but I know it is next to impossibility in a great State like this to make party nominations that will please everybody. Partisan warfare is sometimes necessary to preserve and apply those results which are purchased by the blood of heroes upon the battle-field. Personal considerations then dwarf into insignificance. Party integrity then becomes identical with public safety. On the second Tuesday of October Pennsylvania will speak upon the issues of this canvass with a voice that will ring and reverberate through every part of the Republic. Every ballot thrown here upon that day will have a moral power of more consequence to the nation than its legal power can be to the State. New Hampshire, Connecticut, Oregon, North Carolina, Vermont and Maine have won splendid victories, but Pennsylvania, in her State election, is to be the Gettysburg of the Presidential campaign. When the invader was driven from that memorable field, the rebellion received its death-blow, and the success of your Republican State ticket will be to the Greeley coalition an overwhelming and irretrievable defeat. Let Pennsylvania do her whole duty in October, and the decree will go forth as the edict of destiny that the first Tuesday in November will be another Appomattox Victory for Grant and the Republican Party.

THE NATHAN MURDER.

Forrester at Police Head-Quarters—Extraordinary Vindictiveness of the Police—He Will be Taken Today to the Tombs.

Forrester, the suspected murderer of Mr. Benjamin Nathan, still remains in custody at Police Head-quarters, and scarcely anything new has been developed in his case. He is still locked up in the strong room or cell, in which he was ushered when brought to Head-quarters, on Monday night. The manacles with which he was fettered while being brought from Washington have been removed, but extra precautions have been taken to prevent any attempt at escape. The room in which he is confined opens on a corridor, leading from the main hall of the building, on the ground floor, immediately opposite the entrance to the detective office, and is the same from which the notorious Jack Sheppard so adroitly escaped some months ago. The door of the cell is allowed to remain open, and in the doorway is seated a policeman detailed for the special purpose of guarding the prisoner. The heavy iron door at the entrance to the corridor is kept constantly locked, and outside of this door the janitor who has charge of the cells is constantly seated. The window of the room in which Forrester is confined overlooks the back yard of the building, and besides a armed policeman is on guard, while two other policemen constantly patrol the main hallway of the building. The guard in front of the cell door, being the only one with whom Forrester can communicate, is changed at regular intervals, and the same man is not allowed to pass as guard twice, so as to prevent any collusion or undue intimacy between the policeman and the prisoner. These precautions, it is hoped, will effectually deter any attempts on the part of the prisoner to escape or his friends to endeavor to rescue him from the hands of the Police authorities.

From an early hour yesterday the Police Head-quarters building was invaded by a motley crowd of curiosity-seekers intent on obtaining a sight of Forrester, the hon of the Irving, one of the detective force, were pestered by numerous applications from persons of all conditions in life who desired to be allowed to look at Forrester. Nearly all of these applications were peremptorily refused, and only a favored few were allowed to see him. Superintendent Kelso had a lengthy interview with the prisoner yesterday, but what passed at the interview did not transpire. Capt. Irving visited the cell several times during the day, as did also several of the detectives engaged in working up the case. A reporter of the TIMES requested permission to interview the prisoner, but Capt. Irving refused to allow him to enter the cell, and stated that the prisoner did not desire to converse with any reporters. Forrester seems to have arrived at this determination since he left Washington, as when he was locked up here he was very communicative to the members of the Washington Press, and it is reported that he is now acting under the advice of Detective Farley, who prompted him not to allow himself to be interviewed.

During the morning Justice Dowling called at Head-quarters, and had a long interview with Superintendent Kelso, and soon after he had taken his departure Mr. W. F. Howe, the criminal lawyer so celebrity, called on the Superintendent of Police and announced himself as the counsel who had been retained to defend Forrester in his approaching trial. Mr. Howe's capacity as counsel for the prisoner, demanded to see his client, a request which Superintendent Kelso had no alternative but to accede to. In consequence the lawyer was admitted to the room occupied by Forrester, and remained closeted with him for upward of an hour. During a subsequent conversation with Mr. Howe, that gentleman stated that the defense would rely entirely on proving an alibi. He stated that he would be able to prove, to the satisfaction of all concerned, that Forrester was not in this City at the time the murder was committed, and had not been here for some time previous thereto. The lawyer was, of course, confident of securing the release of his client.

During the afternoon, Messrs. Frederick and Washington Nathan, sons of the murdered gentleman; Mr. Cohen, his brother-in-law, and Mr. Julius J. Lyons, a nephew, called on Superintendent Kelso, by appointment, and a long consultation was held, during which Judge Dowling and Capt. Irving, of the Twenty-fifth Precinct, were present, and the mode of procedure was settled upon. The intention of Superintendent Kelso to arraign Forrester before Justice Dowling, at the Tombs Police Court, today, when an examination is expected to follow. The case will be tried before Justice Dowling, for the reason that the original complaint against Forrester was made before him over a year and a half ago. At that time Forrester was believed to be in New-Orleans, and to insure his capture a formal complaint was made before Justice Dowling, charging Forrester with being concerned in the murder of Mr. Nathan. A warrant was issued by the Magistrate and a requisition obtained from Gov. Hoffman. The attempt to arrest him at that time, however, failed, and it was on the requisition granted at that time that Forrester was brought on to this City from Washington. Superintendent Kelso, never oversanguine, does not appear confident that he will be enabled to secure a conviction in this case. The evidence is entirely circumstantial, and perhaps much of it will be thrown out, owing to the strict rules of evidence which prevail in the Courts, but he is satisfied that he can prove to the community at large that Forrester was one of his associates were concerned in the horrible crime. The theory of the prosecution and much of the evidence in the possession of the authorities will be developed during the examination, and the public will then have an opportunity of judging of the guilt or innocence of the notorious criminal now in custody charged with the murder. Should the prosecution fail to secure a conviction, Forrester will most certainly be returned to the authorities of the State of Illinois, for incorrigible men in the Joliet Prison, where he "owes" fourteen years' service, so in either event the community will be benefited by his fortunate capture.

The Contested Will of Noar T. Pike—An Interesting Case.

Surrogate Hutchings was occupied yesterday during the entire day with a hearing in the matter of the contested will of Noar T. Pike, deceased, a case which promises to be one of some considerable interest and importance. Mr. Pike was an old resident of this City, who, in early life, accumulated a handsome property in the tallowing business, which, by judicious investment, at the time of his death, in June last, aged seventy-two years, is said to amount to some $300,000. By the will made April 27, 1872, after bequests of $500 each to the American Bible and American Home Missionary Societies, the income for life of a one-eighth part of the estate is devised to Geo. S. Pike, one of the testator's surviving sons. The balance of the property is then directed should be divided into three portions, and devised share and share alike to another son, a daughter, and the children of another daughter now dead. The executors of the will named in the instrument are Dr. John M. Harlow and Dwight H. Olmstead, of this City, together with Rev. G. C. Lucas, a son-in-law, and his wife, of New-Jersey. The will is contested by the son, Geo. S. Pike, on the ground of insanity, brought about, as alleged, by the improper habits of the deceased. Four witnesses were examined yesterday on the part of the contestant, all of whom testified to the singular and erratic life led by the testator. Most of the evidence taken, however, related to matters of a private nature, and is unfit for publication. The case will be continued today. In support of the will Charles Tracy, Esq., appeared, and in opposition thereto Mr. Chauncey Schaffer.

Railroad Crossing Over Harlem Flats.

The rock and earth which will be excavated in depressing or sinking the tracks of the Harlem Railroad between Fiftieth-street and the Harlem River, also in the construction of the City Underground line between Fiftieth-street and the City Hall, will be used in building a solid embankment or causeway across that portion of the Harlem flats where the tracks are supported by wooden trestle-work.

TUESDAY, Sept. 10—P. M.

113⅛@113⅜ ₱ cent., a fraction firmer than the closing quotations of yesterday. The Cash Gold for prompt delivery was made so scarce and its use from day to day so valuable that a good many parties were disposed to buy for Cash rather than borrow at the bonus demanded in the Gold Room. After the deliveries of the day were over the sales fell back to 113@112⅞@113@113⅛ ₱ cent., the market in the Afternoon closing steady at 113⅛ ₱ cent. The stiffness in the market grows, of course, exclusively out of the immediate scarcity of the Cash Gold. The Customs in this City alone are now absorbing $600,000 per day, or $3,600,000 per week of the moderate sum of Gold Notes now outstanding, while the sales of the Treasury and the disbursements for Gold Interest per week together are less than one-half this sum. To provide Gold to pay Customs without buying or borrowing in the Gold Room, and to meet other maturing Gold contracts, the Importers and Brokers resort to loans of 60 days' Exchange in London, for which they pay the Bankers drawing the Bills a clear commission of 1@2 ₱ cent., and then turn the Bills into Gold at the cheap Exchange of 107⅛@108⅛ ₱ cent. This we deem a proper and timely explanation of the low ruling of Exchange and of the stiff rates of Gold. Other operations are made independent of Exchange on London, by borrowing Gold for 30@60 days and advancing its Currency value to the lender free of Interest, on paying for the accommodation a bonus of ½@1 ₱ cent. for 30 days, and 1@1½ ₱ cent. for 60 days.

Money works with a fair measure of ease at 5@6 ₱ cent. ₱ annum, on call loan to the Brokers, while lenders on time are not willing to make contracts for 30 days on Stock collateral at a less rate than 7 ₱ cent. Currency, or at 60 days at less than 7 ₱ cent. Gold, equal to about 8 ₱ cent. ₱ annum Currency.

The probable or prospective condition of the Money market a month or two hence is the subject of much interest and discussion in Wall-street as connected with the course of the Stock Exchange. There is more concern among the Brokers on this point than among the Merchants. The latter are driving a large Fall trade, without much dependence on Bank Discounts, and we have seldom known a better feeling in trade circles at this season of the year than at present. We also remark a larger amount of foreign balances and Exchange credits ready for employment, and now being pretty freely used, in Wall-street than usual for several years past. The favorable and reasonable effect or influence of this state of things on speculation at the Stock Exchange is qualified, we find on inquiry among the Brokers, by the apprehension that the comparatively low surplus of Gold and Greenbacks in Bank may tempt a certain class of Bearish operators on the Gold Exchange to "lock up" Money from active employment.

The Stock Exchange Markets today were generally firm. The Public funds and the Southern State Bonds were exceptions, both being dull, and the Railway Mortgages, old as well as new, barely steady. The Railroad Stocks and Pacific Mail were active, in demand, and most of the list firm in prices. In Pacific Mail there is more than the usual interest felt, because of the fresh doubts thrown on the news of last week from Japan about the loss of the steam-ship America. There would seem to be some reason to doubt whether any accident of the serious nature reported has actually taken place.

After the late Board the general market closed as follows, compared with Monday night:

New Central Coal Stock is selling among the brokers at 65 ₱ cent. Their production this year is 261,000 tons, being 20 ₱ cent. of the total production of the George's Creek Coal regions. The price is at the profitable point of $7, and is undoubtedly stiffened by the advance in the price of bituminous coal in England.

We notice that the prosperity of the Daily Bulletin has enabled the publishers to add four columns to its news and advertising pages.

The Jefferson Insurance Company has declared a Semi-annual Dividend of five (5) ₱ cent.

Mr. Leopold and a corps of assistants arrived from Washington today, and will commence, to-morrow, the regular annual examination of the Sub-Treasury. As all the Coin has to be counted, it will probably take two or three weeks. The examination of the Sub-Treasuries at San Francisco, St. Louis, Chicago and Cincinnati has been recently completed, but they are of small importance as compared to New-York.

BANKING AND FINANCIAL.

☞ ANNOUNCEMENT FOR PROPOSALS.

OFFICE OF FISK AND HATCH, BANKERS AND FINANCIAL AGENTS OF THE CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY, NEW-YORK, Sept. 9, 1872.

By direction of the President and Directors of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company, we offer for proposals all the remaining balance of their FIRST MORTGAGE SIX PER CENT. GOLD BONDS, now amounting to $2,923,700. Proposals must be accompanied by a deposit of five per cent., and will be received up to and including Monday, the 16th inst., the Directors reserving the right to reject any proposals which may not be for the interests of the Company to accept. The five per cent. deposit will be applied toward the payment, in case of accepted bids, and returned to those whose proposals are not accepted.

The President of the Company, Mr. C. P. HUNTINGTON, is well known as the Vice-President of the CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY, and the same energy displayed in the management of that, corporation, and to which its re

The Board of Directors is composed of probably as strong and able men as were ever associated together to carry out a great enterprise in England.

Among them are the following well-known New-York Merchants:

Messrs. A. A. LOW, WM. H. ASPINWALL,
JONAS G. CLARK, DAVID STEWART,
WM. WHITEWRIGHT.

This road will extend from Richmond to the heart of the great West, at a point on the Ohio River, 813 miles below Pittsburg, where it will at once connect with 12,000 miles of river navigation, and soon by connecting roads with the whole great system of Western railroads, thus giving a short, direct and easy-grade outlet to the millions of people and inexhaustible products of the West to the Atlantic coast, and in return furnishing them with the manufactures of the East, and cheap coal and cheap iron from along the line of the road. Its traffic must be immense. It will cost, fully equipped, upward of $30,000,000. Of the whole length of the line, 427 miles, at this date 380 miles are completed; the grading is nearly done on the remainder, the iron is being rapidly laid, and during November next, it is expected trains will run through to the Ohio River.

The western end, 200 miles, will be nearly all laid with steel rails; the bridging all iron, and the masonry first class in every respect.

The total amount of these bonds is $15,000,000.

The amount sold by us from the date of bringing out the loan is $14,489,600.

The amount now offered by us is made up as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Unsold balance of loan as above | $510,400 |
| Repurchased and received in exchange for debenture bonds of the Company | 2,413,300 |
| | 2,923,700 |
| Leaving balance subject to proposals | $2,923,700 |

Should the proposals exceed this amount, a proper award among the accepted proposals will be made. An opportunity for savings banks, insurance companies, estates and investors to get so good a bond on a great road, at a moderate price, is rarely offered.

The bonds are issued in denominations of $100, $500 and $1,000; either coupon or registered; interest payable May and November, both principal and interest payable in New-York City in United States gold coin. The accrued interest from May 1 will be added to all accepted proposals.

Proposals should be addressed to

FISK & HATCH, Financial Agents,
Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company.

☞ ST. JOSEPH AND DENVER CITY RAILROAD COMPANY'S FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS
Are being absorbed by an increasing demand for them.

Besides being the obligation of a wealthy corporation, composed of men of experience and high-toned commercial integrity, they are secured by a first mortgage on the road, revenues, land grant, franchise and equipments, combined in one mortgage, and are readily negotiable both in the markets of this country and Europe.

A liberal sinking fund provided in the mortgage deed must advance the price upon the closing of the loan. Principal and interest payable in GOLD. Interest at eight (8 p. c.) per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, free of tax. Principal in thirty years. Denominations, $1,000, $500 and $100, Coupons or Registered.

Price 97½ and accrued interest in currency, from Aug. 15, 1872.

Maps, circulars, documents and information furnished.

Trustees—Farmers' Loan and Trust Company of New York.

The diminished quantity of these Bonds for sale, and the increased demand absorbing them, warrant the belief that they will soon be sought for at an advance considerably above the present subscription price at which they can now be had through the principal banks and bankers throughout the country, and from the undersigned, who unhesitatingly recommend them.

COAL—Domestic product has been moderately inquired for. Foreign inactive. We quote Liverpool Gas, $12@$13; House do., $12@$12; Newcastle Gas, $12@$13 ₱ ton of 2,240 lbs.; Anthracite, $3 50@$5 25 ₱ ton for cargoes.

COCOA—Has been in light demand, including Maracaibo at 13½c.@20c.; Caracas, 15c.@16c.; Guayaquil, 19c.@20c.; San Domingo, 7½c.@8c., gold, in bond, ₱ lb.

FISH—There has been a restricted inquiry noted for most kinds at drooping prices. We quote: Dry Cod at $5 75@$6 ₱ cwt.; No. 1 Mackerel at $14@$16; Pickled Herring, $3 50@$5 50; Scaled Herring, 28c.@30c. ₱ box; Round Scale, 22c.@23c. for No. 1 ₱ box.

FLOUR AND MEAL—A very moderate business has been reported in State and Western Flour within the previous range of prices. Shipping extras have been in steady supply at the ruling figures. Sales here have been made since our last of 10,275 bbls., including inferior to choice Superfine State and Western at $4 75@$6 45; inferior to very good Extra at $7 00@$7 50; very good to fancy at $7 50@$8; poor to good shipping brands round-hoop Ohio at $6 70@$7 40; poor to good shipping brands sales were reported at $7 30@$8, included $7 50@$7 60 for September delivery, last half of September delivery, at $7 25 ₱ bbl. We quote:

| Southern Flour has been quiet within the former range. Sales have been reported since our last of 1,156 bbls. at $6 85@$8 ₱ bbl. for Baltimore to very good, and $6 20@$12 50 for very good to very choice Extras, at $4 10@$5 20 ₱ bbl.; sales, 450 bbls., chiefly at $5@$5 20 ₱ bbl. Corn-meal has been in moderate demand at $3 25@$3 75 for Yellow and White Western; the reported sales reach 426 bbls. | |

FRUIT—Raisins have been quite moderately sought after at about former rates; sales, 2,350 boxes Layer, in lots, chiefly at $2 10; 1,000 boxes Sultana on private terms. Currants have been quiet and weak in price; sales, 75 casks at 6c.@6¼c. ₱ lb. Of Sardines, 200 cases sold on private terms. Of Prunes, gold, having been current rate for quarter boxes. Other articles quiet. We quote: Layer Raisins at $2 10 ₱ box; Valencia Raisins, 10¼c.; Currants, 6c.@6½c.; Almonds, 17c.@20c.; Figs, 10c.@12c. ₱ lb.; Canton Ginger, $2@$3 50 ₱ case.

GRAIN—Spring Wheat has been quite active, shippers operating with freedom, chiefly in new stock, which constituted the bulk of the offerings, and prices have been quoted firmer for prime new No. 2 Milwaukee, later transactions, however, values were not sustained, and the market closed rather heavily, particularly for the lower grades of Spring, which were in most liberal supply. Winter Wheat has been in comparatively slack demand, at the ruling quotations, which indicated no material changes in the instance of really desirable samples. Prime old Red and Amber Stock was offered sparingly. Sales have been reported since our last of 183,000 bushels, at $1 64 for prime new No. 2 Milwaukee Spring, here; $1 60 for strictly prime do., to arrive next week; $1 65 for new and old Chicago Spring; $1 58@$1 60 for straight new No. 2 Spring, afloat; $1 60@$1 62½ for prime new No. 2 Milwaukee Spring, afloat; $1 47@$1 65 for inferior to prime Western (White); $1 60@$1 70 for new Amber do.; $1 70@$1 75 for Red Amber do. in new No. 2; $1 65 for White do., and $1 85 for new White Southern. Corn has been quoted a shade lower, on more liberal offerings, leading to an active trade, chiefly shipment, the market closing firmly on the basis of 68c. for prime sailing grades of Mixed Western. Sales have been reported since our last of 420,000 bushels at 63c. @63½c. for good to prime sailing; 64c. for strictly prime, afloat; 64c

THE NEW-YORK TIMES.
New-York City.

We hope that our City readers will go in large numbers to the meeting at Cooper Institute to-night. They will hear an address well worthy of attention from Gov. JEWELL, of Connecticut, and they will learn the truth about some wicked slanders which have been put in circulation concerning the President. Gov. JEWELL'S speeches are always extremely interesting, and to-night he will have something to say which all our citizens would do well to listen to. The meeting will also be addressed by Gen. THOMAS VAN BUREN, and we once more invite our Republican friends to give the speakers an audience worthy of the cause.

It is now universally admitted that the Greeleyite ticket nominated for this State is the weakest and the worst ever submitted to the people. The World and Tribune invite people to support Mr. KERNAN on grounds of sectarian bigotry, but Catholics have probably by this time seen enough of the folly of allowing the corrupt section of politicians to claim their support as if of right. The candidate for Lieutenant-Governor is chiefly notorious for his connection with the lobby at Albany. He was the most active lobbyist seen last Winter at Albany, and on the last day of the session he pushed through a bill which, if it had become a law, would have been a great outrage upon the people of Niagara and Erie Counties. DEPEW is a fair sample of a "Liberal Reformer," but he is one of the last men in the world who ought to be put in an important official position. We hope the people are not ready to elect lobbyists as Lieutenant-Governors. A pretty "reform" we should have with CHAUNCEY DEPEW in that post.

The pike is a voracious fish, and a family of that name seems to take after it. In the Fifth District, in Maine, a PIKE fought against HALE, and got the worst of it. The special interest which GREELEY, the patron of JOSHUA F. BAILEY, took in PIKE, is thus explained in yesterday's Evening Post:

"PIKE was the Greeley nominee; a brother of his was for years the Washington correspondent of the Tribune; through Tribune influence he was sent Minister to the Hague; and the PIKES, and the friends of the PIKES, owe a special allegiance to GREELEY. All which made the Pike nomination peculiarly significant; the most sanguine hopes were indulged in regard to it, and it was made a matter of pride with the Pike faction that he should make great inroads on the Republican vote. The disappointment is all the more bitter that here, where they expected most to dazzle, they are most forlorn; that where they expected to come out best they come out worst. HALE'S majority is somewhere from 2,000 to 3,500 over PIKE, and this is 600 to 1,500 greater than the Republican majority for Congressman in 1868. Such a fact is utterly disheartening; for it is clear that where Greeleyism made special claims in that district to the good will of the people, there the people have taken the most special pains to inflict upon it the most significant punishment."

FENTON'S Professor of Journalism comes out strong in the gloom of defeat. His double-leaded scream on the Maine election was a model of style, as well as a beautiful specimen of his well-known conscientious accuracy. "All the Grant nominees for Congress appear to be re-elected," (only three out of the five candidates were renominated, and the election of all five was perfectly assured by 10½ P. M. on Monday.) "Speaker BLAINE coming tolerably near to his old majority;" (BLAINE received 2,320 majority in 1870, and was known at 11 P. M. to have received at least 3,600 this year—his majority will probably be near 3,800;) "and CHANDLER'S son-in-law squeezing through over PIKE." (This refers to HALE, who had only 1,210 majority in 1870, and more than double that this year—the "squeezing" seems to have been applied to PIKE.)

We publish, this morning, a speech of Attorney-General WILLIAMS, which will repay reading. It is a frank and sensible review of the situation, and comprehensive, and its style will be found more than usually attractive.

In the list of Vice-Presidents of the proposed Greeley mass-meeting, we observe the names of CHARLES E. LOEW and MATTHEW T. BRENNAN. If these are put forward as samples of "reformed" Tammany, it is pretty obvious that there is enough of old leaven in the concern to leaven the whole lump. When the lamented County Auditor, WATSON, met his untimely fate, County Clerk LOEW was good enough to keep watch and ward over the dying man, lest he should blab out anything which would seriously compromise TWEED and the other swindlers for whom WATSON had acted. WATSON carried with him into another world a scandalous record of forgery and fraud, which has been but partially disclosed even yet, and he did this, thanks to the sleepless watchfulness of "CHARLEY" LOEW, who thereby earned a very tangible claim upon the gratitude of the Ring. When the County Clerk tells all he knows about WATSON, as he may one day be compelled to do, he may be able to take a fresh start as a "Reformer." As for BRENNAN, he is the representative of one of the most corrupt gangs in this City, and when we get an honest man into the office he has so long disgraced, there will be disclosed such a record of fraud as will fairly offset the performances of his friend and ally, WM. M. TWEED.

The following is one of those things "which no fellow can find out." It is from Mr. GREELEY'S organ of yesterday, and is supposed to refer to the Maine election:

"The resources of a treasury filled by taxing every civil official, at home and abroad, the influence of a Post-office Department whose head took the field to command in person, the power of a twenty-four hundred mile coast dotted with Custom-houses, the votes of the Kittery Navy-yard, and the resources of a political organization well-nigh perfect, coupled with a proscriptive pressure never equaled, have thus fallen over 4,000 short of the majority of four years ago."

Will any of our readers undertake to tell us, from the above, what it is that has "fallen short" "of the majority of four years ago?" But the Professor grows more obscure as he progresses. Here is what comes of it when he drops into figures:

"Well, five per cent. on the last Presidential vote shifts the States of Pennsylvania, Indiana, Connecticut, California and Alabama from the Grant column to its opposite. Add these to the States already Democratic, and we have 155 out of the 184 electoral votes necessary to a choice. But Missouri is clearly ours, and her fifteen votes leave but fourteen more to make up, after the Grant rout in October, out of New-Hampshire, Rhode Island, Arkansas, North Carolina, Ohio, Illinois, and others scarcely less probable. yours."

There was similar maundering in the news columns of the Tribune. The only grains of sense discoverable were in a report of the conditions of things at GUS. SCHELL'S headquarters, where, it was said, "few seemed anxious to know the details." No wonder!

About the Tweed and Greeley tobacco concern, the "organ" is silent as an oyster. It has also dropped its hysterical appeals to stop that franking business, ever since it was discovered to be a large operator in the "conspiracy to swindle the Government." Next to the difficulty of getting the Tribune to contradict a disproved slander of its own manufacture, is the difficulty of getting it to admit that there is such a thing as rascality to be found among the Greeley gang. From that sweet Pecksniffian saint, DOOLITTLE, all the way up to the Tammany candidate himself, there is no act of meanness, duplicity, and fraud in the record of the Greeleyites for which the Tribune has not either some meaningless periphrases, or, failing that, an obstinate silence. This is what it is "not to be an organ."

The Victory in Maine.

That the election in Maine is fatal to Mr. GREELEY'S success, anyone can see who cares to watch the attempts of the Greeleyite papers to explain away the triumph of Monday and to get away from the fact. But the significance of the the victory cannot be so easily disposed of. Greeleyism has taken no hold whatever on the people of this country. It has thus far failed to carry a single State. It was tried on the Democrats in North Carolina and cost the party the State. It has been tried in Maine and Vermont, and does not make a perceptible impression on the solid strength of the genuine Republicans.

It is useless to make a parade of arithmetical jugglery, or to talk balderdash about "percentages" and "transfers of votes." The simplest person can see that there is an inherent weakness in the Democratic candidate which no amount of figuring will dispel. It would be very easy to show that the desperate calculating and cross-calculating all proceeds on a radically false principle. But what is the use? It is only resorted to by the Greeley journals to keep up the courage of the rag-tag and bob-tail Republicans, and the hungry Democrats who can only be held by the cohesive power of prospective public plunder; and their courage is gone or going beyond hope of revival.

If we believed that any sensible man was deceived by the twaddle about "percentage" of gains, we could easily show that in the towns of Maine from which the vote has been received up to this time the majority is, relatively to the vote cast, fully as large as in 1868. The Evening Post points out that not more than one thousand votes have been changed; but a careful examination of the returns will show that no votes have been lost by the Republicans that have not been made up by Democratic changes. A glance at the Congressional vote will illustrate this very plainly. Speaker BLAINE, for instance, leads the President's vote of 1868.

Nothing could establish the crushing significance of our splendid victory more clearly than the quibbles set up by the Greeleyites to break its force. We are told that nothing better was expected. But their own candidate, KIMBALL, is on record with a letter published in the Tribune on the morning of the election confessing that something a great deal better was expected. He declared that the Democrats could cut down the majority of 1868 twelve thousand, which would leave it only seven thousand, and that this was all the Republicans really hoped to get. Nay more, the Tribune itself, before it went into the World business of manipulating figures, admitted that the vote this year must be compared with that cast in 1871. Thus, it said on the 28th of August: "A victory for us, or even a large reduction of last year's Administration majority, will not only encourage our party," &c. And again: "The Grant managers are keenly alive to this fact, and are expending every effort to keep up their vote to the figures of 1871." We have not only secured the vote of 1871, but gone upward of five thousand better. Judged by the Tribune's own test, proposed by itself, the election on Monday is an irreparable disaster for the Greeleyites.

Again we are told, and that by the personal organ of Mr. GREELEY, that "the Cincinnati movement is a revolution, and revolutions do not begin in populations like that of Maine." It is perfectly plain that this "revolution" has not begun there; but where in the name of common sense has it begun? Possibly in North Carolina, but if so it palpably violated the old saw about revolutions, and has gone backward. But if we waive North Carolina, and agree that the revolution has not begun at all, why should it not "begin in populations like that of Maine?" GREELEY was a professed Republican. He was put up to catch Republican votes. Maine is full to overflowing with Republicans who in times past have read the Tribune, and held its editor in profound respect. Why does he not work well, as a decoy, among them? If his organ will answer that question frankly, it will save its Democratic friends a great deal of money and hard work, which they are now spending on a hopeless canvass.

Mr. GREELEY is repudiated in Maine, for the same reason he is rejected the country over by the Republican Party—namely, because he has betrayed its principles. Our party early learned to use men only to promote what it deemed sound political ends. It has made and unmade in this process many reputations. Mr. GREELEY was trusted and honored when he was thought to be faithful, but when he turns toward the enemy nobody follows him. All the hullaballoo about his strength has been sheer brag, of which the unerring test of the ballot-box has proved the hollowness.

From this day on to November, the Republican Party may march with the confidence of victory. The struggle will not be relaxed. Everything that can honorably be done to make the triumph in November not only sure, but overwhelming, will be done. But there is no longer room for doubt that the confidence of the people in the party is unshaken, and that the advance posts of freedom and equality which have been so laboriously secured in these last twelve years, are not now to be abandoned to the enemy.

The Sherman Astronomical Expedition.

Our atmosphere is a great nuisance to astronomers, and, if they could live without breathing, they would vote unanimously to have it pumped off and cleared out of the way of their telescopes. It annoys them in various ways. By its refraction it makes the apparent positions of the stars differ from the true, so that nearly every astronomical observation requires a correction on this account. Ordinarily its agitation by currents of varying temperature is such as to make the star-images twitch and squirm like living creatures, so blurring and distorting the forms of things that, according to HERSCHEL, not more than about one hundred hours in a whole year are available for observation with the most powerful instruments. It is not perfectly transparent itself, but, what is worse, it is always more or less loaded with foreign matters, minute droplets of water, crystals of salt, living germs, and dust of various kinds, which cut off light and obstruct vision. Finally, the reflective power of this dust-laden atmosphere is such that every bright object is surrounded by a halo of illuminated air, which masks more or less completely every faint object near it, and is especially troublesome in spectroscopic work. Solar eclipses owe their principal importance simply to the fact that, on these occasions, there are a few moments during which the air around the observer is shaded by the moon, and then the sun's surroundings can be examined free from this annoying halo.

Now, although these atmospheric difficulties cannot be wholly obviated, it has always, of course, been evident that they might be lessened by removing the observer and his instrument from the sea-level to a great elevation, for then nothing below him can do him any mischief. At a height of only 7,500 feet, one-fourth, and that by all odds the worst fourth of the atmosphere, is thus rendered harmless; at 10,500 feet, one-third, and at 18,000 feet, one-half. Nothing but actual experiment, however, could determine the amount of advantage thus attainable by elevation, and until very recently it has been very difficult to mount a powerful instrument under the necessary conditions.

The first experiment of the sort was made in 1856, when Prof. SMYTH, the present Astronomer Royal for Scotland, carried a large telescope to the Peak of Teneriffe. He remained a few weeks, and obtained, at an elevation of nearly nine thousand feet, a series of observations which conclusively demonstrated a difference of at least fifty per cent. between the performance of a given instrument in England and on the peak. A few observations made in India and Persia, at heights of from six thousand to eight thousand feet, confirm his results. The Union Pacific Railway, which at one point attains an elevation of nearly 8,300 feet, affords remarkable facilities for an experiment of this kind in our own country; and during the past Summer, Sherman, the highest station, has been occupied for astronomical purposes by a party of the United States Coast Survey, a special appropriation of two thousand dollars having been made by Congress for this object. The party was under the charge of Gen. R. D. CUTTS, one of the most experienced and accomplished assistants upon the survey, and was thoroughly equipped, not only with the usual instruments for geodetic and astronomical determinations, but with magnetic, photographic, and meteorological apparatus.

Associated with the party was Prof. YOUNG, of Dartmouth College, who brought with him the fine telescope of nine and four-tenths inches in diameter and twelve feet focal length, belonging to that institution. This instrument, though by no means comparable with the monster equatorials of the Chicago and Cambridge Observatories, or even with that of Mr. RUTHERFORD, in this City, is one of great power and exquisite perfection, one of the best and most recent productions of CLARK, the prince of telescope-makers, and far superior to anything hitherto mounted at such an elevation. It was provided, of course, with all the usual accessories, and particularly with a very perfect and powerful spectroscope, which is the Professor's special pet. Although the weather was unfavorable during a considerable portion of the time, results of great value were obtained, as will be evident when the reports come to be published. The series of hourly meteorological observations alone would well repay the whole expense of the expedition, as the station, from its position on the backbone of the continent, is one of the highest scientific importance.

The telescopic results confirm in the most emphatic manner the work of Prof. SMYTH at Teneriffe, and show that his success depended mainly, if not solely, upon the simple elevation of his station of observation, and not, as some have concluded, upon the fact that it was located on a small island. Clear nights at Sherman were rare, it is true, the season, if we may credit the residents, having been an unusual one in this respect. An immense body of snow fell in this country last Winter, and according to Mr. GARDNER, the topographer of KING'S geological survey, the snow on the 1st of July lay eight feet deep over the whole plateau from which rise the Medicine Bow Mountains, some fifty miles west of Sherman. Probably the cloudiness, which is said to have been unusual, and was certainly very annoying, was largely due to these snow piles.

But there were some clear nights, averaging about one in four, and when it was clear the spectacle was magnificent; it is impossible to speak of it without enthusiasm. To the naked eye thousands of stars appeared, invisible at lower levels; stars marked of the seventh magnitude upon the maps of AYELANDER and PROCTOR. The powers of the telescope were so greatly increased that, upon a careful examination of numerous test objects, it was concluded that the Dartmouth telescope, at Sherman, would show everything that can be seen by a twelve-inch glass in New-England. Prof. YOUNG, however, naturally paid most attention to spectroscopic work, and with notable success.

The solar prominences, as they are called, the flames and clouds of incandescent hydrogen, which surround the disc of the sun, were seen far more clearly and beautifully than ever before, and their wonderful transformations and motions were carefully watched and studied under the new conditions. The spectra of the solar spots were examined, and especial pains were taken with the spectrum of the chromosphere, in which 165 new bright lines were discovered—the total number previously known being 103. The advantage of the rarer atmosphere showed itself especially at the purple end of the spectrum, for, while there was a manifest gain in the red, yellow and green portions, the most important of the new lines discovered lie in the extreme violet, which at the sea-level is hardly visible.

Altogether, the obvious conclusion to be drawn from the whole experiment is that no time ought to be lost in establishing a powerful telescope, with all the necessary appliances, at some elevated point in our Western country. Probably the best station will be found further west than Sherman—perhaps at some point near Salt Lake City, or in the Sierra Nevada mining regions, where a greater proportion of fine weather may reasonably be expected; but, for the credit of American science, it ought to be found and occupied soon, either by private enterprise or by Government.

It would seem well worth considering whether our own Naval Observatory, in which all American men of science take so just a pride, would not do well to imitate the example of the French National Observatory, which removed its great Foucault reflector, of forty inches aperture, from Paris to a succursale, or branch establishment, at Marseilles, for the sake of the clear sky and better weather of the Mediterranean basin. There may be controlling reasons to the contrary, but it certainly seems as if the magnificent telescope of twenty-six inches aperture, now building for the observatory by Clark, and which, when finished, will be without a rival in the world, ought to have every advantage of position that the whole broad land can afford.

Sands and His Young Man.

Mr. NATHANIEL SANDS is not only a financier, but an educator. His labors have heretofore been divided between the public treasury and the public schools. Having latterly mastered the Tweed system of finance, and thereby made himself not only eminent, but also comfortable as to the condition of his pockets, he now seeks fame as a writer upon educational topics. In literature as well as in finance, SANDS fully recognizes the value of co-operation. He joined himself with Tweed to open the treasury, and he unites himself in authorship with a young man comparatively familiar with the grammar and the spelling-book. Curiously enough, the lack of honesty which some persons claimed was characteristic of SANDS' financial operations is also visible in his literary exploits. That he should have employed a young man to write a pamphlet on education was certainly not regarded as a crime, especially by those who reflected upon what the public had escaped by SANDS' philanthropic avoidance of personal assaults upon the language; but that he should have published—as he did—this young man's pamphlet with the name of NATHANIEL SANDS as the author displayed upon its title-page, was not precisely an honest or an honorable proceeding.

It seems that SANDS' young man is still in his literary service, for there has recently appeared, in a weekly journal published in this City, a lecture on "The Law of Mental Growth and the Philosophy of the Accretion of Mind, by NATHANIEL SANDS." Had SANDS explained the law of pecuniary growth, as known to himself and his friend TWEED, or the philosophy of the accretion of SANDS' fortune in connection with City bonds, it would have proved more interesting to the average reader than his educational lecture possibly can be. Still, the writings of SANDS' young man are not altogether without interest. That unfortunate scribe is compelled to clothe the ideas of SANDS in intelligible language, and the way in which he struggles with the tremendous task cannot fail to arouse the sympathies of his readers.

So far as the result achieved by SANDS' young man is intelligible, it appears that SANDS' theory of education is what may be termed "Cannibal Pantheism." He informs us that there is a universal mind in nature—which is the pantheistic side of his theory—and that as "body feeds upon body," after the pleasant custom of the Fijians, so mind must feed upon the universal mind of nature—which is where SANDS displays his cannibal convictions. In enforcing these views, he tells us that "mind is imbedded in mind," and that "when the mind is so imbedded, it must be cultivated as we cultivate the seed." Precisely how this cultivating process is to be carried on, SANDS' young man does not inform us, but we may suppose that hereafter SANDS will visit the public schools, imbed each pupil's mind in the universal mind of nature, and then proceed to sprinkle it with water and patent fertilizers after the most approved agricultural method. He admits that "the human mind is an instrument far more delicate and complicated than any musical mechanism or the most finely-constructed chronometer," and we may concede that a man who has made this astounding and wholly original discovery can be trusted to manage this delicate instrument in the right way. And yet SANDS does not claim to have been as successful as an educator as he has been as a financier. "We have learned much, it is true, and accomplished much," says SANDS, but, on the other hand, "our best efforts have been one-sided, incomplete, and often injurious." Nevertheless, this need not distress him. Were not his raids upon the City Treasury "one-sided" and unusually "injurious" to the public? And yet they contributed materially to the comfort and prosperity of SANDS, even to the extent of at least seventy thousand dollars. Let us grant that SANDS knows rather less about the human mind than he does about grammar. Still, he may continue to make money by meddling in the public schools. He should remember his theory of finance, as ably set forth in this very lecture by his young man. "All nature feeds upon itself," remarks the young man; "it is organized on the basis of one vast exchange." Cannot SANDS, the educator, find some one to "feed upon," or some one with whom to organize a judicious system of "exchange," even though he can no longer feed upon the City Treasury or "exchange" the "Citizens' Association" and his reputation as an honest man for a fat office under TWEED? Surely, to speak after the grammatical manner of SANDS, what SANDS "done" once he can do again, and this reflection should sustain and encourage him when he pays his young man for writing a lecture "by NATHANIEL SANDS," and asks himself whether the money so disbursed is an unprofitable investment.

Insane Murderers.

The decision rendered by Judge LEONARD on Monday in the case of JAMES BURNS will commend itself, we venture to predict, not less to the legal mind than to the common sense of the community. BURNS was tried in July for a brutal and unprovoked murder, and put in that familiar defense, on which, it seems, the murderer may nowadays rely the most confidently, the more brutal and unprovoked his crime. On the ground of insanity BURNS was acquitted of the charge of murder, but very properly committed to the State Lunatic Asylum, at Utica, "there to be detained in safe keeping until duly discharged according to law." He had been there but little over a month when such a discharge was applied for by his counsel. The man who had been insane in July suddenly became sane in August, and a writ of habeas corpus was resorted to for his release.

Judge LEONARD'S decision on this application seems as satisfactory, in a legal point of view, as it certainly is in point of justice and morality. The statute under which criminals may be sent to a lunatic asylum, and which provides for the discharge of ordinary insane patients on a certificate of recovery, expressly excepts such criminal inmates from the operation of that provision. The general Habeas Corpus act, moreover, denies the writ to a prisoner confined on sentence of a Court of competent jurisdiction. These are the general grounds on which Justice LEONARD pronounces against the application on behalf of BURNS, and they are undoubtedly correctly taken. And on this authoritative interpretation of the law, there is rendered a real and substantial service to the cause of public morality. The administration of justice would become a farce, and the murder penalty a dead letter, if every assassin could escape the gallows on the plea of insanity, only to be released a month later on a writ of habeas corpus. To parody Dr. JOHNSON'S definition of patriotism, insanity has become the last refuge of ruffians, and, in the hands of a certain class of unscrupulous lawyers, is found as efficient a shield of villainy as an alibi in the old days of English criminal jurisprudence. The leaning of modern juries is to the side of mercy, and the slightest evidence of irresponsibility is eagerly grasped at as a relief from the necessity of inflicting the death penalty. But public safety requires that insane persons should be sequestered from their fellow-men, and especially those whose mental infirmity has taken the form of homicidal mania should be subjected to a long and careful probation before they are again admitted to society. A man who, in a fit of sudden insanity, can kill his best friend, it is clearly not safe to leave at large. He may be in his sound mind the day after the deed—he may never, during his life, have a return of the mania—but he may also have another fit the day after his release.

For cases of this nature, the law perhaps hardly provides with sufficient minuteness. Leaving out of view for a moment the instance where insanity is successfully feigned to elude punishment, it may very well happen that a homicide, insane at the time of the commission of the act, and during the trial, recovers his senses within a short period after his incarceration. The law then finds itself in this dilemma. It is the very refinement of cruelty to confine a sane man with the insane; it is unjust to transfer to the State Prison one who was irresponsible at the time of committing the crime; it is yet unsafe to turn loose upon the community a person who may at any moment become a murderous maniac. Why, then, should there not be for this class of detenus a third place of confinement, neither a prison nor an asylum, where they may be kept, suffering perhaps no other indignity or hardship than the deprivation of liberty until it has been clearly ascertained either that they are confirmed monomaniacs, or secure against the probability of a relapse? Where the plea of insanity was genuine, such detention would be a hardship, perhaps, but necessarily inflicted by society in self-defense, and at all events much less irksome than the asylum. Where the plea was feigned, the confinement would be some punishment—inadequate, it is true, but still sufficient to make the "insanity dodge" less attractive than at present.

Something, at least, should be done BURNS is only one of three or four murderers, all acquitted, within a short time, on the ground of insanity—all now applying for discharge from the Lunatic Asylum on the ground that they are sane. It is wrong to keep them there if they are sane; it is wrong to permit them to go unpunished if they were sane at the period of the crime; it is dangerous, in any event, to set them at large. Judge LEONARD'S decision is a temporary help; but the problem—no easy one—yet remains to be solved.

New Incentives to Emigration.

Bad as the present outlook is for the British workman and agricultural laborer, that which is most menacing in his future may not improbably, to numbers at least of his class, turn out the choicest of blessings. Beef, bread and coal promise to be for him this Winter dear beyond precedent; and the likelihood, or indeed certainty, suggests with triple force the wisdom of placing himself and his family in a region where all these necessaries are cheap. Thus, many who have lacked enterprise, or courage, for such a step are seriously thinking of emigrating this Autumn to the United States, Canada or Australia; and, as usual, this country is likely to get the lion's share of new settlers. The proverbial ill wind that blows no one good, will thus not be found in the otherwise lamentable scarcity in question; for the wealth and resources of the United States are certain to be greatly increased both by the increased demand for our cereals and other provisions, and by a new and swelling tide of valuable immigration.

We mentioned some time ago the judicious example set by Mr. GEORGE ROGERS, of Dorsetshire, who, in behalf of a great number of humble friends, came out to America to look at Western lands, and make selections for them after a thorough personal examination. Two thousand English colonists are to settle on the lands thus chosen and bought by Mr. ROGERS in the far North-west; and, as he has already returned home with his title-deeds, and the intending emigrants have been preparing for their departure during his whole absence, it is expected they will cross the Atlantic immediately. It is certainly far better that these two thousand persons should be raising cheap food to send home to their ill-fed countrymen, than to remain starving and grumbling in Dorsetshire; and the diminution of a close-packed population has, of course, its economic and social advantage in other ways. It is plain that the people of Great Britain would be immensely relieved, at this gloomy time when the average workman is so "dour" and hopeless over his immediate future, if the colony of Mr. ROGERS could be followed by many more like it. We are told that other plans like that of Mr. ROGERS are under consideration, and since it is so manifestly to the immediate interest of our great railways, as well as to the remoter interest of the whole country, to settle the vast trans-Mississippi plains, such projects are pretty sure to be encouraged here.

It is satisfactory to reflect that a calamity not to be thought of without grief—the stinting in actual, needful food of numbers of our fellow beings—will not be unattended with palliation. Want is the parent of emigration, and though a harsh and bitter incentive, many who yield to it will live to bless the day the trial was given them to bear. Hundreds and thousands of half-starved English artisans and laborers are likely in ten years to be happy and well-to-do citizens in Colorado, Dakota, Utah and Nevada, and so, as with the case of the pilgrims of the Mayflower, what seems unmitigated evil may blossom into plenteous and lasting benefit.

MINOR TOPICS.

On Monday there was a large fire in Chrystie-street, in the vicinity of the rails of the Second, Third and Fourth avenue cars. Hose-pipes were of course laid, connecting the engines with all the available hydrants in the neighborhood, and, as a consequence, crossing the tracks of the three railways above named. This resulted in completely stopping the travel on those routes during the greater part of the afternoon, thus interfering with business, and inflicting great inconvenience upon thousands of people. This sort of thing, to a greater or less extent, takes place whenever there is a large fire in this City, unless the fire breaks out below the City Hall. Is it not time that some means of elevating hose-pipes above the street-cars should be brought into use? It is intolerable that a fire should be permitted to interrupt travel in the busiest part of the day for hours at a time.

Some of the Police Justices of Brooklyn, it appears, have for a considerable time been in the habit of opening Court in the Station-houses at unseasonable hours, for the purpose of accommodating persons not desiring to incur the odium of going before the public. The pot-house politicians have been prominent in cases brought up on such occasions, using their "influence" for the accused, and "fixing things" to the satisfaction of those concerned. To put an effectual stop to this kind of business, the Police Commissioners have just issued an order to the Captains of the several precincts, to the effect that the Station-houses are to be no longer used for the hearing of charges by Magistrates after regular Court hours. The action of the Commissioners, as a matter of course, is not particularly agreeable to the aforesaid politicians and their friends; but their displeasure is not of much consequence, compared with the unanimous approval of respectable citizens.

A correspondent of the Philadelphia Press calls attention to a fact which seems of sufficient importance not to be lost sight of. From a careful study of the diseases peculiar to horses, he claims to have good reason to know that in the large cities of the country most of the deaths among these animals have resulted from drinking in the public fountains. "Every old diseased horse drinks out of them," says the writer; "I have seen a half pint of corruption left in the basin after such a horse had taken a drink; and immediately afterward I have seen a fine horse drink from the same basin—drink what was little better than poison." In this City the very best of the trotting cattle are often watered at public troughs, and the only wonder is that diseases thus contracted are not more common.

Fifty-five tradesmen in South London were convicted, during the week ending Aug. 26, of having false weights and measures. South London is on the Surrey side, and a large part of the population there is very poor. The offending tradesmen are chiefly such as supply the wants of those who buy in very small quantities, and a well-informed Judge estimates that there are no fewer than three hundred shop-keepers in the whole of London who are habitually guilty of this cruel form of cheating. It is bad enough to swindle the rich, but to pilfer in this way the hard-earned money of the poor, the slender fund that keeps their ill-fed families, and this at a time when meat and fuel are rising so greatly in price, ought to be severely punished. We fear that work of this sort goes on in New-York, and that the cheating is not all done by means of false weights and measures. The matter should be rigidly investigated at intervals, and convicted offenders punished not by fine only, but by imprisonment.

The Washington correspondent of an evening paper gave the following news yesterday:

"One of the most prominent Greeley men here said today that money had been wasted in Maine like water, and that a great mistake had been made in not abandoning the contest in that State entirely and, spending the funds in Pennsylvania and Indiana. The members of the Greeley Campaign Committee are no longer sanguine as to the election of their candidate."

The hocus-pocus about the "transfer of percentages" does not deceive the Greeleyites themselves. They see plainly enough that the people regard their entire scheme with disgust, and everywhere refuse to support it.

Just after the close of the civil war, a thrifty sergeant, named BATES, undertook, for a consideration, to carry the Union flag through every Southern State without receiving injury or insult. He accomplished this heroic task successfully, and now seems to have adopted public flag carrying as an easy and lucrative profession. He has just announced that he proposes to display that popular piece of bunting all along the road from the Scottish border to London, and in case no insult is levelled either at the sacred flag, or the presumably sacred sergeant, he is to receive a large sum of money. Of course, if the man wants to exhibit himself as a thrifty lunatic he has a right to do so, but it is not so clear that he has a moral right to use the national ensign as an aid to mercenary idiocy. Let him hunt up the flag of President REAL'S short-lived British-American Republic, and substitute that appropriate banner in the place of the Stars and Stripes.

OHIO.

How the News from Maine is Received—Carl Schurz Making Inflammatory Appeals to the Germans.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 10.—The news from Maine is enthusiastically received all over Southern Ohio, and the Republicans are preparing for an active and vigorous campaign from now until the October election. Thus far there has not been a great deal of speech-making in this State, but the work of organization has been quietly, though very effectively, carried on in every direction. Carl Schurz arrived here today, and to night has a crowd to hear him, among whom are a great many German Republicans, anxious to see the face of the man who has proven so recreant to all honorable pledges of fealty to his party. He has an attentive hearing, and some forced enthusiasm from Democrats, but will make no votes by his incendiary appeals to passion and prejudice.

The Republican candidates for Congress in two districts of this county will hold meetings every night from now till the campaign closes. The mass of the news from Indiana which reaches here is of the most encouraging character.

Responses from here to the Maine election news are full of enthusiasm, and salutes without number are being fired today all over the State.

DELAWARE.

Republican State Convention—Candidates for Presidential Electors and Congressman Nominated Amid Great Enthusiasm.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

GEORGETOWN, Del., Sept. 10.—The State Convention of the Republicans of Delaware was held today in Georgetown, the County seat of Sussex, situated in the southern extremity of the peach-growing State. The occasion was accepted by the Republicans as an admirable opportunity to show their enthusiasm, their unity and their discipline. Delaware has but three counties—Newcastle, of which Wilmington is the capital, Kent and Sussex. From the first there were seventy-eight delegates to the Convention; from the second, forty, and from the third, forty-two. Not only were all these delegates present when the Convention was called to order, but, notwithstanding the fact that Georgetown is just five hours distant from Wilmington on the cars, there was an attendance of friends and outsiders which amounted to over a thousand by the time the train reached the place of the Convention. The truth is that the Republicans generally struck work and made the day a grand holiday, sacred to the needs of the party. The train was decorated with banners. In the rear there was a wagon in which was mounted a brass cannon, which belched forth a challenge to the Democracy at every station. At Georgetown the principal hotels were draped with huge banners, and the inhabitants were out to welcome the delegates. There were also stands erected underneath the trees of the little areen, on which were distinguished speakers from Philadelphia and Baltimore, waiting to address them. The secret of this extraordinary enthusiasm lay in the fact that the Republicans of Delaware, for the first time in many years, have a very good chance of carrying the State. At the last Democratic Convention the electoral ticket was nominated without instructions, for the resolutions indorsing Horace Greeley couldn't be passed, and there was such a desperate uproar in the Assembly that the Chairman abruptly adjourned the meeting to prevent, as scandal affirms, an absolute repudiation of the entire Greeley business. The absence of Senator Bayard, who is to the Democracy of Delaware what the trumpeter is to the fireman in the day of battle, has contributed in a large degree to the utter demoralization which has set in among them. With the delegates from Wilmington, there were actually several leading Democrats, one of them an Alderman. They came nominally to see the fun, but it was well understood that a thorough detestation of boiled crow was at the bottom of the matter. At 2 o'clock the delegates were in the Courthouse. Mr. Pickles, of Wilmington, called the meeting to order and nominated as temporary Chairman, Mr. Wm. W. Morgan, of Sussex County. John P. Bath was appointed temporary Secretary. Committees were then ordered on Organization, Credentials and Resolutions. During their absence speeches were made by various delegates, begging the members not to throw away their chance of victory by any disunion, and expressing a hope that individual preferences would be sacrificed to the welfare of the party. These sentiments were loudly cheered. Mr. Louis Thompson, of Newcastle County, was appointed regular Chairman of the Convention, with numerous Vice-Presidents and Secretaries. The following resolutions were then read amid repeated cheers and peals of laughter, the last resolution being encored three times, the Democrats present joining in the applause:

Resolved, That we proclaim our adherence to the Republican Party, and accept as the declaration of its principles the platform of the Philadelphia Convention.

Resolved, That the Administration of Ulysses S. Grant has been a most triumphant vindication of the wisdom that prompted his election; that his successful conduct of the civil affairs of the nation has not been less marked than his military skill displayed in the suppression of rebellion, and that whether as General or President he is entitled to the admiration and gratitude of the American people.

Resolved, That Henry Wilson is a noble example of the capacity and tendency of republican institutions to dignify mankind. Humble in his birth, without fortune or friends, from the shoe-maker's bench he has raised himself by industry, integrity and patient toil, to the elevation of Senator and future Vice-President of the United States. Constant in his devotion to his country, unwearied in his efforts to advance the public interests, in all the tenor of his public life and capacity by his arduous labors as the Chairman of the Military Committee of the Senate, he has earned a title to be associated with U. S. Grant in the government of a free and grateful people.

Resolved, That we congratulate our fellow-citizens of the late Democratic Party upon their acceptance of the true principles of republican government; that in the recantation of their errors we have their complete recognition of the truth of all our teachings, and, though their conversion has been somewhat sudden, and they be charged with U. S. Grant in the time they will bring forth fruits meet for repentance.

After this the nominations for Congressmen and Presidential Electors were made. The following gentlemen were unanimously nominated:

For Electors at Large—Benjamin S. Booth, of Newcastle, and Dr. Wm. F. Collins, of Kent.

For District Elector—David W. Moore, of Sussex.

Then came the nomination for Congressman over which there was considerable debate, for the banner of the party during the contest will have to be borne by this nominee, and the great probability of victory made the delegates keenly anxious. Levi C. Bird was the choice of Newcastle; Jas. R. Lofland, of Kent, and John W. Houston, of Sussex. Balloting was then commenced. On the second ballot Jas. R. Lofland was nominated, and the choice was then made unanimous. An enthusiastic mass meeting was held after the Convention adjourned. Patriotic speeches were delivered, and the candidates who had lost the nomination pledged themselves amid great applause to work faithfully for Grant and Wilson and the ticket.

JUDGE PRINDLE'S CASE.

Meeting of the Senate, Yesterday, in Extra Session—Adjournment till Nov. 10.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 10.—The Senate met in extra session at 10 A. M., to hear the closing argument in the case of Judge Prindle. The roll was called, and twelve Senators answered to their names. On motion of Senator D. P. Wood, who said there was evidently a misapprehension as to the time of meeting, the Senate adjourned till 4 P. M.

Judge Prindle and his counsel were present. Counsel for prosecution were absent.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Senate reassembled at 4 P. M. There were twenty Senators present. Before transacting any business they, on motion of Senator Winslow, went into secret session. After an hour's discussion the doors were reopened, and it was announced that when the Senate adjourned it would be till the 10th of November, at 10 o'clock, A. M.

Senator D. P. Wood moved that when the Senate met the Prindle case be disposed of first, and that the case of Judge Curtiss be then taken up.

Mr. Johnson rose to a point of order that the Senate, having in secret session agreed to adjourn till Nov. 20, it was not competent to make any motion now, as the Senate was in fact adjourned.

Mr. D. P. Wood stated that it was only agreed to adjourn till the 20th of Nov., when the Senate today adjourned, and it was not entirely proper to agree upon the manner of proceeding when the Senate came together in November next.

Mr. Madden said he did not understand that the Senate ever, in secret session, adjourns.

Mr. Johnson insisted that in secret session the motion to adjourn was put and carried, and the presiding officer now had only to make the announcement from the chair.

Mr. Allen, in the chair, decided the point of order not well taken, and put the question on Mr. Wood's motion, which was so modified as to direct the Clerk of the Senate to notify all parties interested in the cases that these trials are postponed until that time.

Mr. Johnson said that it appeared to him the occasion for this postponement was that there was a political campaign to be attended to, and that Senators had not time to attend to this great public business; that it had not time to decide this matter of so much interest to the people of Chenango County, and that the question of the election of a United States Senator by the next Legislature was considered of greater importance by them.

Mr. Winslow rose to a point of order that the question before the Senate was as to the mode of proceeding when the Senate meets, and not as to whether there was time to continue the session of the Senate now.

Mr. Cowen raised a similar point of order, as also did Mr. Wood, but the Chair decided that Mr. Johnson was in order.

Mr. Johnson proceeded, and asked if the Senate would be better prepared to take up the Prindle case after the matter of United States Senator was disposed of than it would be now. He then said that it would be proper to inform the parties in the Curtiss case about how long the Senate would be engaged on the Prindle case, and not leave it so indefinitely as it was in the motion.

Mr. D. P. Wood said the suggestion was a good one, and he would so amend his motion as to set down the Curtiss case for the 22d November.

Mr. Johnson said he wanted his protest against this adjournment entered upon the journal.

Mr. D. P. Wood said that in order to dispose of the case properly it was necessary to have twenty-two Senators present. It is notorious that there are not twenty-two here, and it will not be possible to get that number here. Three-sevenths of the Senator's (Johnson's) party associates are not here. He did not say this to bring reproach upon the Democratic Party; but they are not here, and will not be here for reasons which everybody can understand. They will be here, however, and so will others, at the time fixed upon, and this work of the people's will then be performed to the entire satisfaction of the people.

The vote was then taken on Mr. Wood's motion as amended, and it was adopted, Messrs. Johnson and Tiemann voting in the negative.

The Senate then adjourned till the 20th of November, at 10 o'clock A. M.

YACHTING.

The Cruise of the Brooklyn Club—Yesterday's Log.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

NEW-LONDON, Conn., ON BOARD THE ALICE, Sept. 10.—It is very remarkable that human beings are never satisfied, yachtsmen especially. Give them a light breeze today, and they declare they have not enough to sail; give them a whole sail breeze to-morrow, and they have too much to fly their kites, and will then grumble that the whole quantity was not equally divided. Such has been the case during this cruise. At first the winds were very light, then nobody had sufficient to sail with; they wanted a stiff pilot-boat breeze. Yesterday and today we have enjoyed a breeze that would make any pilot sing joyously, "A Life on the Ocean Wave," but the result is the same. The storm that set in soon after noon on Monday continued all night without abatement but the schooner yachts were all snug in Morris Cove, and the sloops lay in a cluster off the Long Dock, New-Haven. During the evening a number of rockets and fireworks went up, and then all was quiet on the Brooklyn yachts. Many of the yachtsmen went ashore, unable to resist the pleasures of the city life even with the counter attraction of their trim little craft. At the first streak of dawn today all was astir on board the yachts. In the harbor the water was as smooth as glass, but the white caps plainly seen outside showed that a good breeze was bowing. This in part induced several of the smaller boats to start homeward, rather than venture any further eastward. Consequently the Sophia, which had gained already sufficient honor for one cruise, weighed anchor at daylight, and, with a parting salute, started for Brooklyn. She was followed by the Mary, Kate, Maggie B., Flying Cloud and Undine soon after. The wind was very fresh from the northeast, and as they got out into the Sound they boomed out their sails wing and wing, and flew off at a pace that soon took them out of sight. At 6½ the signal "All Captains on board," was hoisted on the Commodore's yacht, and on their arriving there Commodore Voorhies announced that he had received an invitation from Mr. R. F. Loper, Jr., to visit Stonington, and attend a ball in the evening in honor of the Brooklyn Yacht Club. It was decided to accept the invitation if it should be possible to get there, doubts of which were expressed, owing to the strong head wind and tide. The Madeleine Alice, Fleu De Lis, Magic and Eddie, schooners, and the T. B. Asten and Nettie B., sloops, then prepared to leave. At 7¾ the signal gun to get ready was fired, and ten minutes after a second to start was heard. At once anchors were weighed, jibs hoisted and the yachts moved away, the Alice taking the lead at the start. After passing the light-ship at the eastern side of the entrance to the harbor it was found to be blowing great guns, with a heavy sea running. The Alice, J. B. Asten, and Nettie B. kept close in on the Connecticut shore, making short tacks, and the Madeleine, Fleu De Lis, and Magic made a direct course for the Long Island shore, taking a long stretch to Friar's Head. The Fleu De Lis led the Madeleine at first, but was passed when about half way between New-Haven and Branford, and soon after the Madeleine took the lead of the fleet, leaving the Alice second. The little Nettie B. had been doing gallantly, much to the surprise of every one, who thought each wave was sufficient to swamp her, but she rode the waters like a cork and spun along until near Branford, when, giving a parting gun, she tripped and ran back before the turn to New-Haven, followed soon after by the J. B. Asten, who returned. Having no competitor to race with, the Eddie soon after returned. After passing Branford the Alice unfortunately broke her bowsprit-shroud, which necessitated hauling down the jib for repairs, thus retarding her greatly. At that time the Madeleine, Magic and Fleur de Lis were nearly out of sight off the Long Island shore. The chapter of accidents for the Alice was not yet full, for soon after repairing the bowsprit-shroud, the throat halyard-band broke, and was followed by the other bowsprit-shroud. These misfortunes threw her at least two miles astern. Hammanasett Point was passed at 1¼, by which time the wind had veered round a few points to the southward, and increased in violence, so that it was found necessary to take a couple of reefs in the mainsail. After passing Faulkner's Island a long stretch was made for the Long Island shore, in making which the Madeleine and Magic were seen apparently laying to, waiting for the others. They being sighted the leading yachts started under shortened sail. Horton's point, on Long Island, was made by the Alice at 2¼, and she then tacked direct for New-London, it being found impossible to make Stonington to-night. The Fleur de Lis had by this time joined the Madeleine and Magic, and the yachts were seen hull down running under easy canvass. New-London harbor was reached and anchors dropped opposite the Pequot House about 7 o'clock. Newport is the destination to-morrow, where the great race of the cruise, for the Citizens' Cup, will take place on Thursday. All the principal schooner yachts will compete, several of them being now at Newport awaiting the arrival of the Brooklyn boats.

KENTUCKY.

Up-Hill Work in Creating Greeley Enthusiasm in the State—A Peace Jubilee in His Interest.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 10.—For the past six weeks the dozen enthusiastic Greeleyites here, all of whom expect to receive the appointment of Post-master in this city when Greeley is elected, have been arranging for what they term a "World's Peace Jubilee," which is to commence to-morrow, lasting two days. The sorehead organs, East, West, North and South, having learned the nature of the show, all took the matter up and discussed its importance and significance. Circulars, inviting Tom, Dick and Harry to participate, have been scattered through the mails over every section of the country. Several Committees have worked like Trojans to make a grand success, but there is every prospect that it will prove the grandest fizzle of the age. There are not as many visitors in the city this evening as there were forty-eight hours before Blanton Duncan's side-show opened.

A glance at the hotel registers last night reveals the fact that there is not a person of any prominence in the city who proposes to attend the feast and farce. It is impossible for the ladies of the Liberal cause to get up a particle of enthusiasm in Kentucky for the first during the campaign. There has has not been a single meeting of any proportions in the State. The pill is so bitter that the old Democrats who intend to swallow it will do nothing more than that.

John Harper and Longfellow at a County Fair in Kentucky.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 10.—The annual Fair of the Jefferson County Agricultural Association commenced today under favorable circumstances. Among the attractions on the grounds are Uncle John Harper and his horse Longfellow. There were fully 4,000 persons on the grounds.

THE SOLDIERS' CONVENTION.

Letter from President Grant in Response to an Invitation to be Present.

The following letter has been received by Col. Dudley from President Grant, in response to an invitation to be present at the great Soldiers' and Sailors' Convention at Pittsburg, on Tuesday next:

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Sept 9, 1872.

Col. L. E. Dudley, Secretary Veterans National Committee:

DEAR SIR: I am in receipt of your letter of the 4th inst., extending to me, by your Committee, a pressing invitation to attend the grand mass Convention of veteran soldiers, to be held in the City of Pittsburg on the 17th inst.

My desire to attend and meet again so many old companions in arms is very great, but my judgment tells me to leave the celebration entirely to those whose motives cannot be misunderstood. I know of no class of citizens better entitled to meet in convention, and to have weight accorded their views on all national matters there expressed, than the veteran soldiers who risked their lives for the honor and perpetuity of their country. I am sure your councils will be marked by wisdom and patriotism, and that the meeting of so many comrades will be a joyous and an advantageous one. I wish for you all that you expect from your meeting of the 17th inst., and only regret that I cannot be with you on that occasion.

With great respect, your obedient servant,

U. S. GRANT.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Great Rallying Meetings in Boston and Other Towns.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 10.—The Republicans of this city and the immediate suburbs have been holding great meetings to-night, and celebrating the glorious victory of yesterday in Maine. Their speakers have been some of those who have done such admirable service during the campaign there, and are now on their way to Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana to continue their work for the cause. The greatest of all the meetings was held in Faneuil Hall, which was packed with an enthusiastic crowd, including many ladies. George C. Richardson, Esq., a prominent banker of this city, presided, and speeches were made by Gen. James A. Hale, Gen. Harlan of Kentucky, Judge Bingham of Ohio, and Lieut.-Gov. Pinebahck, of Louisiana. Gen. Harlan made his admirable argument on the reconciliation question so ably put in his Maine speeches, examined Greeley's questionable record, and spoke of the Southern vote, claiming that it would show that the cause of Republicanism had steadily and rapidly grown there. Mr Bingham, in concluding his speech, defended President Grant in the most eloquent terms. All of the meetings were of the most enthusiastic character. The crowds were jubilant over the news from the Pine Woods, and cheered with the old ring every point made by the speakers. Judge Bingham speaks at Worcester to-morrow.

THE INTERNATIONALS.

Wrangle Over a Resolution to Make the Organization Political.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—It is now reported that the International Congress, in its closing session, adopted a resolution, the object of which was to convert the International Society into a political organization.

The resolution was introduced by M. Lauguet, one of the members from Paris. Delegates from Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, Spain, France and the United States protested against it, and threatened to withdraw unless the vote was reconsidered. As the sitting was secret, it is difficult to obtain a trustworthy account of the proceedings, and it is not known what action was finally taken on the question. The report that several French members withdrew in disgust before the adjournment, leads to the belief that the Congress rescinded its vote.

BRAZIL.

Riotous Proceedings During the Elections—War with the Argentine Republic Doubtful.

LISBON, Sept. 10.—The mail steamer from Rio Janeiro Aug. 22 has arrived.

The elections for members of Congress in Brazil were attended with much excitement and disorder.

Riots occurred; the troops were called out, and several persons were bayoneted.

The returns indicated that the Government would have a majority in the next Congress.

It was generally believed that the negotiations between Gen. Mitre and the Brazilian Government would result in a peaceful settlement of the difficulty with the Argentine Confederation.

THE TURF.

Doncaster September Meeting in England—The Winner of the Yorkshire Cup.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The Doncaster September meeting commenced this morning. The most prominent feature of today's sport was the run for the great York shire Handicap, which was won by Dalnacardoch. Napolitain was second and Silvester third. The betting just before the start was six to one against Dalnacardoch, six to one against Napolitain, and eight to one against Silvester. Twelve horses started. Taylor was the jockey of the winner.

EXPLOSION.

A Tug Blown Up and Five Persons Killed.

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 10.—A special telegram to the Dispatch says the steam-tug Agnes exploded her boiler this afternoon, near Jordan's Point, five miles below City Point, on the James River. Capt. Griffith Johns, of the bark Lucy, who was on board, en route for his vessel; B. Emoughty, engineer; two colored firemen, and the wheelsman, colored, were killed, and two colored men were wounded.

Capt. Lawrence, who commanded the tug, was blown some distance into the air, and fell into water, but he was only slightly injured.

The schooner Mary Morris, which was alongside the tug, was badly damaged.

The tug is a complete wreck.

THE STRAIGHT-OUTS.

Charles O'Conor and the Louisville Nomination—Rumors of His Acceptance.

The Committee appointed by the Democratic Convention at Louisville to apprise Charles O'Conor of his nomination for President, had an interview, last evening, with that gentleman at his office in Wall-street. Beyond the fact that the Committee met Mr. O'Conor at 5 and left him at 7 o'clock, nothing could be ascertained, as neither one nor the other would divulge anything that had occurred at the meeting. Mr. William Moreau, of Indiana, was Chairman of the Committee, and with him were Major Worthington, of Ohio, John A. Goodlet and D. R. Lyddy, of New-York, besides three or four others. A rumor, which could be traced, however, to no trustworthy source, prevailed at the close of the interview, that Mr. O'Conor neither had accepted or would accept the nomination. The Committee certainly seemed to be in good spirits when they took their departure.

A number of prominent Democrats interested in the Louisville movement assembled, last evening, at the Andrew Jackson Club, to discuss the situation. Among them were several of the Committee appointed by the late Louisville Convention to inform Mr. O'Conor of his nomination and request his acceptance. These gentlemen were the centres of attraction, and around each of them was gathered a group of anxious inquirers. The Committeemen were quite reticent, contenting themselves with hinting that a favorable reply might be looked for. It was stated by one of these gentlemen that Mr. O'Conor did not exactly refuse the nomination, only counseled more deliberation, as he was of opinion that the only danger to be apprehended was haste in rushing at conclusions. Mr. O'Conor thought that this was the heroic age in politics. The moral sense of the whole nation was aroused, and there was no danger that fraud could prevail with the people. In answer to a statement put forward by one of the Committee, that his speedy acceptance of the nomination would restore confidence among Democrats throughout the country, Mr. O'Conor again counseled the policy of deliberation. He said that, with the aid of steam and the telegraph, but a few weeks sufficed to learn the temper of the people. When questioned as to his sentiments toward Greeley, Mr. O'Conor warmly denounced the Baltimore nominee, alluding to him as the "candidate of the corruptionists of the country." During the three hours' interview, Mr. O'Conor frequently expressed his heartfelt sympathy with the Louisville movement.

Among other things, it was stated by one of the Committee that Mr. O'Conor remarked that he had never said he would not vote for Gen. Grant. Today at 10 o'clock a number of the most prominent Democrats in the City will meet at No. 257 Broadway for the purpose of signing a letter addressed to Mr. O'Conor, urging him to accept the nomination. The letter will be prepared to-night by Mr. Wm. C. Barrett. At 12 o'clock, noon, Mr. O'Conor, by appointment, will meet these gentlemen at his office, No. 59 Wall-street.

Greeley to be Thrown Over.

The New-York correspondent of the Philadelphia Sunday Republic thus writes under date of Sept. 7:

"From present indications under the surface, the country may as well prepare for a political surprise, in the shape of a formal withdrawal of Horace Greeley from the field. All the whisperings among the knowing ones, at Democratic and Liberal head-quarters within the few days past, lead to the conviction that there is really something important in the wind, and that it will not be long before it is made manifest. The fact is, since the result of the elections in North Carolina, Western Virginia, and Vermont have demonstrated that the 'Liberal' element has really brought no strength to the Democratic camp, the old foxes are realizing what a terrible political mistake they made in making their bed with the 'farmer of Chappaqua,' and the question with them now is, can the burden be got rid of without demoralizing the party worse than it is already? If the Maine election, which comes off next week, does not show any headway for Greeley, depend upon it that question will be pressed to a practical solution, and if the result is not the substitution of the nominee of the Straight party, the probability is that some new man will be placed at the head of the ticket, to lead what may now be looked upon as indeed the most forlorn of all forlorn hopes."

Dodd's Express.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Having noticed several complaints in your paper in regard to the manner the public are treated by Dodd's Express Company, I beg to state that one night not long since, when leaving Washington City by the 9 o'clock train, the agent came along shortly after we left the city and asked for baggage checks for New-York. On being repeatedly assured that my trunk would be delivered at my house the following morning by 10 o'clock, I handed him my check; but no baggage came for twenty-four hours after the specified time agreed upon, and I was compelled to go about my house waiting in vain for my luggage before being able to put on decent clothing. I. M.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I am glad to see that a few of the traveling public have seen fit to bring to light the dereliction of duty of the New-York Transfer Company. From several leters seen in your paper I am aware that I am not the only sufferer, and hope that the shameful carelessness of the employes of the Company will meet a timely punishment. I am a frequent traveler on railroads, and on several occasions have been picked out, it seems, as a victim of the said Transfer Company. Once, besides suffering the inconvenience of not receiving my luggage until I had given it up for lost, it was returned to me after several articles had been abstracted. Is there no redress for such open-faced robbery? Until such carelessness is remedied how can travelers feel safe? A VICTIM.

NEW-YORK, Tuesday, Sept. 10, 1872.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Noticing several complaints in your paper lately about "Dodd's New-York Transfer Company," I would like to state my case. Arriving by Albany boat Sunday morning at 9½ o'clock, I gave my two checks for trunks to the agent on the boat, who promised me I would surely have them at my house by 11 A. M, but they did not arrive until 4¼ P. M. The expressman then wanted fifty cents to carry them up in third story, which imposition was decidedly refused. As it was, I had to pay fifty cents for one day's storage, they having arrived the day previous. On going next day to the Company's main office, they pleaded as an excuse "press of business," when I informed them that I had just returned from a trip across the continent, had stopped at all the principal cities, and that theirs was decidedly the worst transfer company I had found. While at their office, there were at least six other persons besides myself who were complaining about the delay in receiving their baggage. As the matter stands now I think all travelers will agree that New-York City affords the poorest facilities for conveying passengers and baggage to and from the depots, boats, &c., of any large place in the country.

Hoping that you will ventilate this subject thoroughly, and succeed in breaking down this great disgrace to our City, I remain, very respectfully, F. R. H.

NEW-YORK, Tuesday, Sept. 10, 1872.

The Musical Season—Arrival of Artists.

The steamers at this port yesterday brought many artists who are to appear before local audiences within a fortnight. Among the passengers by the Cuba were Mme. Pauline Lucca, Miss Clara Louise Kellogg, M. Rubinstein, and M. Wieniawski. The Westphalia had aboard Mme. Liebhart, Mlle. Ormény, and M. Riemblinski, of the Rubinstein Troupe. By the French steamer, due to-morrow, Miss Carlotta Patti, Mlle. Teresa Carreño, and M. Sauret are awaited. The arrival of all these performers insures the prompt inception of a brilliant season.

The People's Municipal Reform Association's Candidates for Mayor.

At a meeting of the delegates representing the several Ward Associations in connection with the People's Municipal Reform Association, last evening, at No. 907 Broadway, Gen. Joseph C. Jackson in the chair, it was resolved that the delegates present should propose names of gentlemen to be referred to a conference committee for the office of Mayor at the ensuing election. The Fifteenth Ward proposed Mr. W. H. Aspinwall; the Twelfth Ward, Mr. Smith E. Shaw; the Nineteenth Ward, Mr. W. F. Havemeyer; the Fifteenth Ward, Mr. Jackson S. Schultz; the Third Ward, Mr. Daniel F. Tiemann; the Twenty-first Ward, Gen. Joseph S. Jackson and Mr. Peter Gilsey; the Eighteenth Ward, Andrew H. Green; the Sixteenth Ward. Alderman Samuel B. Vance.

The Conference Committee, it is understood, will consult with the gentlemen whose names have been proposed, together with the other Reform organizations in the City, so as to insure concentrated action when the proper time for a nomination arrives. The Conference Committee will report to the delegates the result of their conferences at their next meeting.

BROOKLYN POLITICS.

The Kings County Republican General Committee.

The Kings County Republican General Committee held an adjourned meeting at Commonwealth Hall, over the Brooklyn Post-office, last night, Mr. A. G. Williams, First Vice-President, in the Chair. Mr. J. T. Norton, Secretary. There was a full attendance of the delegates, and much enthusiasm was manifested over the result of the election in Maine. The Executive Committee presented the following recommendations:

First—The organization of a naturalization committee, consisting of one person from each ward, to be nominated by the delegates of the respective wards.

Second—Organizing campaign clubs in each ward and town, to aid in the registration and canvassing of the same.

Third—A report to the Secretary of the General Committee of the names of the officers, number of membership, and place of meeting of all the organization.

Fourth—To arrange for the circulation of campaign documents, and to provide a channel of communication for news, &c., direct to the several wards, and to see that Republican reading is provided for all.

Fifth—To provide for the appointment of Supervisors of election, under the United States law.

The Committee then adjourned.

Democratic Reform General Committee.

A meeting of the Kings County Democratic Reform General Committee was held last night at the corner of Court and Joralemon streets. The chair was occupied by William J. Davis. The Committee on Ratification Meeting reported progress. It was resolved that primaries be held on Monday, the 16th inst., in the several wards to elect delegates to meet in convention on the following evening for the purpose of nominating a full ticket of city and county officers to be elected at the ensuing election. Inspectors of election for the several wards of the city were appointed. Hon. Wm. E. Robinson spoke, and severely criticized the manner in which the Brooklyn Eagle misrepresented the proceedings of the previous meeting.

A committee was appointed to perfect an organization in the three wards that are not yet represented in the Committee.

Brooklyn Scandinavian Grant and Wilson Club.

The Scandinavian citizens of Brooklyn have organized a Grant and Wilson Club—the first of the kind in that city. A mass-meeting under the auspices of the organization will be held on Thursday at 8 P. M., at the Pacific-street Methodist Chapel, near Flatbush-avenue. Addresses will be delivered by prominent Republicans, and also by Swedes, in the Swedish language.

Miscellaneous Items.

A Republican mass-meeting will be held to-morrow evening at Lattimer Hall, Court-street, opposite Douglass-street, under the auspices of the Second Congressional District Campaign Club. A lively time is anticipated.

A regular meeting of the Ninth Ward Republican Association was held, last night, at their hall on Dean-street, near Troy-avenue, John Thurlow presiding. The attention was large and a good spirit prevailed.

The Seventh Ward Liberal Republican Greeley and Brown Club was addressed last night by Geo. W. Read, Col. E. B. Lansing and others, at Oxford Hall, corner Classon and Fulton avenues. Daniel Dillenbeck presided.

The Tenth Ward Liberal Republican Association met last night at Sawyer's Rooms, Fulton and Jay streets, and was addressed by R. H. Chittenden and others.

The Democratic General Committee of Kings County met, last evening, at the corner of Court and Remsen streets, Mr. Edward Rowe in the chair. Resolutions were adopted ratifying the State nominations.

A canvass of the bona fide voters of the "composition-room" of D. Appleton & Co., corner of Hewes-street and Kent-avenue, Brooklyn, E. D., produced the following result: U. S. Grant, 30; H. Greeley, 10; neutral, 2.

The Apollo Hall Democracy—Meeting of the Eighteenth Ward General Committee.

The Eighteenth Ward General Committee of the Apollo Hall Democracy held their first meeting last evening, at the Andrew Jackson Club-house, corner of Thirtieth-street and Lexington-avenue. Mr. W. C. Barrett pres

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

The only auction held at the Exchange yesterday, Monday, Sept. 10, was a Supreme Court foreclosure sale, by B. P. Fairchild, under the direction of Wm. T. Farnham, Esq., referee, of a one-fourth interest in two irregular plots of ground situate on the north and south sides of Forty-eighth-street respectively, about 100 feet west of Ninth-avenue, containing together about eight city lots. Sold for $1,000, to Jane Cornish, plaintiff in the legal action. The sale was one of no significance as far as determining the value of the realty is concerned, for it was made merely to pass title. The other legal auctions noticed for the day were all adjourned as follows: Sale of four lots on Fifty-seventh-street, 375 feet west of Tenth-avenue, by E. H. Ludlow & Co., adjourned until the 17th inst. Sale of house and lot on Sixty-eighth-street, 175 feet west of Fourth-avenue, by James M. Miller, adjourned until the 18th inst.; and sale of forty-eight lots, forming the entire block located between Second and Third avenues and One Hundred and First and One Hundred and Second streets, by Winans, Sands & Garretson, adjourned until Oct. 10. In reference to the suburban sale at Bay Side, Long Island, held by Jere. Johnson, Jr., yesterday, particulars will be published to-morrow.

For today only one auction is announced, namely, legal sale at the Exchange, by E. E. Lawrence, of house and lot No. 44 East Twenty-second-street, north side, 100 feet west of Fourth-avenue. The market just at present is extremely dull, and will probably remain so for some days to come. Movements are in progress, however, which cannot fail to cause renewed activity ere long, to which, when more fully developed, more extended reference will be made.

At private contract, Wm. H. Raynor, No. 5½ Pine-street, reports having recently sold four lots on the west side of the Grand Boulevard, between One Hundred and Twenty-second and One Hundred and Twenty-third streets, averaging 96 feet each in depth, for $30,000.

Testimony of Capt. Hull, Agent and Inspector of the Line.

Minute Account of the Terrible Catastrophe—The Hull Sank Before the People had Left the Main Deck—The Fatal Mistake About the Extent of the Injury.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 10.—The investigation into the loss of the Metis was continued today:

Capt. George B. Hull testified: I am agent and inspector of the Providence and New-York Steam-ship Company; the head-quarters are at Providence; my duties as agent and inspector are to furnish all supplies of the Company and keep the boats in order; I have the appointment of principal officers of the ships, but usually confer with the President; the officers report to me; I have had considerable experience as master of vessels, and have followed the sea from a child; I had charge of packets running between Providence and New-York when I was eighteen years old, and have been master of steamers. I think six or seven years; I hold a license from the United States Inspector as master from the New-York office, and am also licensed as pilot. My pilot's license extends from Boston to New-York, taking in all intermediate ports; think the Metis was altered to a passenger steamer a year ago last May; was on the Metis as passenger the night of the accident; went to New-York on the Electra; being agent of the Company gave me no authority to act on board; Capt. Burton was commanding officer; we left New-York a little past the usual hour, (five P. M.;) it was raining a little: we proceeded on our voyage, nothing unusual taking place up to the time I retired, at half past twelve o'clock; was woke up after a while by the motion of the boat, which was, as I supposed, caused by the sea in the race; did not get up, but after awhile felt the shock of what supposed to be a collision with some vessel; I jumped out of bed, opened the blind and saw a vessel dragging alongside; did not see any light on the vessel; after she had passed alone I saw out of my window a light, which I took to be Watch Hill; I then dressed myself and proceeded direct to the pilot-house; found Capt. Burton there, and had some conversation with him in regard to the collision, and asked him if he knew whether our boat was injured or not; he said he did not know, but had sent the first pilot down to ascertain whether the boat was injured or making any water; it was raining then, and he had not seen anything of her since the collision; while I was there he sent the first pilot away aft to see if he could see anything of the schooner; I went aft at the same time with the first pilot and looked all around, but could not see anything of her; I returned with the first pilot to the pilot-house; he reported to Capt. Burton that he could not see the vessel; then Capt. Burton decided then to proceed on his course, and gave his orders accordingly; I then went down below again; went to the engine-room and I think I inquired of the engineer if the ship was making any water, and I think he told me that she was not; will not be positive about that; I then went up into the saloon, toward the pilot-house; the ship listed to port so heavily, that I thought something must be wrong; I then hurried to the pilot-house, and I think I asked them if they were trimming her up; they told me that the order was given to trim her up; I told them I thought it would be well to bring her head to the wind, as they could get the freight over much easier and quicker; I then went below again, proceeded aft and found that the mate and his men shifting over the freight; I then went direct to the engine-room; saw the engineer trying to communicate with the pilot-house through the speaking-tube; I asked him what was the matter and he told me the ship was filling very fast; that the water came on to him all at once; I asked him if he thought he could free her with his pumps; he said he could not; I then hurried to the pilot-house and told them that the ship was sinking, and that I thought the best thing they could do was to run her ashore as soon as possible; Capt. Burton gave the order at once for them to head her for the land; I then went into the saloon; told the passengers that the ship was sinking, and for them to put on life-preservers and prepare themselves; I then proceeded to Col. Gallup's room, and called him, on account of his being in a room down on the main deck, where he was shut off from every one else, and would not be apt to hear any noise that might be made outside; I then went to the steward, whom I met at the foot of the stairs, and told him that the ship was sinking, and directed him to take his men and go up into the saloon and put life-preservers on the passengers; to be sure and see that every one had a life-preserver, as there were plenty of them for both passengers and crew; I then proceeded to the hurricane-deck and tried to cut the lashings on the life raft, but broke my knife, when Mr. Baker, the mate, came up with an ax and cut all the lashings on the life raft and boats; I met Capt. Burton on the hurricane-deck, and had some conversation with him and we decided that it was not best for the boats to be lowered, as we thought that the upper deck would come off; Capt. Burton gave the order for them only to lower the lads down by the nettings: I then thought it was time to get a life-preserver for myself; I went down on the saloon-deck, but could not get into the saloon on account of passengers filling up the door; I told them to be careful they had better all get on the upper deck, and a few of them started; I then went along to my state-room, No. 28, window on the outside; I broke the window and the blind with a chair, got in and took the two life-preservers out of the room; when I got out again the waves were dashing on the saloon-deck; I climbed up one of the cranes of one of the boats on the hurricane-deck, and took off my overcoat and threw it away; Mr. Davis, the bow watchman, assisted me in putting on by preserver; after I had got it on, I saw that he had none and gave him the other one; the hull of the boat separated from the upper deck very soon after that; we then tried to get all we could of the people that were floating about in the water into the hurricane-deck; after a while we saw a boat with one man standing up in it; he proved to be Mr. King, the Chief Engineer; called him to come alongside of the wreck; he took an oar and sculled alongside; his boat was nearly full of water; I put men on board the boat with buckets and bailed her out; she remained alongside till we got nearly into the breakers; we drifted ashore; went into the breakers and were picked up by the people on shore; I think, had we got into the surf, and there had been no one to have assisted us out, we would nearly, if not quite all, have been lost.

Q.—Did not count the passengers on the hurricane deck; think there were about fifty, as near as we could make out; all got ashore but one infant; the wind, when we left New-York, was probably south south-east; there was a ladies' cabin with twenty-four berths; suppose they were occupied with ladies and children; saw the steward putting life-preservers on the passengers; don't know whether he sent any persons down to put life-preservers on the ladies; the steamer Metis in August made three excursions to Martha's Vineyard under my command; the greatest number of passengers we had on either of these trips was nobover 475; perhaps, not over 450; in going on one of these trips the Metis grounded in soft mud in Newport Harbor, on the east side of the channel, owing to the extreme low tide; I think it was Aug. 19; she lay on the bottom for about two hours, when we were floated off by the tide; there was no storm at that time, but a fine breeze; no damage was done to the hull or machinery; she was going very slow at the time, and many of the passengers did not even know that she had grounded at all; she did lay at all; the steamer Canonicus lay at the end of Long Wharf at the time; it was owing to the deep draft of the ship and the extreme low tide; I think if we had been a ship's length further to the westward we could have gone along; the Metis had made no trips to New-York, or anywhere else, since the Vineyard Sound excursions, before this trip.

Q.—How do you account for the mistake by the officers in not ascertaining the damage done to the ship? A.—This collision was just aft of the water-tight bulkhead, and of course this water was running all the time into this very large freight-hold; there is no communication to that only from the hatches on deck; those hatches were on and covered with freight; the second mate reported that no had been into the forecastle, and reported everything there all right and dry as a bone; the engineer reported everything all right in the engine-room; the second mate, as I understand, had been lowered over the side, and said she was all right outside; if there had been twenty tons of freight put into the freight-hold it would not have settled her much; she was a boat that usually trimmed by the stern; I went down into the forecastle myself; I think it was twelve or fifteen minutes after the collision; from the time of the collision until the ship went down I think it was about forty minutes; all my movements about the boat were made very rapidly; I should not think there was quarter enough water in the hold to sink her at that time; I should have noticed it if there were; I think the damage was done at the time of the collision, and that the steamer began to make water then; there was nothing done in handling the vessel after the collision that would naturally have made the leak that I know of; I did not pay particular attention to the handling of the vessel but understood that they were trying to save the schooner and her crew; I account for the rush of water which was reported by the engineer, when none had been reported by the Captain, that she got so large a body of water in the freight-hold that the weight of it broke the bulkhead; I was all around the boat, and never discovered a sign of water until I was in the saloon, when the steamer lopped down, and I then thought there was something wrong, but the weather came on worse at that time, and I did not know but it was owing to the wind; think that two hours after the pilot-house were all that were necessary up to half past twelve o'clock; I think everything was done after the collision by the officers and crew to save the lives of the passengers; there has been no official report made by Capt. Burton to me of the number of persons saved; don't know whether officers put in command of the boats have made any report of the number of persons saved; think such reports were impracticable because the officers were scattered around on bales of cotton and could not know about the matter; the life-raft was on the upper deck until it went ashore; think it did not save any person, from the fact that it was allowed to remain on the hurricane deck covered with people; this raft went through the surf, but I don't know whether it carried any person through; I have no theory in regard to the cause of the disaster except what I have stated; the steamer did not strike on a rock during the Martha's Vineyard excursions; I don't know how the bulkheads were constructed; think they were of two thicknesses of plank cut diagonally; was not aware that they were cut away in getting coal into the breakers and replaced; they are now just as they were when I went with the Company; I never had any occasion to know whether they were tight or not; there was no suspicion aboard that the vessel had received a wound in her hull below the lower deck-frame at any time.

Q.—Was there any deck room over the second compartment which was unoccupied by freight? A.—Across here (indicating where the freight and horses were) it was partially opened across there, and the horses were in the stables built for them out of cotton bales; these gangways were open; the boat was very light loaded; we got into New-York late in the morning, and did not have time to load; her deck was well covered, but not piled up solid; full portion of cook-room floor covered this space; a portion of the places used for steerage passengers was also covered; there was no attempt to cut through the deck; it would take half an hour to cut a space through big enough for a man to get through; it was three inches thick of white pine sheathed; there was a wooden ladder on each side of the boat, for the passengers to go from the freight deck to the saloon deck; after the water got up forward Capt. Burton changed the ladder that was on the port side and put it further aft; the ship's crew assisted quite a number of passengers up upon that ladder; I did not see any of the life-boats until they got overboard; I saw one drifting bottom up, with a man on its bottom; it turned out to be Chief-Engineer William King; he came to the boat before that boat was lowered; she was full of people; what was the cause of their being tipped out I did not know; there were a very good sort of officers on board; they were practical sailors; I think the crew comprised some Portuguese sailors and some Irishmen; I don't know whether the latter were sailors or not; we did not select the hands with a view to their capacity for handling freight; don't think it would have made any difference in this case whether the crew were good sailors or not in regard to manning boats in consequence of the short space of time we had to get ready in; it is my impression that everything was more orderly than is usual in such cases, even where they had a great deal more time; there was no great deal of confusion; everything was done quietly and in a manner that would not excite the people any more than was absolutely unavoidable.

Q.—How did you arrive at the list of the passengers and crew saved? A.—Of course we lost our passengers list with the boat, and the only way we could get at the number saved was what we could pick up from the people and what we could get from newspapers; do not think there was a person on board who did not receive notice of the alarm.

Q.—When you called at Col. Gallup's room, why did you not call at the ladies' cabin also? A.—Because it was all open; the doors were not shut up at all.

Q.—Did you see any one there to indicate to the lady passengers that there was danger? A.—No, sir; I recollect seeing the chamber-maid there who was saved; she occupied a berth in the ladies' cabin.

Q.—Was there any watch on duty in the ladies' cabin? A.—I could not tell you; the chamber-maid was there; I could not tell you whether she was sitting up as watch or not.

Q.—Do you know whether the deck passengers were specially notified in season to get up? A.—I think they were; it was where all the crew and firemen were passing through; deck passengers are usually up; I don't know whether any one was sent expressly to notify them; I was pilot of the steamer when she grounded in Newport harbor; I don't knew how long the second mate had experience as boatman.

Q.—Do you know whether the deck passengers were specially notified in season to get up? A.—I think they were; it was where all the crew and firemen were passing through; deck passengers are usually up; I don't know whether any one was sent expressly to notify them; I was pilot of the steamer when she grounded in Newport harbor; I don't knew how long the second mate had experience as boatman.

Q.—Supposing the owners do not allow the Captain to have all the improvements required by law, and the Captain knows she is not so provided, who is the responsibility? A.—I should not like to express an opinion upon that subject; don't remember that I have expressed an opinion.

Q.—Was there any complaint of deficiency in the supply of life-preservers? A.—I heard none; the preservers and cork mattresses were at a di-count, floating about the wreck; we had forty cork mattresses on board, one for every state-room; I spent most of my time about the boat till ten or half-past ten o'clock, and then I went to see Capt. Burton in his room; he had not retired; I stayed there and talked with him till half-past twelve o'clock, when I got up and went to bed, and I think he went outside.

Q.—Did you see Capt. Burton drink any wine or spirits? A.—No, Sir; I did not notice any person on board who were drinking men, nor is the Captain a drinking man; I don't think the second pilot drinks liquor at all; he is a very steady, smart man.

THE EMIGRATION BOARD.

Resolutions on the Death of the Late Andrew Carrigan — The Emigrant Ship Charles H. Marshall.

The Commissioners of Emigration met yesterday, Hon. Richard O'Gorman in the chair.

The President spoke in regard to the decease of Andrew Carrigan, formerly a member of this Commission, and one of the fathers of the present Emigrant laws. On motion of Commissioner Hart, a committee was appointed to draft appropriate resolutions. The Chair appointed Messrs. Hart, Lynch, Kaufmann and Nicholson, to which number the Chair was added.

The following resolutionr were reported by the Committee, and adopted:

Whereas, Andrew Carrigan, for many years a member of this Commission, departed this life on the 6th day of September, 1872,

Resolved, That the Commissioners of Emigration unite in the general voice of sorrow with which the citizens of New-York mourn, in the death of Andrew Carrigan, the loss of a public-spirited and useful citizen, a devout and faithful Christian, and a wise and virtuous man.

Resolved, That Andrew Carrigan, as a member of the Irish Emigrants Society, and as its representative in the councils of this Commission, by his energy, diligence and fidelity to the trusts therein reposed in him, earned the respect and gratitude of this Commission, and of the emigrants whose interests the Commissioners seek to protect.

Resolved, That this Board tenders to the family of our deceased associate the assurance of our sincere condolence and sympathy in their affliction.

Resolved, That these resolutions be engrossed and signed by the President and Secretary, and forwarded to the family of deceased, and that they be published in the newspapers, as an expression of the feelings of this Board in relation to the sad event.

The Committee on Castle Garden reported the result of their investigation of the ill-usage of passengers on the Charles H. Marshall, but concluded that the officers and crew are not particularly to blame. The Committee urges the necessity of speedy legislation by Congress to bring outrages committed on the high seas within the jurisdiction of the United States Commissioners. From the report of Commissioner Wallach it appeared that $500 had been given by the proprietor of the ship to satisfy the claims of the passengers on account of ill-treatment, and that the amount had partially been, and would soon all be, divided among eighty-seven emigrants.

Out of respect to the memory of the late Andrew Carrigan, the Board then adjourned.

BASE-BALL AND CRICKET.

The Worst Game of Base-Ball Ever Played—37 for the Mutuals Against 5 for the "New Haymakers."

It was unfortunate that the cloudy weather of yesterday should have affected the attendance of the ball match on the Union Ground, between the Mutuals and the "New Haymakers," of Troy, as the few who were present can fairly claim to have witnessed, beyond question, the very worst game of baseball that has ever been played in public, for which circumstance only does it merit description. The opponents of the Mutuals were announced as "the new Haymakers," including several members of the original "Troy Club," but the "veterans" failed to show up, and the nine that appeared on the field were no more or less than the players of the Putnam Club, of Troy, and from their display, it is fair to infer that since the breaking up of the old Haymaker Club, Troy has forgotten all about base-ball. Four runs in the first inning, 12 in the next, and 5 more in the third, was the Mutual's record, and so on until the eighth had closed for 37 against 5, when darkness and the umpire considerately concluded the play and allowed the crowd to disperse.

ANOTHER TIE GAME.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 10.—Owing to unfavorable weather the championship game between the Boston and Baltimore Clubs was postponed until to-morrow, but the clubs played an exhibition game, which was "called" at the end of the fifth inning, darkness coming on. A drizzling rain prevailed throughout the game. The following is the score:

| | 1st. | 2d. | 3d. | 4th. | 5th. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Bostons | 0 | 2 | 6 | 2 | 2—12 |
| Baltimores | 10 | 0 | 2 | 0 | 0—12 |

NOTES.

Today, Eckford vs. Atlantic, on Capitoline; to-morrow, Boston vs. Baltimore, at Baltimore.

Cricket.

The Manhattan and Staten Island eleven will play a one-inning game at Hoboken today.

Pacific Mail Stock.

There was much excitement yesterday in Wall-street in regard to Pacific Mail stock, the report of the burning of the America gradually becoming regarded as a canard. The letter which appeared exclusively in the TIMES yesterday, and which hasarded an explanation of the telegram business, was extensively read and commented upon in the Stock Exchange. As the day passed without confirmatory intelligence of the disaster, the conviction deepened that the telegram was a cruel canard, concocted by parties in the bear interest, having a telegraph operator in the ring. As a consequence, the market grew gradually stronger, nearly 20,000 shares changing hands, and the quotations closed at 71 and 71¾. The indications are that the price will continue to advance unless telegrams are soon received from the agent of the Pacific Steam-ship Company at Yokohama, confirming the report of the disaster.

New Registration of Panama Railroad Stock.

The following notice was received from the office of the Panama Railroad Company by Edward King, President of the New-York Stock Exchange, yesterday:

Edward King:

DEAR SIR: I beg to notify you that on and after this date the stock of this Company will be registered with the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company.

Yours truly,

PANAMA RAILROAD COMPANY,
By F. W. G. BILLOWS, Vice-President.

NEW-JERSEY.

The Jersey City public schools, with three exceptions, open on Monday.

Nathan Pierson, the Newark news-dealer who shot himself on Tuesday last, died yesterday at St. Michael's Hospital, from his injuries.

On Monday night the bleachery of John Watson, at Dundee, near Passaic, was totally destroyed by fire. The loss will reach $20,000 or $25,000, and is insured for only $10,000.

Melvin Sandford, who killed his father, in defense of his mother, at Madison, two weeks ago, has been admitted by Judge Dalrymple to bail in the sum of $15,000.

In the Essex County Court, Mary Curran, convicted of shop-lifting, has been sentenced to ten State Prison for two years; Michael Maxwell, same offense, State Prison eighteen months, and William Williams, assault, State Prison one year.

While engaged in polishing the cylinder of the ferry-boat Central, at Communipaw, yesterday, the benzine which was used exploded in some unaccountable way, and two of the workmen, John Hays and Martin Feran, were badly burned. Feran was removed to the Jersey City Hospital.

On Monday night a man named Myer, a laborer, who had been employed with the gang of men engaged in excavating the sewer at Court and High streets, Newark, attempted suicide by taking Paris-green. He was removed to St. Michael's Hospital, where, yesterday, he was lying in a dangerous condition.

Gen. Van Buren, of Sussex County, the United States Commissioner to the Vienna Exposition, yesterday visited the Exposition at the Newark Rink. He was met at the depot by a committee of the management and escorted to the Rink, where he was received by the President of the Association, Ex-Gov. Ward.

Upward of 250 longshoremen, chiefly Irishmen, met last evening at No. 331 West-street and organized the "Edward Walsh Association," with Joseph Murphy, President; James Burke, Vice-President, and Henry Layman, Secretary. The meeting was very enthusiastic, and it was unanimously resolved to adopt measures to further the interests of Grant and Wilson in their district. Meetings will be held every Tuesday evening and addresses delivered.

The Killing of a Railroad Flagman.

An inquest was held by Coroner Young, yesterday, in the case of Thomas Sammons, aged sixty-two, of No. 219 West Thirty-third-street, a flagman stationed at Fifty-second-street and Fourth-avenue, who was struck by one of the cars of a Harlem Railroad train and instantly killed, on the 10th ult. Wm. Bradley, the principal witness in the case, who had been employed for six years as a switchman on the road, but who is not now so employed, testified that a new switch had been constructed at the place where the accident occurred, and that it was not in proper working order, but was used in an unfinished condition. The train was moving at a high rate of speed, and in consequence of the imperfect working of the switch, a car bounded from the track and struck the deceased, who was killed at his post. The jury in their verdict "considered the Company responsible for using the track in an unfinished condition."

What the Republicans are Doing in the State.

The Party Nominations for Congress—Col. Mosby's Work—A Warm Campaign in Prospect—The Collapse of Doolittle.

From Our Own Correspondent.

RICHMOND, Va., Monday, Sept. 9, 1872.

In my last I promised to complete the history of affairs in the several Congressional districts. I closed with the Fourth District, in which there were then three Republican candidates, Messrs. Stowell, Porter and Popham. Since my last a Conservative, W. B. Berkeley, of Prince Edward County, has announced himself a candidate, subject to the action of a convention if one is held. This condition leaves his candidacy an uncertainty, as it is probable the party leaders will determine it best not to hold a convention. Our friends need have no fears of the election of a Conservative from the Fourth District, since it is the determination of at least one of the candidates (Col. Popham) to withdraw should such a possibility arise.

In this, the Fifth District, we have on our side C. Y. Thomas, Esq., of Henry County, and A. M. Davis, of Grayson, as the Conservative candidate. Mr. Thomas is a native of the State, a stanch Union man during the war, and a devoted Republican since. He was a member of the Constitutional Convention, and has also represented his county in the Legislature one or two terms. In the Convention and the Legislature he was the ablest representative of Republican principles we had, and, although party spirits ran high, he always commanded the highest respect from his political opponents. Democracy intended that this district should send a Democrat to Congress, but the nomination of C. Y. Thomas has destoyed their hopes, and insures us at least three Republicans from this State.

The Sixth District embraces several valley counties, the City of Lynchburg, and five or six counties immediately surrounding Lynchburg. In this district the contest will be between "Tom" Whitehead, of Amherst, the regular Democratic nominee, and James F. Johnson, Esq., of Bedford, an independent Conservative. Johnson is a lawyer of reputation, an able speaker, a very popular man, and, what is best of all, truly conservative in his sentiments. He is popular with both sides, and as he is by no means a lover of Mr. Greeley, the Republicans of that district, knowing it would be impossible to elect one of their own party, wisely determined to support Mr. Johnson. I predict his election by a handsome majority.

The Seventh District is composed of the great and wealthy valley counties, embracing what was known in the days of "Old Hickory" as the "Tenth legion," of whose people, 'tis said, they are still voting for "Andy" Jackson. Be this as it may, this is the home of Democracy, and an unhealthy locality for Republicans. In spite of the "unpleasantness," a number of our most devoted members live in the Seventh District, who never allow themselves to be run over roughshod. The Democratic Convention recently held in this district, nominated Judge Harris, of Augusta, over Thos. W. Duke, of Albemarle, both members of Congress at this time. The recent gerrymander of the State threw them both in one district. Harris has grown quite popular of late with Democrats, notwithstanding he was once the candidate of the Republican Party in this district for a seat in Congress. He has opposed to him an independent fire-eater, of Rockingham, Mr. O'Ferrall, present representative of that county in the Virginia Legislature. He is bitterly opposed to both Grant and Greeley, and goes in for a straight-out Democrat. Many of the best citizens of his section agree with him, and will support him warmly as against the regular moogrel nominee. The Republicans have decided to support O'Ferrall, who, with them and men of his own way of thinking, will give him a respectable vote. In this district we are constantly gaining accessions to our party, and as Democracy is more disaffected there than in any other portion of the State, we may expect a largely-increased vote for Grant and Wilson.

The Eighth District embraces the county in which Hon. John S. Mosby resides. Your correspondent held a very pleasant interview with Col. Mosby upon the political condition of affairs in his section, and while I had heard he was favorable to the election of Gen. Grant, I was not prepared to find him, as he is, so earnestly engaged and at work as he is to defeat the Greeley move. One would almost believe he was an earnest Republican to talk with him casually, but on inquiry you would find him anything else. He feels a deep interest in carrying his county (Fauquier) for Grant and Wilson, and speaks confidently of the ability to do so. He will be to create a wonderful revolution in a county which usually gives from nine to twelve hundred Democratic majority. Mosby is a wonderful man, and if he would consent to canvass the State for Gen. Grant, would so revolutionize it as to give it for Grant beyond a doubt. Gen. Eppa Hunton has been nominated by the Democrats of the Seventh District. He is a resident of Col. Mosby's county, and they are particular friends. Our party has made no nomination in this district, preferring to vote for an independent Grant Democrat if one will offer.

Maj. Richard H. Carter, of Col. Mosby's county, is almost persuaded to oppose Hunton, and being a Grant Democrat of great popularity, would poll a large vote, and give Hunton a close race. In case he refuses, a Republican will be nominated, no greater mistake could the party demand that they shall have some one for whom to vote.

The Ninth District embraces most of the counties of the south-west, and gives ordinarily the largest Democratic majority of any district in the State. The Republicans have nominated Col. Robert W. Hughes, of Wasnington, United States District-Attorney for the Western district of Virginia, and the Democrats an old fossilized Militia General by the name of Bowen, of Tazewell County, there were forty-seven aspirants for the honor in this district, and Bowen was selected as a compromise candidate, the worst perhaps of the lot. It was supposed his nomination would be satisfactory to all concerned, but it seems Wm. P. Cecil, one of the disappointed, has announced his determination to run independent. Were he as popular as some of the other disappointed ones, he would divide the vote with the nominee, which would result in the election of Col. Hughes. As matters now stand in this district, the defeat of Hughes by no means certain.

The Democratic party has already rejoiced over the finale of the Louisville Convention. We join them in their happiness, since we had a right to fear its results in this State. Mr. Lyons returned last night, but has not allowed himself to be interviewed.

Gen. Wickham has consented, I understand, to accept the position of Presidential Elector for this district in place of Samuel F. Maddox, who has been given a position in the Custom-house. Gen. Wickham's ability, coupled with his popularity, will add much strength to the ticket, and will result in the election of John Ambler Smith, Republican candidate for Congress.

Those of us who entertained the hope that the campaign would be conducted in a spirit of fairness and kindness begin already to see evidences of our mistake. Many of the Democratic canvassers are already announced their usual low abuse of our active workers. The Fredericksburg News, in every issue, is blackguarding and abusing our candidate for Congress in that district, and the Charlottesville Chronicle of last week made a low and unjustifiable attack upon John W. Wolfe, our secretary of the State Committee. There is reasonable satisfactory to every Republican which prevent the obstinacy of these creatures or from resorting to the usual Southern style of pistols and coffee. In the last-mentioned case, Mr. Wolfe published a severe and bitter card, addressed to John H. Foster, the editor of the paper attacking him, which will more than likely result in a serious difficulty. I know it is only necessary for the two to meet to make the work red hot. Should this affair culminate as is expected it will, the feeling on both sides will grow more and more bitter, and we may expect a sad and deplorable condition of affairs in this State.

Let the chivalry of the State once realize that their cause, in which they have staked their honor and reputation, is lost, then they will grow more desperate than ever, and attempt, by abuse and intimidation, to accomplish what by honorable means they could not.

The murderer Fewell, who cowardly crept to the jail of Prince William and assassinated Jas. F. Clarke, the alleged seducer of his sister, is not sustained, as I expected he would be, by all the papers in the State. Several of them call upon the county to punish the wretch and vindicate the honor of the State. If Fewell is permitted to go unpunished it will leave a stain upon our old Commonwealth so black as to excite the pity of the civilized world. I predict he will not be harmed, but will be turned loose to disgrace the community for whom he was raised.

A magnificent flag, with oil-paintings of Grant and Wilson, was raised at Culpeper Court-house on Friday last, amid the cheers and applause of at least a thousand devoted Republicans.

Speeches were made, and a good time generally enjoyed. [illegible] The [illegible] will be up in the State between now and election day.

Our Democratic friends had promised the people of the State that Hon. Mr. Doolittle would tell them what he knew about reform, but since your exposure of what he knew about it in the year they have concluded he would do little for Greeley, and have determined to let him stay at home. We are discovering in our Municipal Government, all in the hands of modern reformers, some things of a disgraceful character, which will, on a small scale, compare favorably with the exploits of Tweed & Co. in New-York City. Our Democratic friends are welcome, most sincerely, to [illegible]. W. W.

THE POLITICAL OUTLOOK.

Reports to the Republican National Committee—The Greeley Movement Declining Everywhere—Letters from Americans in Europe.

The Republican National Committee have been, during the past week, in receipt of letters from all parts of the Union. The advices from Alabama, Kansas, Indiana, Virginia, Louisiana, Missouri, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Wisconsin, Mississippi, Minnesota and California are of the most cheering character. The subjoined excerpts from letters received tell a story which will be confirmed in November:

J. L. P. writes from Alabama:

"The Democrats and Conservatives of Alabama are not very sanguine of Greeley's success, and of late many of them have come out decidedly against Greeley. They are very eager in their desire to get Republican documents and learn what Greeley has said about them. I am sure we shall get more Democratic votes in Alabama than the opposition will Republican votes."

R. R., from Carrollton, Ohio, writes:

"There were some Greeley Republicans in our county, but the number has diminished every day, until I can now hardly find but one. * * * The Republicans are waking up here, and are going into the canvass in earnest."

O. M. S. writes from Chetopa, Labelle County Kansas:

"Inclosed you will find an article taken from the New-York Tribune, said to come from 'An Intelligent Citizen of Kansas.' I claim there are some other intelligent citizens of Kansas who differ very materially from the gentleman in regard to the State of Kansas being safe for Greeley. Let the Greeleyites keep on hoping! they will be terribly disappointed if they do. The Republicans here are solid for Grant, and in my 'Labrale' can now be found, although there was considerable interest felt by some in the Cincinnati Convention. But Mr. Greeley's course there and since that time has not found much favor here, and the vote in November in Kansas will, I think, be a strictly party one."

W. W. writes from Indianapolis, Ind.:

"I have just arrived here from the southern part of the State, which I have traveled over pretty well, having made thirty-two speeches in that part of the State. The audiences everywhere have been immense, and the heartiest enthusiasm has prevailed. The Republicans are wide awake, and I have great faith we shall win a glorious victory in October. There has been an attempt made by the Democrats to colonize from the rebel States, but in Kentucky we will endeavor to guard against any such foul play."

E. R. T. writes from Massachusetts:

"We had the largest out-door meeting here (North Adams) last Saturday ever held in Northern Berkshire. Senator Wilson spoke about two hours to a crowd of about 5,000, and was listened to with the closest attention. We intend to raise our majority 200 more than it was in 1868, when it was 500."

J. W. W. writes from Richmond, Va.:

"The Greeley decline still continues. Our prospects brighten every day. I know of but two or three negroes going for Greeley, and I am sure the number will not be increased. They do not feel strong enough to forsake their old friends and rush into the embraces of their late enemies."

J. H. L. writes from New-Orleans, La.:

"The Republican Party of Louisiana has united in the support of one Grant and Wilson electoral ticket, and of a united State ticket, as follows: Governor, Wm. Pitt Kellogg; Lieut.-Gov., C. C. Antoine; Secretary of State, F. D. Desdunes; Attorney-General, A. P. Field; Congressman at large, P. B. S. Pinchback. We are now sure of carrying this State, both for our National and State tickets. Place Louisiana in your list of States that is sure for Grant and Wilson."

H. T. B. writes from St. Louis, Mo.:

"Our progress in the State continues to be very encouraging. I can hardly realize the great changes which have occurred in the last sixty days, previous to which it was generally conceded that we were in a great minority. If the next ten days continue to favor us as much as the last, the State will give us a handsome majority. We are straining every nerve to that end. Our State Convention on the 4th will be one of the best ever assembled in the State, and so far looks as if it would be most harmonious. * * * The Germans are acting manfully and nobly, and every day gives us evidence of their unshaken loyalty to our party, and that against the most urgent appeals to their nationality. Our colored votes have compacted with an earnestness and a feeling not known to my mind, in a most conclusive evidence that a change of Administration is dreaded. That in proportion as the people in any part of the country think of the past dangers, and of thinking of them, determine not to trust those who failed the Government in its hour of trial. * * Grant and Wilson will receive the votes of more old-fashioned Democrats than any calculation has yet given them, and I now believe that we will lose 5,000 Republican votes in the State. The fact is perfectly apparent that there is a reaction in the country, and that a happy and prosperous people begin to understand that the clamorous enemies are in the ranks of the motley party which aims at personal success though the country be fmperilled and ruined. The people are on their guard, and it will be impossible to deceive them. Hence the skies are becoming perfectly clear, and each day brings evidence of our coming victory."

B. E. L. writes from Bethlehem, Penn.:

"In South Bethlehem, where we never polled more than 50 votes, we have already the signatures of over 150 Democrats on the Grant and Hartranft Club."

A letter from E. D. C., Cincinnati, Ohio, says:

"The Liberals and Democrats have united pretty well all over the State, and they are at work in earnest. But I am confident our last majority of 18,000 will not be diminished in October. The election is for Supreme Judge, Secretary of State, and minor officers, and the names on our ticket are of the very best. * * * The nominations of the Cincinnati Convention are a great disappointment to those disaffected and cold Republicans who looked to it. There is now but a very small sprinkling of Liberals in the State. The Germans are coming back to us by hundreds. They were exceedingly displeased at the nomination of Greeley, and they now cannot swallow him. Count Ohio safe for Grant."

The following letter was received from Mississippi a few days before the arrival by express of a Kuklux uniform, which has been the subject of considerable comment at the Republican National Committee's head-quarters. The uniform has been described in the TIMES:

"The accompanying Kuklux garb is an object which I used as testimony in the case of the United States vs. J. H. White et al., in Attala County. The owner was killed while wearing it, and has blood in spots in it, together with the blood of several of his victims, which got upon it before his death. He was a Captain of a lodge of Kuklux in Attala. We shall certainly carry the State in November for Grant. No serious disaffections have taken place, and we are daily growing in strength."

E. W. K. writes from Madison, Wis.:

"The Greeley bubble has burst in Wisconsin, and cannot assume any formidable shape so far as Liberal Republicans are concerned. If the Liberal movement in this State ever possessed any power it has now passed away. Its weakness is fully apparent, and confidence is restored among the Republicans that the State will be carried for Grant and Wilson by the usual majority. A vigorous contest will be passed until November, and we shall certainly carry it."

A. R., from Minnesota, writes:

"Our State is safe for Grant. Put us down for an undiminished Republican majority in November."

J. C. writes from San Francisco, Cal.:

"Grant and Wilson Clubs are forming all over the State, many old Democrats joining them. We shall certainly give a handsome majority for the Philadelphia nominees."

The following letters from Americans across the broad Atlantic, show that Americans, though far distant, are fully alive to the issues at home:

A letter from Manchester, England, says:

"It is singular to observe what interest the people in this country take in our Presidential contest. All those who opposed the North during the war, all those who do not believe in Republican institutions, or rather nearly all; all those who have any interest in the Confederate debt, either of the Confederacy or other States, are strongly in favor of Horace Greeley. They are very eager in their desire to get Republican documents and learn what Greeley has said about them. I am sure we shall get more Democratic votes in Alabama than the opposition will Republican votes."

A letter from Rotterdam, in the Netherlands, says:

"Would the American people—especially all wavering Republicans—learn the views of all liberal and unprejudiced men of the business world of Europe, they would find a glowing admiration of his policy as President—his wisdom as their administration of him as General. The prosperity and quiet in all parts of the Union is remarked by all, and the faith in the management of our Government since it has been in his hands has been unlimited, and the best and most intelligent friends of our institutions hope he will be continued in office another four years.

Would it not be well to call home the thousands of Americans in Europe? I know but a few who are for a change in the Administration, and I think we could get 25,000 votes by doing so."

"On to Richmond."

Horace Greeley in 1861:

"We have confessed our own terrible mistake in the premises, and are trying to amend it. Gen. Scott has been equally ingenuous and candid. It was a misconception of forces,' he says of the recent disaster. That is the real truth. None of us had any idea of the immense numbers and tremendous engineery of war that the rebels had silently collected around their position at Manassas Junction. Whoever ordered or planned the attack on that position was miserly unaware of their strength."—Tribune, July 27, 1861.

Horace Greeley in 1862:

"The war cry "Forward to Richmond" did not originate with me; but it is just what should have been uttered, and the words should have been translated into deeds. * * Those whose blundering incapacity or lack of purpose was responsible for these ills united in throwing the blame on the faithful few who had counseled justly, but whose urgent remonstrance they had never heeded. 'Forward to Richmond' was execrated as the impulse to disaster, even by some who had lustily cheered it."—Recollections of a Busy Life, p. 403.

HORACE GREELEY AND THE TRIBUNE.

Another Army of Disgusted Greenbum Subscribers—Painful Doubts as to the Reported Prosperity of the "Organ"—The Slanderers of the Presidential Candidate—How Obscure Democrats Bloom into "Prominent Liberals."

A Tribune subscriber for thirteen years, signing himself G. W. T., writing from Lowell, Mass., under date of Sept. 8, declares that it cost him a great effort of will-power to turn his back on Horace Greeley, after having read his paper and occasionally listened to his speeches and lectures for such a long time. Duty to himself and to his country finally compelled him to do it, and now that he is "well rid of the whole stock, lock and barrel," he is not without a feeling of concern for the soul of poor old Horace while the latter remains in the camp of those who were once his bitterest foes. After referring to an inclosed subscription for the TIMES, the writer continues:

"To see the class of men who uphold the cause of Horace should be enough to convince all honest voters that Gen. Grant has reflected honor on the country; that he has brought us through a great civil war, while his opponent was counseling us to let the South go in peace, and that he is worthy of a second term."

N. B., of East Madison, N. Y., in a letter inclosing a subscription to the SEMI-WEEKLY TIMES, brings together a number of Mr. GREELEY'S favorite phrases for "old-time Democrats" in an ingenious manner. N. B. had been a subscriber for the Tribune up to a recent date. He discontinued it, according to his own statement, because the familiar appearance of the head-line was not sufficient to counteract the pernicious influence of the matter contained in the editorial columns. This writer is evidently determined not to be caught a second time, as may be seen from the following proviso:

"I take the TIMES on the condition that it remains faithful to the Republican cause, i. e., justice, fairness, advancement of the rights of humanity, honesty, and true reform from all political corruption—so unlike the Greeley reform, which means really reform from all truth, all honesty, all honor, all uprightness and all righteous principles."

Mr. F. J. Lee, of Howell, Mich., has become honestly indignant at the publication of a slanderous report which promises his State to Greeley and Brown by a handsome majority.

As the Tribune has made some capital out of the falsehood, Mr. Lee is now desirous of giving the Professor and his friends a chance to make something against a rainy day. Having just referred to an inclosed subscription to the TIMES, Mr. Lee continues:

"If Greeley's sucessors in the Tribune office believe that Michigan will go for their candidates next November, I will bet them $500 that Grant will have 10,000 majority; $500 that Grant will have 20,000 majority; $500 that Grant will have 30,000 majority; $500 that Grant will have 40,000 majority; the four bets to be taken together, and the money to be deposited in the Second National Bank, Detroit. The fact is, that Greeley, with all their blowing, cannot poll over ten or fifteen hundred votes in Michigan from the Republican Party, while Grant will get more than four times that number from the Democratic Party."

A. W., of Bedford, Westchester County, N. Y., confesses that he places very slight reliance upon a statement which recently appeared in the Tribune, claiming that the "mail" subscription list of that journal had largely increased since Mr. Greeley's political somersault. At the post-office in his town, the daily Tribune has now no circulation, while the weekly has been reduced to five copies, and the semi-weekly to four. Since this reduction the circulation of the daily TIMES has increased nineteen copies, the weekly fifty copies, and the semi-weekly fifteen copies. The writer, in conclusion, says: "I will also add that not one of the present subscribers to the Tribune is a 'Greeleyite.'"

L. F. B., of Coxsackie, says that the Greeley and Brown men of his town are in a very small majority, the reports in the Tribune to the contrary, notwithstanding. A Grant and Wilson Club, started some time since, has now 350 voting members, "all enthusiastic for the right." "Inclosed," says the writer, "please find $5 for the daily TIMES, for six months. I have been a subscriber to the Tribune, and am thankful that my time is up, and that I am no longer offended with the presence of that paper in my house."

L. B., of St. Albans, Vt., in the following communication, puts a great deal in a small space:

"Please send me the daily TIMES for another year. I consider it the most honest and useful paper in the world, and wish to subscribe for it as long as I live."

J. W. L., of Shade Gap, Huntingdon County, Pennsylvania, incloses a list of new subscribers to the TIMES, and takes occasion to remark that Greeley and his "sorehead" companions are making but slow progress in his section of country. The Republicans are all true to Grant, and he believes they will give a good account of themselves in November.

"Greeley," says the writer, "may think he is gaining ground here, but he will find his mistake when it is too late. Some Democrats are going for him, it is true; but if I mistake not, quite as many will cast their ballots for Grant and Wilson."

J. M. P., of Russell, N. Y., writes to say that, as far as his townsmen are concerned, the Tribune might as well be out of print altogether. The old subscribers have dropped it by degrees, since Mr. Greeley's apostacy, until there is not a single copy now taken from the Post-office. Even the Democrats do not show a desire to read it, believing, as they do, that Horace has been too severe upon them to gain absolution so speedily.

"What a pity it is," says J. M. P., "that poor old Horace ever lived to find himself so unpopular. If he had only died before he was seized with the ambition to become President, millions of people would have mourned for him as if he had been a kinsman. Now his friends of a lifetime despise him, and his enemies of a lifetime like him no better, if the whole truth was known. Inclosed please find a check. Send fifty copies of the WEEKLY TIMES to my address. The club increases rapidly."

H., in a lengthy communication from Cooperstown, Otsego County, N. Y., takes pains to contradict the repeated falsehoods of Tribune correspondents in that section. First of all, he says that the persons who are said to have come from the Republican ranks to join the Greeley and Brown clubs—if there are any—are those of men who are, for the greater part, unqualifiedly in favor of Gen. Grant. He also wishes it understood that men have been styled "prominent" by the Tribune who are as obscure as Cowper's "peasant woman," their names having never before been in print. Fly Creek is especially referred to as the stronghold of "Liberals," whereas it has not yet been able to contribute a sufficient number to officer one club. The writer declares, moreover, that all the towns in the county have a decided Grant majority, and that this will be shown at the proper time. In conclusion H. says: "The TIMES is doing brilliant service in this campaign. I enclose a subscription to the daily."

Eight respectable citizens of Gypsum, in this State, who have become subscribers to the TIMES, inclose the copy of a letter which they have recently sent to the publisher of the Tribune, asking a discontinuance of that paper. It is of the usual nature—upbraids Mr. Greeley for his unfair dealing in agreeing to give them a Republican journal for a certain period, and then violating the contract. The following is an extract from this letter:

"It [the Tribune] is now, in our opinion, a very weakly 'no organ,' petted and patronized by the most corrupt portion of the Democratic Party, whose apologist and defender it has become. Of course, it has ceased to reflect our views, and we wish it discontinued. Judging by the futile efforts of others, we have no hope of getting back the money paid for the paper, out of which we feel we have been wronged, but we can afford to lose it if your Association care to keep it. Please stop the paper from and after this date. If sent, we shall appoint one of our number to take it from the office and destroy it. We have transferred our subscriptions to the NEW-YORK TIMES."

Press Opinions on the Same Subject.

From the Portland Oregonian.

The NEW-YORK TIMES, beyond all question, is the ablest, fairest, and most trustworthy of the great journals of the country. It is now the leading Republican paper of the United States. The commanding position it occupies has been achieved by untiring energy and the interested fidelity to the Republican Party. It holds the place as a leading Republican journal which was occupied by the Tribune before that paper formed its alliance with the Tammany and Kuklux Democracy. No other great paper equals the TIMES in the trustworthiness of its news. While the Tribune and the lesser Democratic organs were claiming North Carolina, the TIMES maintained that the State was Republican. No other paper takes so much pains to report political news accurately, and no great journal in the country is so well worthy of the support of the Republicans. The TIMES is taking the Tribune's old patrons by thousands.

From the Missouri Democrat.

The New-York Tribune boasts of its increasing circulation as an evidence of the popularity of the Greeley movement. Let us see about that. The Tribune's daily circulation never was very large, compared with that of its City cotemporaries. But it has for years enjoyed a large weekly circulation among the manufacturing districts of the East and the farmers of the West—the former because of its tariff theories, and the latter because of its devotion to the Republican Party. Nine-tenths of its weekly subscriptions are received in the Winter months. When its present list was secured the Tribune was a protection organ and a Republican organ. Those who subscribed for that paper last Winter did so in the expectation of receiving this particular kind of a newspaper; and the Tribune, in receiving their subscriptions, agreed to furnish just such a newspaper. With the money of its subscribers in its coffers, it now proves false to its promises, and commits a fraud upon every man who paid for it before it bolted. The new subscribers of whom it boasts are Democrats, who will drop it like a hot potato after the November election. The day of reckoning for the Tribune will come next Winter, when the time for renewal of old subscriptions arrives. We will make a small wager that the Tribune will be printing half as many copies of either daily or weekly a year from now as it is printing today. Big frauds are not easily repeated upon sensible people.

From the Bradford (Penn.) Reporter.

To the Chairman of the Republican Committee of Bradford County:

The undersigned Republicans, members of a club of subscribers to the New-York Weekly Tribune, made up at the Wyalusing Post-office, in the month of December, 1871, and paid in advance for one year, take this method of protesting against the fraud which has been practiced upon us through the medium of the following circular issued by the Tribune publisher:

NEW-YORK TRIBUNE,
NEW-YORK, Nov. 15, 1871.

DEAR SIR: In view of the approaching Presidential election we are anxious to increase the circulation of the Tribune, and shall be kind enough to furnish us with the name of one good, active Republican at each post-office in your county, who would probably undertake to form a club for the Weekly Tribune, or increase the one already formed.

If you think with us that an increased circulation of the Tribune will conduce to the election of the Republican candidate for President, we shall be glad to have you correspond with us at your earliest convenience.

Very respectfully,
SAMUEL SINCLAIR,
Publisher.

The "one good active Republican" was found in Wyalusing to respond to the appeal of the above circular, and the Tribune has since been our enemy and has since basely betrayed the principles of the Republican Party, and, as we believe, its editor, Horace Greeley, was then plotting to become the candidate of the Democratic Party for the Presidency.

We repudiate the new-found political principles of the Tribune and its apostate candidate for the Presidency against the hero who conquered the rebellion.

We are obliged for your efforts to secure for us a paper advocating Republican principles during the present campaign.

Stevens, U. S. Snover, Chester Goodel, J. E. Vaughan, John Vaughan, G. F. Chamberlain, J. L. Gaylord, J. H. Stevens, J. F. Stevens, J. C. Blocher, T. F. Brown, J. R. Taylor, C. S. Homet, M. T. Slotry, J. K. Newell, G. M. BIXBY, L. P. Stafford.

Editorial Comment of same Paper.

While the editor of the Tribune was intriguing with the Democrats for the Presidential nomination the publisher of that paper was sending round a circular soliciting Republican aid to increase the circulation of his paper for the following reason:

"If you think, with us, that an increased circulation of the Tribune will conduce to the election of the Republican candidate for President, we shall be glad to have you comply with our request at an early day."

While the Republicans of Bradford were engaged in getting up clubs, agreeably to this request, Greeley was bargaining with the Democratic leaders, that the tone of the Tribune should be changed. Its readers will remember how faithfully he carried out his compact with the Democrats, and how gradually but surely the Tribune changed from a Republican to a Democratic organ.

Relying upon the implied, if not positive pledge, in the circular of the publisher of the Tribune, that a paper would be furnished, some subscribed and paid for the Tribune, supposing they were to receive a Republican newspaper. Probably not fifty of the number could now be persuaded to subscribe for that paper. It is a serious question, how nearly this conduct on the part of the Tribune publisher comes within the purview of the statute for obtaining goods under false pretenses.

As the Tribune has apostatized and gone back on its promises and its past professions, its subscribers in Bradford find themselves without such a newspaper as they needed and supposed they had paid for. It is decisive to apply to the publisher of the Tribune to make restitution of the money thus fraudulently obtained. Such a request would only subject the asker to being called a "horse-thief, villain and liar." But partly to do justice to those who have paid their money for the Tribune, and to supply them with a sound and able City paper, arrangements have been made to send to each the WEEKLY NEW-YORK TIMES. If our Greeley friends see anything unlawful or horrible in that—they are welcome to express their indignation in their choicest phrases.

From the Boston Transcript.

The NEW-YORK WEEKLY TIMES is fast gaining in circulation in New-England. In the small town of Littleton, N. H., sixty copies are taken. A local paper there says that the Tribune has of late lost about one-half of its circulation in the place.

From the Hamilton (Canada) Times.

The NEW-YORK TIMES having won a great reputation by its successful crusade against Tammany, has since added thereto by managing a series of picnics for all the poor children of New-York, thus converting itself into an amateur benevolent society.

From the Washington Chronicle.

The NEW-YORK TIMES claims a gain of 15,380 in its daily circulation during the past three months, and an increase in weekly circulation during the same time of 70,200. To a large extent the gain of the TIMES is probably the Tribune's loss.

From the Petersburg, (Va.) Index.

The NEW-YORK TIMES, the journal that stood single against the Tammany Ring, and overthrew it, this Summer, has set on foot a plan to provide excursions for the poorest and most neglected of the children in New-York, a plan which proves under the management of the TIMES, thoroughly successful, furnishing an innocent and healthful pleasure to thousands of desolate lives.

From the Lancaster (Penn.) Examiner.

Since the fall of the New-York Tribune, the NEW-YORK TIMES has met with wonderful success. Since the 26th of May the daily edition of the TIMES' circulation has increased 15,280, and the weekly 70,200. The muddling of Mr. Greeley's brain with the Presidency, and the Tribune espousing the cause of the rebels has resulted in placing the TIMES in the front rank of Republican newspapers. It is edited with very great ability, and worthy of the confidence of the Republican Party of the nation.

ITALY.

The Religious Orders and the State—Public Sentiment on the Question—The Attitude of the Pope—New Princes of the Church—The Influence of Garibaldi—A Letter to the Republic.

From Our Own Correspondent.

SIENNA, Tuesday, Aug. 20, 1872.

Since writing last, an authorized journal has given an analysis of the scheme of law which the Ministry has matured touching the question of the religious orders at Rome, which will be brought before Parliament at the Autumnal session. It does not differ essentially from that which we have all along supposed would be the plan of the moderate party. It is not sufficiently radical to suit the Opposition, and already criticism is heard in the organs of the extreme Left, and the counselors of the Crown are warned that the thoroughness of the measure which they have framed will be made the test of their continuance in power. The Ministry has been charged with a lack of courage on this question; that the fear of raising a storm of indignation among Catholics outside of Italy had caused this postponement of nearly two years, and has influenced some of the members of the Cabinet to desire the indefinite adjournment of Parliamentary action. As for public opinion within the Kingdom of Italy, it has been constantly ripening, and demanding with more and more energy the indiscriminate application to the religious orders and the convent property of Rome the law which has been in force for five or six years in the other parts of the country. Meanwhile the expropriation of convent property is going on in force of existing law, or that which authorizes the State to take possession of lands and buildings needed for public use. A few days back notice was given to the brothers of the great establishment of the Jesuits, in the centre of Rome, to give up the principal part of their house within a period of ten days. As you very well know, this property is connected with the Church of the Gesù, one of the most splendid, in its interior decorations, of any in Rome. The palace covers the entire quadrangle, and there is hardly another convent possession in the city more valuable, either for public or private uses. A considerable part of the buildings were erected at the expense of the Farnese family, about three centuries ago, and there lived for some years, and died, St. Ignatius Loyola, the founder of the Jesuit Order. Father Beckx, the present General of the Company, has his head-quarters in the palace, and there, indeed, is to be found the chief centre of that remarkable influence. You can well conceive of the shock which this summary act has given to those who but yesterday were absolute masters in Rome. It is getting them used to trial, and preparing them for the heavier blow which is soon to fall.

THE ATTITUDE OF THE POPE.

In connection with this, it is again more positively than ever asserted, that as soon as the discussion of the ecclesiastical property question is introduced into Parliament the Pope will quit Rome, and betake himself to Belgium. Of the probability of this, with the knowledge of the circumstances in your possession, you are quite as well qualified to judge as we are here. If Pius IX. sets out on such a voyage, it will be equivalent to taking the stump to arouse Europe from the lethargy and condition of indifference to the temporal cause into which it has fallen. The Pope speaks fluently three or four languages, and enjoys nothing better than to be called upon to harangue an audience; but it is doubtful whether he would be able to help the forlorn fortunes of the temporal off ce by imitating the example of Andrew Johnson.

NEW PRINCES OF THE CHURCH.

We hear from Rome that in all probability the Pope will make a distribution of red hats at a consistory to be held in a few days. The College of Cardinals is now reduced to about forty, and it is several years since any new member has been added to the conclave. The Papal Nuncios at two or three European Courts are spoken of as candidates for the apostolic honor, to which is to be added the name of Monsigner de Merode, the most important man now left in the Pope's household. The time is near, according to report, when an American prelate will be raised to the rank of a Prince of the Church.

THE INFLUENCE OF GARIBALDI.

Your eye has doubtless fallen upon the letter which Garibaldi has written to the Republicans of Italy upon the present duty and policy of the country. Garibaldi is still a power in the State, and however little value may be placed on his judgment in political affairs it is necessary to take notice of what he writes, for his influence is great. It is not forgotten that he has been the most efficient of all the agents in the liberation of Italy, and the honesty of his patriotism has not been doubted by the most obstinate enemies of the Republican leader. In every public place all over Italy may be seen, side by side, the portraits of three men, who are considered the saviors of the nation—Victor Emmanuel, Garibaldi, and Cavour; and the greatest of these, in the love and praise of the people, is Garibaldi. Thus when Garibaldi, in his benevolent weakness, chooses to speak to the public a new word, all ask: What does the hero say? In the present appeal to the party of the Italian Democracy, Garibaldi, instead of losing himself in a maze of sterile generalities, proposes very distinctly certain reforms which he wishes to see carried out. These are some of his words:

"Let the first article of the Constitution, which affirms the Catholic religion to be the religion of the State, be abolished. While it exists the so much extolled doctrine of liberty of conscience is an audacious hypocrisy. It should be abolished, and with it all the privileges which give the implacable enemies of the country and of civilization power to do harm, causing to cease the tyranny of the priests which is now officially recognized. To Rome, restored to Italy, is offered this mission of emancipation. Culpable is the Government which, in obsequiousness to diplomacy, and even in violation of duty, hesitates to apply to the capital city the rule in virtue of which, in the rest of the State, the religious corporations are abolished. It is necessary to insist, so that this scandal of leaving the disease where it is most infectious may be brought to an end. We demand the suppression of the religious corporations of Rome without delay and without restrictions. And since the bonds of ignorance cannot be broken without instruction, we must insist that it shall be gratuitous, obligatory and under the control of the laity. Without this the schools dominated over by the clerical sect, instead of educating, would pervert the people. The State can favor the doctrines of a blind faith, which prepares the slavery of conscience and of thought. Again, let it be reiterated—obligatory instruction in secular schools. The exigencies of finance demand decentralization, which should have for its base the municipal system, such as we find in the glorious traditions of our own Italy, and in the modern example of the United States. We must lend also a warm advocacy to the system of universal suffrage, which gives to every citizen to those without inheritance, restoring to each a fundamental right; excluding only those who do not know how to read and write."

And in this strain Garibaldi goes on, his letter framing a sort of programme for the future for his party. Considerable notice has been taken of these latest utterances of the Republican chief, and the organs of all opinions have been more inclined to praise than to severely criticise them. With the death of Mazzini, has, without doubt, succeeded greater unity among Italian Republicans, and Garibaldi remains the single great leader of the struggles of forty years. Reconciliations have been brought about, and the aims and sympathies of the masses of followers are more in common, and the good conduct of Italians has at last elicited the approbation of even M. Thiers.

FIRM GOVERNMENT MEASURES.

Another proof has just been given at Rome of the energy with which the authority is determined to act in seeing that respect is paid to the law, without distinction of persons or parties. Four schools for the instruction of female pupils, under the direction of the clerical power, have just been closed by an order from the Minister, for refusing to permit the examination which is required by the law for all educational establishments. The suspension will not be permanent, or only until such time as an assurance may be obtained of a willingness to conform to legal requirements. The new Minister of Public Instruction, Senor Scialoia, formerly at the head of the Department of Finance, is one of the ablest men in Italian public life, and much is expected of his ability to give a new impulse to the movement for [illegible] and the indifference caused by the backsides of the previous [illegible] office.

A Convincing Letter from Gen. Lew. Wallace—Another Pile of Slanders Swept Aside.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., Aug. 30, 1872.

Editor Omaha Tribune and Republican:

I am in receipt of your letter of the 23d inst., asking if Gen. Grant was drunk at the battles of Donelson and Shiloh, and requesting full particulars. It was my fortune to be one of a council of war, assembled on Gen. Grant's boat at Fort Henry the day before the army moved on Fort Donelson. The council was in session the greater part of the afternoon. Gen. Grant presided in person, and was perfectly sober. There was a box of cigars on the table, but no liquor of any kind was seen or drank. The army marched next morning, (Feb. 13.) I shook hands with Gen. Grant when he mounted his horse and took his place in the column. He was perfectly sober then. The General left me behind in command of Fort Henry, but, by order, I refolded him on the 14th at noon. He was at his head-quarters, close in rear of Gen. C. F. Smith's line of investments. There were crackers, coffee and cigars, but no liquor. In my presence, Gen. Grant wrote an order constituting the third division of his army, specifying precisely the regiments—your noble First Nebraska among the rest—and assigning me to the command. I have the original order yet. It is legibly and in Gen. Grant's own hand, as were nearly all the orders that came from him in that campaign. The guns were pounding away while he wrote. A drunken man could not have written it. The division was organized as it marched past on the road. Then Gen. Grant rode with me to designate my position in the centre. He showed me a sign of intoxication

CHICAGO AND CANADA SOUTHERN

First Mortgage Sinking Fund 30 Years

SEVEN PER CENT. GOLD BONDS

Interest Payable April and October at the Union Trust Company,

AT 90 AND ACCRUED INTEREST.

This road is the Western link in the new AIR LINE from BUFFALO to CHICAGO and runs from the Detroit River to Chicago in nearly a straight line.

The road is a part of the same line as the Canada Southern and is being built by the same men, viz.: Milton Courtright, John F. Tracy, David Dows, Wm. L. Scott, Henry Farnam, R. A. Forsyth, Jno. M. Burke, M. L. Sykes, Jr., all Directors either in the Chicago and North-west or the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific; George Opdyke, of the Midland Road; Sidney Dillon, Daniel Drew, John Ross, David Stewart, Samuel J. Tilden, Kenyon Cox, and other prominent railroad men.

The Road, like the Canada Southern, will have steel rails (60 pounds to the yard) throughout; is practically straight and level; much shorter, and can be run with greater speed and safety than any other road connecting with Buffalo and Chicago.

Twenty-five miles are finished and running; seventy-five miles more are so far advanced as to be finished by Jan. 1; and the entire road will be completed during the ensuing year. Steel rails and ties for one-half the entire road have already been purchased.

The builders of the road control enough of its Chicago feeders to obtain for it a profitable business from the start, having projected the line to accommodate existing business, and having seen the necessity for another trunk line between Chicago and the Atlantic sea-board, located expressly with the view of obtaining the cheapest transportation practicable.

The branch lines will make the shortest connections between Chicago and Toledo, and Chicago and Detroit, as well as between all these points and Buffalo.

The Canada Southern Bonds, in every particular like these, were eagerly taken, the last of them several weeks ago, by the best class of investors, and were on the market a shorter time than any other railroad loan of like amount for years past.

The proceeds of these bonds will complete the entire line, and we recommend them with the same confidence as we did the Canada Southern, and regard them as in every way a choice security.

EXTENSION RAILWAY

First Mortgage 7 Per Cent. Convertible

GOLD BONDS,

AT 90 AND INTEREST,

Issued by the Indianapolis, Bloomington and Western Railway to aid in building its EXTENSION line West, in a direct line from Champaign (185 miles) to the Mississippi River at Keokuk, and a branch, from White Heath (32 miles) to Decatur, all in the State of Illinois. The bonds are secured by a first and only mortgage on the EXTENSION, now being rapidly constructed in the most thorough manner by able and experienced contractors who represent a capital of several millions of dollars, which insures the last rail being laid at an early date. About 60 miles are already finished and 110 miles graded; the whole line, 217 miles, will be completed early in 1873. We have been connected and entirely familiar with the I., B. & W. Railway from its early organization. It was completed in the Autumn of 1870, and has developed rapidly into a SUCCESSFUL AND WEALTHY CORPORATION, having a large revenue from its largely increasing business. With the EXTENSION it will be one corporation, with 420 miles of road, located in a commanding position in the heart of the best portion of the country. The counties on the line of the EXTENSION in 1870 had a population of 242,330; valuation of real and personal estate, $151,000,000; bushels of grain raised, 27,000,000; value of farm products, $25,570,000, and live stock, $18,349,000; to which may safely be added 15 per cent. to represent the present population and value. THE COUNTIES ON THE OLD LINE AND THE EXTENSION TOGETHER CONTAIN A POPULATION OF NEARLY THREE-QUARTERS OF A MILLION, AND A PROPERTY VALUATION EXCEDING $400,000,000.

From these statistics it will be readily seen that the EXTENSION will have a Local Business that will make it a complete success. In addition to this it will have the entire Through Traffic of the Missouri, Iowa, and Nebraska Road, connecting with it on the Mississippi River, and extending West to the Missouri, 300 miles, where it connects with the Midland Pacific in Nebraska. These two corporations, and also the Peoria and Rock Island (92 miles,) and the Davenport and St. Paul (300 miles,) although separate corporations, ARE CONTROLLED IN THE INTEREST OF THE INDIANAPOLIS, BLOOMINGTON AND WESTERN RAILWAY, and, practically, will be a united line of more than 1,200 miles, the through business of which will pass over the L., B. & W. This is an East and West trunk route and has no parallel competing line. The Eastern connections at Indianapolis are the Pennsylvania Central, Baltimore and Ohio, Bellefontaine, Lake Shore, and New-York Central, and other roads centering at this point. From the Sea-board to the West and North-west distances are materially reduced via this system of roads; so much so that it cannot fail to be the popular line for travel and business. Liberal subscriptions to the stock were made by towns and counties on the line of the EXTENSION, and the remainder has been taken by experienced railroad men and Eastern capitalists.

These facts cannot fail to make the bonds, which will be issued only on completed road, take high rank among the best railway securities.

The bonds are $1,000 each, convertible into stock at par, at the option of the holder, and may be registered free of charge.

Coupons, payable January and July 1, free of tax. The bonds may now be had from banks and bankers throughout the country.

We offer them at present at 90 and interest, and recommend them strongly to our friends and investors as one of the safest and most desirable securities on the market.

Bonds delivered free of express charges. Maps, pamphlets and circulars furnished on application.

TWENTY PER CENT. INVESTMENT.

THE AMERICAN BRIDGE CO.,

OF CHICAGO, ILL.,

L. B. BOOMER, of Chicago, President.

(ORGANIZED AUG. 1, 1870.)

AUTHORIZED CAPITAL STOCK, $1,000,000.

The Subscription Books will Positively Close Oct. 1, 1872.

The whole amount of the Authorized Capital Stock of this Company not having been issued, the balance will be issued to subscribers at par, payments for same to be made in four installments of 25 per cent. each, viz.:

Twenty-five per cent. July 15, 25 per cent. Aug. 1, 25 per cent. Sept. 1, and 25 per cent. Oct. 1, 1872. Past due installments to be paid with interest at the time of subscription.

Books now open at the office of the undersigned will be positively closed at 3 P. M., Oct. 1, 1872.

The total amount of full-paid stock issued at this time is $750,000, and on this basis the Company shows a present surplus of $436,280 97, and is now doing a flourishing business. Over 1,000 men are almost constantly employed in their extensive works, and there are now on hand $2,500,000 of work for various railroads in the United States, (among which may be mentioned the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific, Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Company, Chicago and North-western, Missouri, Kansas and Texas, Michigan Central, Missouri Pacific, &c., &c.,) and the net profit on this work alone will be over $1,000,000. The Company is now offered work to the amount of more than $6,000,000, including some of the largest bridges ever built in this country; to accept of which and further business necessitates a larger working capital, as immense amounts of material have to be kept constantly on hand, and the Company are frequently obliged to receive in part payment for their work railroad and other bonds, which are perfectly good securities, but not always immediately marketable.

The THIRTY ACRES of land in Chicago belonging to the Company, and on which their extensive machine and other shops are situated, is now worth nearly $1,000,000, and prominent real estate dealers say it will be worth in six years, at least $1,000,000—an amount equal to the whole proposed capital.

The success of the AMERICAN BRIDGE COMPANY, though brief, has already fully demonstrated the profitableness of the enterprise. The Company has constructed since its organization, and up to the 30th of December, 1871, a total of 32,137 feet of bridges, 18 turning-tables and 16 iron roofs, and pneumatic and screw pile substructures, costing $3,400,000, and have facilities for the construction of pneumatic piles unsurpassed by any Company in the country, and a capacity for the construction of at least 150 feet of bridges for every working day in the year.

Their iron road and highway bridge at Leavenworth, of three spans of 340 feet each, and the Union Pacific Bridge across the Missouri River, of eleven spans of 250 feet each, were constructed by this Company.

The net profit arising from this business, as shown by the books of the Company, up to the 31st of March, 1872, was the sum of $372,489 14, or at the rate of $934,099 60 per annum, being over 50 per cent. upon the capital stock then outstanding. With the proposed new structures, machinery, &c., the Company will have much greater capacity, and the proceeds of the increased issue of stock will enable them to buy material for cash, thereby making a saving of from $50,000 to $75,000 per year.

The Company can undoubtedly, on above basis, make dividends of from 20 to 25 per cent. per annum on the full amount of capital, $1,000,000, with a fair prospect of a considerable increase.

The undersigned are prepared to give to those inquiring the fullest details and entire satisfaction regarding the reliability of the Company's statements, and the unquestioned integrity and ability of its officers.

We confidently commend to capitalists the above as an investment worthy their attention.

At Virden, where the deposits of bituminous coal are seven feet in depth, a large business will be created as soon as cheap transportation is assured by the construction of this road to accessible markets.

Thirty Miles from Jacksonville to Virden are already completed and fully equipped. Fifty miles will be finished in time to move the Autumn crops.

Act as feeders to the road at various points.

In connection, also, with the important roads now centering at Mount Vernon and Evansville must also secure it a large and remunerative traffic.

The road forms a part of a through route from St. Louis to the sea-board.

Running through a section of country thickly settled and producing large quantities of grain and lumber, with not an acre of waste land to be found anywhere in proximity to the road, its local traffic alone will amply secure the cost of building.

The issue of bonds is limited to $20,000 per mile, and we offer only $600,000 on the thirty miles of road already completed and in successful operation.

In view of the above facts, we recommend these Bonds on account of their ABSOLUTE SAFETY, and regard them as, in every way, a choice security. Pamphlets will be furnished on application.

7 Per Cent. Gold Bonds,

HAVING 30 YEARS TO RUN, PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST PAYABLE IN UNITED STATES GOLD COIN, "not inferior to the present standard." Interest payable semi-annually in New-York, on the 1st day of June and December, and guaranteed jointly and severally by

The Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Railroad Company,
The Pennsylvania Company, and
The Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad Company.

The road is entirely completed and in operation, and extends from Fort Wayne, Indiana, to Richmond, 90 miles in the State of Indiana, and connects the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne, and Chicago Railway, the Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad, and the whole system of roads under the control of the Pennsylvania Company in Indiana and Michigan, with the Cincinnati, Hamilton, and Dayton Railroad to Cincinnati and Southern Ohio and Indiana. The road is leased for 99 years to the Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad Company, and operated by it for the joint account of the guarantors, and by a contract entered into between the Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad Company, for the Pennsylvania Company, lessees of the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne, and Chicago Railway, and the Cincinnati, Hamilton, and Dayton Railroad Company, reciprocal interchange of business; all these Companies agree to throw all their freight and passenger traffic which may be appropriately done over this road, thus insuring it, from the outset, a large volume of business. The holders of these Bonds are thus trebly secured:

First—By a first mortgage on a finished road now in full operation.

Secondly—By a contract for interchange of business with three prosperous and powerful corporations, controlling in its favor a vast amount of business.

Thirdly—By the direct and absolute guarantee, jointly and severally, by INDORSEMENT ON THE BONDS by the above-mentioned three Companies.

PROPOSALS.

PROPOSALS FOR HEAD-STONES FOR NATIONAL MILITARY CEMETERIES, } WAR DEPARTMENT, QUARTERMASTER-GENERAL'S OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 1, 1872.

Proposals are invited for marking the graves in the National Cemeteries, as required by law, to be addressed to the Quartermaster-General, Washington, D. C.

Proposals should state the price for each headstone, properly inscribed and set at the head of the grave in each National Military Cemetery.

Bids may be for the whole work of all the cemeteries, or for that of several cemeteries in a district, or for a single cemetery.

The bonds required will be, in amount, twenty (20) per cent. of the whole amount of each contract.

All proposals received by the Quartermaster-General will be opened on the 12th day of October, 1872, at noon, at the office of the Quartermaster-General, Washington, D. C., in presence of bidders, and contracts will be awarded at the lowest responsible bid or for as soon as a comparison of the samples and prices can be completed, provided the samples are deemed suitable by the Secretary of War.

All samples should be distinctly marked in order to prevent mistakes.

Lists of the cemeteries, with the number of graves in each, together with full information as to conditions, requirements, &c., will be furnished on application in writing to the Quartermaster-General, Washington, D. C.

Envelopes containing proposals to be indorsed "Proposals for Headstones for National Military Cemeteries," and addressed to the Quartermaster-General, Washington, D. C.
